GRAND EASTER ATTRACTION,
Commencing Easter Saturday Night,
Return of the Popular Irish Actor,
ALLEN DOONE,
in a Revival (owing to Numerous Requests) of the Patriotic Irish Drama,
"THE WEARING OF THE GREEN."
The Patriotic Irish Drama, "THE WEARING OF THE GREEN" provides an attraction theatrically that at the present heated thermometer of Irish Home Rule should prove a veritable Mascotte. Australia's sympathies, and, better still, her help, have been, and are for Ireland being her own governor, and "The Wearing of the Green," dealing, as it does, with National Sentiment and Aspiration, must appeal forcibly to all alike.
The Tour of the Commonwealth has been one Long, Triumphal March.
Proof that the Public wants the Pretty Plays of Allen Doone.
On Saturday Night Next, Mr. Doone will sing:—"Ireland, My Ireland," "Nora M'Namara," "A Four-leafed Clover," and "The Wearing of the Green."

Now, just a word as to those free tickets to the Shows.
The White City Company has posted to every competitor a book of free tickets to all Shows owned and controlled by the Company. These tickets admit the holder to the Shows mentioned on the ticket.
To prevent any misunderstanding that might arise, let it be clearly stated that only those Shows for which competitors hold free tickets are "free" to those in costume.
The Company cannot grant free admission to Shows owned by concessionaires, though many of the Company's concessionaires will, no doubt, extend their courtesy to those in costume.
In order to avoid disappointing the hundreds unable to obtain competitors' tickets for next Wednesday's Carnival we have decided to hold

PUBLIC NOTICE.
Lest the PUBLIC may FORM WRONG CONCLUSIONS from statements made by a certain person about THE AMERICAN PICTURE PALACE, LTD., 303 PITT-STREET, SYDNEY, I have pleasure in informing them that this Company was Registered about the 25th December, 1911, just about 28 months to date. I was appointed Sole Manager on the 2nd July, 1912, so I have occupied that position for over 20 months out of the 28. No one has had the slightest authority with me (excepting my Board of Directors) during that time. During my management I have made many improvements that add to the comfort and pleasure of my Patrons, such as installing large electric fans, duplicating the Bioscope Machine, improving the stereoscopic projection of the pictures, which make them now the best in Sydney, installing Pianolas, and other items too numerous to mention here.
Trusting this information may be useful just now to investing public.

HOME EXCELLENCE.

Where the successful man, tired of the city's continual roar, can steal away for the keen enjoyment of rest.

Where comfort and elegance await him, and a bracing air brings soft, refreshing sleep, awakened only by the early song of birds as they greet the morning's light.

Where he and his faithful wife can revel in the delights of rural simplicity, gladdened by the shouts of invigorated children as their merry laughter resounds in the echoing woods.

A noble house of enduring stone, the charm of whose quaint design is pleasing to look upon as it stands in quiet dignity in a park of more than a hundred acres, with every convenience and luxury a man can want.

Where the sloping uplands are rich with a luxuriant pasture, and autumn's breath is fragrant with the eucalyptus's odour. It is truly a home to delight in, supreme in all the qualities that make for happiness and content, which, after all, is life's chief concern.

It is only an hour from the city to this home of rest, and, although you may think the picture overdrawn, it will come out victorious from a rigid inspection.

FIFTH DAY OF THE PIANOLA COMPANY'S SPECIAL SUMMER SALE
[illegible] OF [illegible]
PIANOS, PIANOLA PIANOS, AND PLAYER-PIANOS.

OVER 100 SLIGHTLY-USED PIANOS, ALSO SOME SLIGHTLY-USED PIANOLA PIANOS AND OTHER PLAYER-PIANOS NOW BEING OFFERED AT PIANOLA HALL.

Special sales of seldom-used Pianos at Pianola Hall have gained a wide celebrity for two things—first, the immediate opportunity they offer the public of securing high-grade Pianos in excellent condition much under their real value; second (and this is equally important), the unmistakable impression that such a collection conveys of the tremendous success of the PIANOLA PIANO, Steinway, Steck, Weber, and Stroud.

Therefore, when a special sale is announced the public has come to understand that it means a real opportunity. These Pianos have come to us for an extraordinary reason, the tremendous popularity and demand for the genuine PIANOLA PIANO. People who would otherwise keep their pianos for years of service are so anxious to secure this new type of instrument which ANYONE can play that they are exchanging their pianos with which they were not merely satisfied, but in which they took great pride prior to the coming of the PIANOLA PIANO. If you could see the homes from which many of these instruments have come you would then understand better the genuine character of the present opportunity.

A remarkable selection of High-class Pianos, some second-hand, the majority only slightly used, at greatly-reduced prices.

USED UPRIGHTS and GRANDS of FAMOUS MAKERS. Here are 7 Lipps, 8 Ronisch, 1 Bechsteins, 8 Stecks, 4 Bluthners, 3 Brinsmeads, 2 Feurich, 2 Gors and Kallmann, 2 Victors, Beale, Collard and Collard, Belling, Schwechten, Forster, etc., etc.

Also an excellent selection of Genuine PIANOLA PIANOS, together with a number of slightly-used Player-Pianos. This assortment includes 7 Steck Pianola Pianos, 2 Steinway Pianola Pianos, 2 Stroud Pianola Pianos, 3 Ronisch Claviolas, 4 Auto Pianos, 4 Jansen Angelus, 1 Broadwood Player-Piano, 1 Spencer Player-Piano, and 40 exchanged Pianolas, Themodist and Metrostyle attachable to any Piano at prices from £15, £20, £25, £30, to £45.

IMPORTANT.—Every Instrument at this Sale may be bought subject to the conditions that the full purchase price will be allowed in exchange within three months for any brand new instruments from our stock of over 200—NEW PIANOS AND PIANOLA PIANOS—200. (Steinway, Weber, Steck, and Stroud).

A DAY OF PERIL.

BY MORICE GERARD.

CHAPTER XV.—Continued.

Juan had naturally many friends among the officers with whom he had served in the Spanish army. He shared their aspirations to the fullest degree; the King of Spain was master of the New World; their desire was to see him arbiter of the destinies of Europe as well, with the Netherlands under his heel, subjected to the terrors of the Inquisition, with France weakened and powerless, owing to the war of religion between the Guises and the faction of the King of Navarre; finally, England, perfidious, heretic, brought under the sway of the most Catholic Monarch, governed from the Escurial, instead of from Whitehall.

Juan's brother, Anthony, spent part of his time at Rome, part in England; he moved from London to Cornwall as various political errands took him first in one direction, then in another. He represented the views of the Pope, with one reservation, in whose secret councils he occupied a prominent place. He was in touch with all the disaffected Roman Catholic gentry, from London to Lands End; he knew enough to have brought them all to Tower Hill or Tyburn, if he had been moved to play the traitor, and receive that reward at the hands of Elizabeth and her Ministers which not a few priests had accepted during the last few years. But Father Anthony was made of different stuff; no torture would have wrung from him any information which would have damaged the interests of his side, or assisted the plans of the other. On one point only was he at variance with his brother and others among the fiercest and wildest partisans of the Spanish interest; on no account would he agree to the secret assassination of Elizabeth. To fight her openly, to conquer her, to put her in durance vile, to set the crown on Philip's head—these were the objects at which he aimed; but the slaughter of a woman, merely because she happened to be a queen, revolted his instincts.

Sir Giles Treluce and Mistress Anne, in her feminine fashion, were of course utterly opposed in politics to the two Marcias; they shared that loyalty, which was never more conspicuous among the best blood and bravest hearts of England, than during these years of the reign of Elizabeth, culminating in the final struggle of 1588—the struggle for life and liberty against the strongest power of the world.

As Christopher Stone and Tom Flemyng walked together across the courtyard of The Three Tuns, Sir Giles was left to himself. He turned instinctively in the direction of the great door, which admitted to the yard from the lane outside. An ostler, carrying one of the lanterns, walked towards it; noticing it was ajar, he shut it with an oath, well aware that if the landlord had discovered that it had not been secured he would have come in for a torrent of abuse, if nothing more.

Sir Giles walked up to the man, and slipped a crown into his hand.

"Where does this door lead to?" he inquired.

"Into Tuns Alley, master," the ostler replied, "it joins Castle-street near the front of the inn."

"It was open just now?"

The ostler scratched his head. "I suppose so, master; although I could have sworn I not only closed it but locked it when the last horse was brought in for the night."

"It is easy to make a mistake about things we do every day," Sir Giles responded.

"May be, but the Master would give me a cut over the head if he thought I made mistakes of that sort. There are plenty in Dover who would steal the very eyes out of your head, or, what might be more useful to them, the oats out of the manger."

Sir Giles wished the man good-night, and walked thoughtfully across the yard, down the passage to the door of the room into which they had first been ushered. This idea of Father Anthony shadowing their movements occupied his thoughts to the exclusion of everything else. It showed him the forces that were at work, striving against them, seeking to frustrate anything which might be done on their side.

Sir Giles knew well enough the strength of the contending factions by which England was rent asunder, but very often the concrete example brings facts home to us in a way which nothing can do merely from hearsay. He saw, in a vision, England gripped by the throat, by a devouring monster in front, while behind she was attacked, after an insidious fashion, not openly, but more dangerously, by those who received her hospitality and yet abused it.

These forces had their representatives in the court of Elizabeth herself, attending upon her royal person; they were to be found throughout the length and breadth of England; every port had its scum ready, for a consideration, to carry news of the vulnerable points in her army to the enemy.

These were the dark clouds on the horizon, which were shortly to overspread the whole heavens, and obscure the very sun itself.

Yet brave hearts met the situation with courage and hope; there was no faltering in the defence, however overwhelming the attack promised to be.

English ships and Englishmen would fight until there were none left to continue the conflict, rather than permit the hated foot of the Spaniard, the man who was fed from the blood of martyrs, to be planted on Britain's shore.

Sir Giles turned the handle of the door, but found it locked against him. He knocked.

Steps came along the sanded parlour, and the voice of Captain Stone asked, "Who is there?"

"Sir Giles Treluce."

The door was unlocked, and the baronet entered.

The room was deserted, save for the two men who had recently been engaged in such strenuous conflict in the barn. Flemyng's friends had departed, probably not wishing to come to close quarters with the Captain of The Golden Hind, in case he should be in a dangerous mood after his defeat.

This departure happened to suit the wishes both of Stone and Flemyng. They had the parlour to themselves for the very important conference, which had begun at once.

"May I introduce Sir Giles Treluce, the friend in whose ship I have come from London; in whose honour and reticence you may safely rely."

Flemyng shook him by the hand, with a certain dignity; the roughness which he had hitherto displayed had fallen from him to a great extend, leaving the true mettle of the man exposed, the sound kernel within the unshapely nut.

They all three walked across to the table at the further end of the room. On this was spread a chart of the Channel, very different from the one over which they had spent some time in the cabin of the Flower of Cornwall. It was of rough workmanship, put together by a man who had had no training in draughtsmanship; but counter-balancing these disadvantages the chart displayed the personal care of one who had many times risked his life on its accuracy; one who knew the French coast just as surely as his own, and could thread his way through its tides and currents, past its hidden rocks, and round its most dangerous cliffs, by day as well as by night, without fear of loss.

"I have explained to Captain Flemyng the proposals which the Admiral and the Lord Treasurer have made," Captain Stone remarked to Sir Giles. "He knows the hazard of the enterprise as well as, or better than, I."

Flemyng brought his great fist down on the table, until the tankards, which had been huddled to one end to make room for the chart, rang as if they had been struck.

"What care I for risk or danger; it is the breath I breathe by choice, always have, always shall, and if this is to help my country and not to put guineas into my pocket all the better; I can set one good deed against countless bad ones. Now for the details, gentlemen. What my Lord Effingham wants to know is the extent of the force under the Duke of Parma; what boats he has ready to convey that force from Dunkirk to Dover, or some other port, which may happen to be favoured by the wind. Our friend, here, has come at the right moment, for I was about to make a little voyage myself in The Golden Hind, which will fit in well with the carrying out of this enterprise. My ship is lading at the present time"—he grinned—"more work goes on by night than by day in not a few harbours at the present time, I can tell you—with Kent corn and oats. I propose to land that little consignment two nights from now in a little bay I know well between Calais and Gravelines; this consignment will be worth its weight in gold on the other side of the water, for the Duke's army has eaten up, I am assured, all available provender for many miles."

Christopher shot a glance of something very like amusement at Sir Giles. Here was the man who had been signalled out by the Lord Treasurer and the Admiral to be their ally, and to undertake a hazardous enterprise on behalf of England calmly acknowledging to assistance in the victualling of the hostile force of the Duke of Parma.

Flemyng intercepted the glance, and understood it. He laughed, "the army would be fed whether I raked in the sheckels or not. Then I can use the Duke of Parma's gold in supplying my little ship with plenty of ammunition, with which to pepper the Spaniards, and prevent them from joining the Duke, to carry out their plans. Incidentally I intend to bring back a little eau-de-vie, which will come in handy if our men happen to be wounded."

"I quite understand," Christopher responded.

WORK OF CO-ORDINATION.

"In connection with education," said Mr. Carmichael last week, "I am convinced that the principal field of development for the next two or three years will be in the direction of co-ordinating the primary schools, the technical schools, and agricultural schools with a view to producing skilled tradesmen for the manufacturing industry and scientific agriculturists for the land." When compulsory education had become a fact under the legislation to be introduced next session, the Minister said he expected that there would be about 300,000 pupils in the primary schools of the State. Opportunity to pass on into the different professions through the University would be given to all who were competent to take advantage of it, but every boy should be given the opportunity of vocational training. This could only be done by co-ordinating the primary schools with the different continuation schools, the trades schools, the technical college, and the University, just as the professional side had been co-ordinated through the primary schools, the district schools, and the high schools with the University.

"I believe," added the Minister, "it is quite possible to give the same skill and interest to the primary production side as it is to the professions. Our primary schools will feed the agricultural normal schools I propose to establish, and the students will pass thence to the Agricultural College and to the Chair of Agriculture in the Sydney University."

MONTESSORI METHODS.

Towards the close of 1912 the Education Department commissioned Miss Simpson, of the Kindergarten Practice School, to visit Italy to study the Montessori method of education under the personal direction of the author of the method. Special consideration was shown to the department's representative by Dr. Montessori, and exceptional facilities were given to Miss Simpson to make the best use of the limited time at her disposal. In recognition of Dr. Montessori's courtesy, Mr. Carmichael has had prepared an album of photographs, showing the experiments in Montessori work that have been carried out at the Blackfriars Practice School during the past 12 months. The album is bound in dark green morocco, the cover being stamped in gold with the State's coat-of-arms. An artistic inscription, showing the Italian and Australian flags intertwined, expresses the appreciation of the Government of the courtesies extended by Dr. Montessori to its representative. The photographs include a series of kindergarten pictures, as well as photographs of Montessori work. Mr. Carmichael intends personally to ask Dr. Montessori's acceptance of the album during his visit to Europe. The whole of the work was done at the Government Printing Office, and is an excellent example of the bookbinder's art.

SUPPLEMENTARY TRADE EDUCATION.

Unions at the Trades Hall are giving consideration to a circular which suggests that supplementary trade education, as proposed by the Department of Education, should be made as efficient as possible. The idea of the department is that co-operation can be best obtained by means of an advisory committee for each trade or group of trades, each trade to consist of representatives nominated by employers and employees' societies, and in certain cases of gentlemen occupying high positions in the Government departments. Each committee would then sit for two years, and give attention to the work done by the students. The committees would, furthermore, be expected to meet at the central college once a term, with the superintendent as chairman, so that a thorough insight might be obtained as to the course of instruction and equipment of the workshops and classrooms. The hope is expressed in the circular that the committees will be able to render assistance in deciding upon the qualification of students for the final certificate of trade competency, or, failing that, to advise the chairman of examiners. The Progressive Society of Carpenters and Joiners has appointed Mr. Frank Wilson as its representative.

LONDON UNIVERSITY.

The Premier has been advised through official channels of the proposed discontinuance of the London University examinations in the oversea dominions.

At the present time the University of London holds examinations for external students in all subjects, except medicine. The discontinuance of the examinations will affect mostly the outlying parts of the Empire having no universities. Apparently the idea is in future to confine the examination to candidates who wish to pass the London Matriculation with a view to proceed afterwards to London as internal students of the University.

"When Lord Bryce said the other day that 10 per cent. of the brains of the State were the main governing factor in general progress, and should be selected from the whole of the intelligence of the children of the State by a process of the survival of the fittest," said the Minister for Education, "he struck the keynote of our education system here. But, while he struck the note, he did not get the full chord, for the main feature of education is not directed towards the production of 10 per cent. of generals, but along a whole process of selection towards the production of colonels, captains, sergeants, corporals, and privates. A true scheme of education should have for its aim the effective building up of a co-ordinated system through the two branches of trade education and agricultural education." This was to be the principal work of the department for the next few years, and the Minister said that by carefully investigating what was being done in the successful institutions of other countries, he hoped to be able to assist more effectively in this constructive work. "Then, on the art side," continued Mr. Carmichael, "we hope to start a successful school of music and a school of painting, but before doing so I want to see for myself the foundations upon which flourishing institutions abroad have been built."

BACH'S "PASSION."

The special Lenten services were continued at St. Andrew's Cathedral on Sunday afternoon, when Bach's immortal work, "The Passion," was rendered by the full choir, with the assistance of an efficient orchestra. The difficult music of "The Passion" has rarely been as impressively and effectively sung in the Cathedral as was the case on Sunday. The choral work throughout was the outstanding feature of the production. This was notably so in the numbers "Not on the Feast Day," "To what purpose," "Where wilt Thou," and "Lord, is it I?" which were sung with a confidence and crispness that left little to be desired. Indeed, from the beautiful opening number "Come ye, daughters, weep with me," to the final bars of the music at the words "This night of sadness shall soon be changed to Easter joy," the choral work was inspiring and eminently satisfactory. The ponderous chorus "The lightnings and thunders of hell loose are broken" was splendidly given, and the same may be said of the double chorus "He is guilty of death" and the shout of the multitude, "Barabbas." The large congregation was invited by the Precentor to join in the singing of the chorales, and the response was a hearty one, judging from the volume of solemn melody which swelled through aisle and transept.

The orchestra did excellent work. The soloists were Messrs. Frank Way and Percy Bates (tenor), the Precentor (Rev. E. N. Wilton), and Messrs. J. Cunningham, A. Webb, and J. Cochran (bass), and Chorister Oliver Hole (soprano). Mr. Joseph Massey played the piano accompaniments, Mr. George Lee presided at the organ, and Mr. Arthur Massey, who conducted the combined chorus and orchestra, had his forces well under control. The Dean of Sydney gave an appropriate address. To-night Gounod's motet "Gallia" will be rendered, and the "Redemption" on Thursday.

BREAKING OUT ON BABY'S FACE.
"Wando," Wilby Wilby, N.S.W.—"My baby's chin broke out in the form of a pimple, and gradually spread until the sore almost covered that part of her face. It would fester and all become inflamed. There were also the same sores on her fingers and knee. I tried several remedies without success. One day I saw an advertisement for the Cuticura Remedies, so I got some Cuticura Ointment, which I used along with Cuticura Soap, which I had been using for two years, and in four days I could notice a vast difference, and now after three weeks my baby's face is quite healthy. I think Cuticura Soap and Ointment splendid for the skin and hair." (Signed) Mrs. L. M. Cook, January 7, 1913.
Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. T, Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

PROGRESS OF TRADE.

A MODEL NURSES' HOME.

The additions to the Nurses' Home at the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital were officially opened yesterday afternoon. It is now the largest and most up-to-date nurses' home in Australia. For many years the nursing staff of Prince Alfred Hospital has been increasing and new wards have been added to the hospital, but the nurses' home, which was built many years ago, has done duty ever since. It has for ten years been too small to house comfortably the nursing staff, with a result that more than half the nurses have had to sleep in cubicles specially prepared in one of the unused wards. Early in 1905 a movement was started to collect funds to enlarge the existing home. The Masonic body took the matter up, and Earl Jersey laid the memorial stone of the building on November 23 of that year. The work of erecting the building was not, however, advanced any further for a year or two. In fact, the grass began to grow over the memorial stone; but the intervening period was spent in collecting funds, and at last the Government came to the aid of the committee, and the work of erecting the building was proceeded with, and is now complete. The building is one of four stories, with a large quadrangle in the centre, and verandahs all round, 8ft wide. The plans were prepared in the Government Architect's office, and the work carried out under the supervision of Mr. Fairfax of that office, by day labour. The additions to the home provide 153 more bedrooms. These are well lighted and ventilated, and by means of French casements entrance is gained from every bedroom to the wide verandahs that have been arranged for sleeping-out purposes. Each bedroom opens also to the main corridor in the interior of the building. The new dining-room is 60ft by 27ft. It is a well-appointed apartment, with bay windows at one end, and cosy seats laced in the bays. Immediately over the dining-room is the new recreation room of equal size to the dining-room. This room has been fitted with every comfort. Extensive additions have been made to the kitchen block, which is now double the original size. The kitchen (42ft x 28ft) has been fitted with every convenience, and both gas and fuel stoves of considerable dimensions have been installed. The maids' dining-room has been enlarged by the removal of partitions, and a cookery instruction room 22ft by 17ft has been provided by the conversion of two rooms into one. The matron's apartments, which are at the end of the ground floor, and lead to the lawns, are beautifully arranged and fitted with every comfort. The matron has a sitting-room, bedroom, and separate bathroom. The design of the building is such that a very fine courtyard has been formed by the quadrangle. This court is being laid out as a winter garden, with grass plots and flower beds. The new building, which is practically ready for occupation, cost nearly £30,000.

A NEW PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

A new private hospital has recently been erected in Forbes-street, Darlinghurst, from plans prepared by Messrs. Spain, Cosh, and Dods, architects, under whose supervision the building has been constructed, the contractors being Messrs. Wheelwright and Alderson, of Ashfield. The new building has been designed to provide accommodation for 40 patients, a matron, seven nurses, and the usual domestic staff, and contains ground, first and second floors, with wide verandahs leading off the bedrooms from each floor on the northern side. The operating theatre being one of the most important features in this institution, is conveniently situated on the ground floor, commanding uninterrupted light; an observation ward is also provided. The original "Molong" Hospital was in Rosebank-street.

GENERAL NOTES.

Brisbane is to have a new theatre, which it is proposed to erect for the Brisbane Theatres, Ltd., from plans prepared by Mr. Henry E. White, architect, of this city.

It is proposed to erect additions to the Town Hall at Dundas, consisting of offices and council chambers, to cost about £500. Architects are asked to enter a competition for the plans. The successful applicant will receive a bonus of £5, and be appointed to supervise the erection of the buildings on the usual terms, providing that the council decide to build. Plans to be forwarded to the town clerk at Dundas before 18th inst.

Messrs. Scott and Green are preparing plans for a pair of houses at Bondi.

It is proposed to extend the warehouse premises of Messrs. Robert Reid and Company, in King-street, and for this purpose the architects, Messrs. M'Credie and Anderson, are calling for tenders to pull down shops adjoining the warehouses.

Messrs. Rosenthal and Wright, architects, have plans in hand for alterations to premises at Manly.

In the office of Mr. J. T. M'Carthy, architect, plans are being prepared for large factory premises in George-street North.

In the office of Messrs. H. E. Ross and Rowe, architects, plans are being prepared for the following:—Block of four shops and four semi-detached cottages at North Sydney; block of produce stores in Sussex-street, city; new premises at Queanbeyan; alterations to premises at Granville; extensive additions to business premises, Newtown; extensive alterations to business premises, Corso, Manly; new premises at Tenterfield; extensive additions to residence, Neutral Bay, and for a residence at Lindfield.

On Saturday afternoon a new Methodist school was opened at Chatswood South. The building cost between £500 and £600, and was erected expressly for a primary department in connection with the Sunday school. The honorary architects were Messrs. Ross and Rowe.

Mr. C. H. Halstead, architect, is preparing plans for remodelling an hotel at Kogarah, and for a brick cottage at Penshurst.

Messrs. Buchanan and M'Kay, architects, have plans in hand for a garage at Neutral Bay, two cottages at Cremorne, and two shops at Arncliffe.

Mr. T. J. Darling, architect, announces his removal to Atlas-buildings, 8 Spring-street.

Mr. G. Garton, architect, has plans in hand for two cottages at Gordon.

Drawings are being prepared by Mr. G. L. Grant for a gallery to be added to the picture palace at Bondi, and also for a shop and motor garage at Rose Bay, and for a factory at Chippendale.

Messrs. Nixon and Son, architects, are preparing plans for two residences at Double Bay, and for shops at Rhodes.

Plans for sea walling and reclamation works at Drummoyne are being prepared by Mr. G. W. Durrell, architect.

An advance copy of Zions' N.S.W. Building Trades Pocket Directory (10th year of issue) for 1914 is to hand. It contains some 6500 carefully classified names of architects, builders, sub-contractors of all kinds, and builders' supply merchants. The grouping of the latter under some 28 headings and sub-headings must have entailed exhaustive inquiries and much care, and will prove of value to those interested. It is claimed that no other directory in the State attempts the exhaustive classification of both merchants and subcontractors which has been so successfully carried out in this issue.

KEEN CRITICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Carping critics of the drilling of cadets sometimes say that the Defence Act "drives" the trainees, and that the boys hate the said Act and don't take any interest in their work.

Passing the "Herald" office, where pictures are shown of the current issue of the "Sydney Mail," I saw a newsboy looking at the illustrations of the big cadet review held by Sir Ian Hamilton. The boy called to another youngster, who looked like a messenger boy, and said:—

"Sroger! Come 'ere."

Sir Roger duly came. To him the newsboy said:—

"Them's the seniors, aren't 'em?"

"Of course they are."

"Well," said the newsboy, "there's one bloke out of step, anyway."

I am, etc.,

TRAMWAY REVENUE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—To meet the necessary revenue in the Tramway Department, I consider the advance of 50 per cent. on the second section unjust. To single out one section in the whole State and demand that section to pay 50 per cent. more in fares in a drastic stroke. If this section is now fairly treated with this added burden, it follows that the authorities for many long years have been under a delusion. In reference to concessions to long-distance travellers, I presume I am correct in saying that these are made up in lengths of sections, but the most important concessions are to be found in rentals. The rent of a dwelling-house gradually eases according to distance from the city. The most sensible and equitable method is an advance of fares on all sections. If 20 per cent. is sufficient, five tickets for sixpence, etc; cash fare three half-pence, Sunday included.

I am, etc,
J.Y.

A DYSPEPTIC'S LIFE SAVED.

SEVERE PAIN AND SICKNESS FOR MANY YEARS CURED BY A SIMPLE ANTACID.

NEIGHBOURS SAID HE WAS A DYING MAN.

Chronic indigestion and sickness after food and severe pains were all quickly cured by a very simple remedy in the case of Mr. R. Savigan, 11 Gloucester-street, Barnardtown, Newport, Mon. In a letter referring to her husband's illness, Mrs. Savigan writes: "He did not know what it was to eat a meal without it coming back," which appears to have been his condition for a considerable time, until his wife, while reading a ladies' paper, saw ordinary bisurated magnesia recommended for indigestion, and obtained a small quantity so that her husband might try it. A few doses gave Mr. Savigan great relief, and before he had finished the first supply the trouble was practically cured. To use Mrs. Savigan's own words:—"He can eat his food and is looking splendid, and can do his work; in fact, all the people about here look at him, for they all said he was a dying man." The quantity of bisurated magnesia that cured Mr. Savigan was half-a-teaspoonful in a wine-glass of water after meals, and we strongly advise any of our readers who suffer from indigestion to try it. Be careful to get the bisurated form spelt b-i-s-u-r-a-t-e-d, as other chemical products similarly named do not have the same beneficial effect.—Advt.

Let Formamint Shield you from Infectious Illness.

WHEN a man sneezes violently, you know that he has probably caught a cold, and you naturally take reasonable precautions to avoid catching it yourself.

But you don't know when a man is sickening for a serious illness like Influenza or Diphtheria. Yet you may catch it from him in just the same way that you catch a cold! Don't expose your health to unnecessary risks. Formamint will safeguard you.

Why you should use Formamint Tablets Daily.

Suppose you are in a crowded railway-carriage, or in any place where all sorts of people are herded together in a stuffy atmosphere. Opposite you, breathing into your face, is a man sickening for an infectious illness. His breath is swarming with disease-germs which get into your mouth and throat. That man is literally poisoning you! The germs he gives you are a kind of poison-fungus—invisibly minute—which grows and multiplies in your mouth-cavity, forces its way through the membrane, and pours its poisons into your blood. Then you are laid up with an infectious illness like Influenza or Diphtheria.

"The Germ-killing Throat Tablet."

You can't stop disease-germs from entering your mouth, bu you can stop them from poisoning you. To do this, you need only suck a few Formamint Tablets every day. Formamint has the unique property of destroying all disease-germs in your mouth and throat before they can harm you.

For Sore Throat, etc.

"Formamint is a real destroyer of mouth and throat germs," writes Mr. Jack London, the famous novelist. "Formamint Tablets are splendidly adapted as a preventive of infectious disease," writes Prof. Seifert, M.D. And the Bishop of Kingston writes that he "has found by experience that Wulfing's Formamint is an almost certain preventive of infectious disease."

Formamint is also an ideal remedy for minor germ-ailments like Sore Throat. For example, Lady Noel-Walker writes that she "has used Formamint for years, and found it most speedy and satisfactory for Sore or Relaxed Throat."

Safe, Pleasant and Convenient.

Formamint Tablets are manufactured by the proprietors of Sanatogen, who guarantee them to be the most efficient destroyer of germs in the mouth and throat, and, at the same time, absolutely harmless to the human system. They are pleasantly flavoured, and have a most soothing and refreshing effect on the whole mouth-cavity.

Make a regular habit of taking a few Formamint Tablets every day. It will keep your mouth and throat always hygienically clean, protect your teeth from decay, save you from Sore Throat and similar ailments, and safeguard you against the constant danger of catching diseases like Influenza, Diphtheria, Consumption, Scarlet Fever, Measles, etc. Give your children Formamint, too, for they are frequently exposed to infection at school.

Write To-day for a Free Sample.

Wulfing's Formamint is sold by all Chemists, price 2/6d. per bottle. If you will write, enclosing two penny stamps and mentioning this paper, we will send you a Sample Supply, in order that you can test its value for yourself. Address: A. Wulfing & Co., 17, Bond Street, Sydney, N.S.W.

GOOD FARMING.

PRACTICAL ENCOURAGEMENT.

Mr. Alex. Hay, of Coolangatta, has taken a practical step in the way of encouraging good farming methods amongst young people on the farm, as will be seen from the following letter, which he has forwarded to the secretary of the Berry Agricultural Association:—

Instead of giving a contribution to your association as I have done in the past, I propose this year giving the following prizes to be awarded to sons of members of the Berry Agricultural Association who, at the time of your next show, shall not be over the age of 17 years:—

1.—First prize £5, second prize £2: For the heaviest crop of maize produced from a quarter of an acre.

2.—First prize £5, second prize £2: For the heaviest crop of potatoes of at least three varieties, produced from a quarter of an acre.

3.—First prize £5, second prize £2: For the best fodder crops, at least four varieties, grown upon a quarter of an acre.

4.—First prize £5, second prize £2: For the heaviest production in butter for a period of six months between May next and the date of your show in February, 1915, from five cows to be selected out of his father's herd.

Any details your society may think necessary to be submitted to me for approval; the only conditions I make are that there shall be at least six competitors in each class, and that the work is carried out solely by the competitor.

A copy of this letter has been handed to the press in order that the subject may be given early publicity, and those who wish to compete have ample time to prepare for the competition. Mr. Hay has adopted a system that has proved successful in America, particularly amongst what are known as corn clubs, and which, in its application in different parts of the wheat belt in this State in regard to growing crops, has proved of some value. In this case, however, as with the American corn clubs, a direct attempt is made to promote a practical interest in rural pursuits amongst the younger generation. Mr. Hay's idea is to encourage good farming on the part of those who will be the farmers of to-morrow, and it is an example that might well be followed, and which should prove of great value both to the individual competitors and to the country. The story of the American corn clubs has been told before in these columns, and it is fascinating and instructive. Starting in a very small way, indeed, upon the initiative of one man, the clubs now have a membership of many thousands of boys and have become a feature of American rural life. The boys obtained results from their corn patches which put their fathers to shame and stirred them to emulation. The practical example furnished of the result of careful tillage, selection of seed, proper fertilising, and other factors in good husbandry has had the effect of improving farming methods generally in the different localities where the clubs flourish, and the corn yield of the States has benefited. In addition—and perhaps this is the most important phase—the boys have received a new and broader understanding of farming which has made rural life far more attractive and remunerative, and tended towards keeping the boy on the farm. Seeing that from a national standpoint such an end is the aim of most statesmen and economists to-day, any attempt on similar lines in this country is to be welcomed. We recently published what had been done at Carlingford in the way of forming a Boys' Potato Club, and Mr. Hay's offer to the Berry association is a sound move in the same direction.

It is common knowledge that there is room for considerable improvement amongst most of our coastal farmers in regard to the cultivation of crops of all kinds. More work with the plough is one of the greatest necessities in most of our dairying districts. More and better crops of maize, potatoes, and fodder are required badly, and anything that will encourage the lads on the farms to grow them will do good locally. Of course, such competition will require careful management, and that factor it will be the part of the association to supply. The results will probably be very close in many instances, so it is necessary that the area should be measured carefully and the yields properly supervised and checked, as the boys will want "a fair go." There should be no difficulty in arranging the necessary details, and it is to be hoped that good competition will result.

ENGLISH WOOL TRADE.

WOOL TENDING TOWARDS A BOOM.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, March 6.

One has to admit that wool is wool to-day, and a commercial commodity of no ordinary importance. There have been lively times before, seasons when it looked as if the trade would never be slack, or the raw material decline in price, and to-day such an experience is being realised. We find that all sections of the trade are keen to operate, and, notwithstanding a distinctly higher level of values, it has in no sense unnerved buyers, or been the means of limiting operations. The very opposite is seen to-day in Coleman-street, and the first week of the second series finds both home, Continental, and American buyers keenly alive to their interests and operating on an extensive scale as if wool was cheap. There is a good deal of grumbling at the raw material fetching big figures, and "stinking dear" is the verdict pronounced by all alike, but evidently many are in the position that they must have it, and, although it goes down badly having to pay 1d per lb more than last series, buyers have no alternative but to purchase while the opportunity affords. We find to-day in Coleman-street Wool Exchange a large contingent of men all wanting the raw material; they are prepared to buy, and the figures ruling clearly indicate a higher level of values than we have seen for some time. It is a fact that when values are fairly high a large number have more confidence to operate than when the market is a bit weak, and if the home trade in particular had had anything like the same faith in wool values last December that they have to-day, then they would have secured a good deal more raw material than many now possess.

WHERE MERINOS STAND.

We need waste no space in saying anything about the opening, which took place last Tuesday. Every reader is fully aware that merinos appreciated 7½ per cent. and crossbreds generally 10 per cent. The sales which have since taken place have only confirmed the improvement, and the market has rather gained in strength than otherwise. We have watched critically every day's sale, and we are unable to discern a single weak spot. French buyers are certainly on the quiet side, and are apparently well pleased with the stocks they have at home and the wool they are landing in considerable volume from Australia. German buyers are doing a little more, but any deficiency on the part of the Continental section is more than made up by the increased activity of home trade and American buyers. Between them, they are almost sweeping the catalogues, and to-day the advance in merinos is a full ½d to 1d, generally the latter. We find average to good wool, including the super lines, all making extreme prices, and when home trade topmakers are paying 13d for Western Australian grease combing wool that will not give more than 48 per cent. clean yield, that fact alone demonstrates where wool stands. Some extraordinary prices are at times forthcoming. One has only to look at the withdrawn lots from the January sales to see how far the market has travelled, and on many of the import wools, particularly those which are light, well-grown, and attractive, good profits are being secured. When we come to the more heavy and wasty wools, a different tale has to be told. We find these barely making cost plus 1½d per lb, which it now takes to cover freight, primage, insurance, and cost of offering in Coleman-street. But on good average combing wools, importers can now get out with a reasonable and at times very good profit. Still nobody can begrudge them their stroke of good fortune, when last sales somewhat heavy losses had to be faced, but when they are able to make 1d per lb more than they had then bid, it changes the tune of a man's whistle very considerably. There is a particularly strong inquiry for light-conditioned greasy wools, and those from south-eastern South Australia, west Victoria, as well as New South Wales, are all alike sharing in the good prices ruling. Very extreme values are being paid for Western Australian wools, and even those of Queensland origin are selling splendidly. Scoured merinos are also a full penny better than last series, while at yesterday's sale very tall figures were paid for very fine-haired New South Wales wools, the Dunlop brand making up to 2/4½, and the well-known Shaw clip 2/11. Scoured locks and pieces are also making about 1d more than in January. We certainly call all descriptions of merinos 7½ to 10 per cent. more than they were last series.

SHARP RISE IN CROSSBREDS.

A good deal of attention is being given to crossbreds, and it is a long time since we saw the keen competition for them that there is to-day. Of course, with the incoming of America, and the crowd of buyers from Bradford, the pace is very hot. Placing wool on the free list has completely changed the attitude of the average American, and we find him quite as industrious, in fact more so, in valuing medium greasy merinos and crossbreds, than he was when shut up to the lightest conditioned parcels. The change in values is a thorough one. Last series good 40's wool came at 10½d; to-day it is 11½d, and occasionally 12d. Medium 46's fleece could be secured at 11d to 11½d; to-day it is 12½d, while halfbreds are selling anywhere from 13d to 15d. Home trade buyers are just as keen to purchase as America, and between the two very extreme prices are being paid. The fact is, business is being conducted on a most extensive scale, and hardly a lot is being withdrawn. Sliped crossbreds seem to be in the clouds, the advance here oftentimes being 1½d. Scoured crossbreds have also appreciated about 1d per lb, but the outstanding feature is the keen demand for greasy parcels, it being acknowledged by everyone that Bradford topmakers are in a hole. The New Zealand clip this season is distinctly heavier than last, and certainly no better grown. There seem to be on the market a good many lots that are rather short in staple, and condition is about 4 per cent. heavier than last season; still Bradford topmakers especially must buy, and they are doing this much against their own interests.

NO GREAT ACTIVITY IN BRADFORD.

The above heading just about covers the position of things in that centre to-day, for though business certainly continues to be put through, the largest part of the buy seems for the time being to be over. Authentic reports respecting both tops and yarns go to show that no large amount of new inquiry is being met with, though in the matter of prices the tendency is exceedingly firm. The announcement of how values have shaped in London has not created any sensation in Bradford, simply because they were taken for granted even before they came to pass. Yet we note that some element of criticism occasionally enters into the remarks which are made about this matter, some evidently desiring a strong confirmation of their own theories. It is strongly contended that Bradford is above London, and a plea for a readjustment is therefore being made by some who hold the contention. Thus we hear that some are still looking for further advances as the sales proceed. Meanwhile Bradford is moving tardily to a higher point. We feel some hesitancy in saying that prices are actually higher, because last Thursday's market, though strong in tone, was one in which more talking than anything else was done. Yet any movement was upwards, and it must be said that this was fairly consistent in all grades of tops, crossbreds having the advantage where there is any. Some makers of good 64's tops are now actually quoting as much as 2s 6½d, and the best reason they had for doing so was that they could not make it. Others refused to make any advance, and for exactly the same reason. Averaging up the advance is about a nominal ½d in merinos, which brings 64's up to half-a-crown. Crossbred cardeds and prepareds are very firm, being more decidedly on the upward move, 40's prepared being at 16½d to 17½d.

FRUITGROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

The executive of the Fruitgrowers' Association of New South Wales met at Castle Hill on Saturday afternoon. Mr. John Neil, president, was in the chair.

Attention was drawn to a paragraph in a Sydney newspaper which stated that at the last meeting of the Young Fruitgrowers' Union exception was vigorously taken to the remarks made by Mr. Neil about Government fruit inspectors and their methods. Mr. H. J. Rumsey, secretary, said the Young Fruitgrowers' Union had been misled by a wrong report in one of the newspapers. He moved that a letter be written to the secretary of the Young body explaining the facts of the matter. The motion was seconded by Mr. A. Roughley.

The chairman denied having condemned Government fruit inspectors as a body. His contention was that inspectors were only human and should not be invested with absolute power to cause orchards to be destroyed. He did not desire their present powers to be curtailed; he wanted to block a movement on foot to amend certain clauses of the Fruit Pests Act for increasing the powers of inspectors in regard to the destruction of orchards. He felt sure that the majority of growers appreciated the work of inspectors as a body. The motion was carried.

In reply to a letter from the association drawing attention to a paragraph in a daily paper that the Minister for Agriculture was considering some suggestions for increasing the responsibility of fruit inspectors, Mr. G. Valder, acting Under-Secretary, wrote stating it was not proposed to make any alteration in clauses 14 to 17 inclusive in the regulations under the Vine and Vegetable Diseases and Fruit Pests Act.

Mr. J. Day, railway goods manager, wrote drawing attention to the fact that a considerable number of empty fruit cases (over 10,000) were at present stacked in the Pennant Hills railway goods yard, and stating that in the event of these catching fire the goods shed would be destroyed, and probably the station-master's residence and other buildings in the vicinity would be damaged. He asked that arrangements be made with the various owners to remove their cases forthwith; otherwise the department would be compelled, in its own interest, to destroy or otherwise dispose of the cases which had been on hand over the period stipulated in the goods rates book. The secretary reported that on receipt of the letter he communicated with the local press, branches of the Fruitgrowers' Association, and the Fruit Merchants' Association, Sydney.

With reference to a request made by the association that six or eight vans be shunted to the city markets siding to be loaded daily with returned empty cases, Mr. J. Day, goods manager, wrote stating it was regretted it would not be possible to accede to the request.

Mr. G. Valder, acting Under Secretary, Department of Agriculture, wrote stating that the Minister had approved of the further suspension of the operation of the regulations under the Fruit Cases Act, 1912, until July 1 next.

Mr. Valder also wrote stating that the department was already having placed in cold storage any fruits that were considered new, or of which little data were on hand. He further stated that if the association arranged to place any varieties in cold storage the department would be pleased to have them forwarded with its collection for the Pomological Conference.

On the motion of Mr. Roughley, seconded by Mr. Farr, it was decided to ask the department to appoint a fruit inspector for the Kenthurst and Windsor districts, as soon as possible, as the fruit fly was making its presence felt in those parts.

CHEESE-MAKERS.

We have been asked to state that the meeting of cheese-makers, which was called for 11 a.m. on Wednesday, has been altered to 10 o'clock, as a number of the cheese manufacturers' representatives desire to attend the cattle sales, which commence at 11 o'clock.

PRESERVED MEAT.

WAR OFFICE SUPPLIES.

The Minister for Agriculture is in receipt of a communication from the Agent-General, London forwarding copies of a tender form for preserved meat for the War Office. The quantities required are 375,000 tins, containing not less than 12oz net, and 62,500 tins containing not less than 24oz net. Tenders are required to be delivered at the War Office not later than May 25, and supply as early as posible in September at the Woolwich Dockyard.

HORSES POISONED.

PENRITH.—Mr. F. C. Emery, of Luddenham, had four horses poisoned. Two died, and the other two are in a bad way. The horses that succumbed were valued at £60 each.

DAIRYING.

MORUYA.—The Moruya Dairy Company reports that during February, 25,946 gallons of milk were delivered at the factory. For the month of March 1880 cheeses, weighing 26,056lb, were shipped to Sydney. The amount paid suppliers was at the rate of 5¼d per gallon for milk, which amounted to £695.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

PENRITH.—At a meeting of the Nepean show committee it was announced that over 100 guineas has been promised as special prizes for next year's show.

GOWINGS' OVERCOATS

Overcoat Time.

With the ringing of the Easter Bells comes Overcoat Time, and, following our usual custom, we have made every effort to study the dictates of Fashion without neglecting the demands of Comfort. While in Sydney call and see immense stock to select from. A feature of the season will be the "New Chester," which is close-waisted, and outlines the figure, presenting a specially smart appearance with its velvet collar, and carried out in the fashionable shades of grey, brown, and green.

The Belted Back Single-breasted Overcoat will be very much in demand. It is a fuller garment, made with pleated skirts, and specially suitable for smart town wear.

The Double-breasted Overcoat will be much appreciated for travelling and cold snappy times, when warmth and comfort have to be studied.

Our 55/- Motor Coat is stocked in plain dark grey frieze, with wind cuffs, and is going to be very popular.

Raincoats, so essential in southerly weather, look smart in Prussian or step collar, with Raglan shoulders and very full skirts. We quote:—

LAW REPORT.

COMMONWEALTH ARBITRATION COURT.

WATERSIDE WORKERS' CASE.

The hearing was continued of the claims of the Waterside Workers' Federation of Australia against Gilchrist, Watt, and Sanderson and the Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association and others.

Mr. W. M. Hughes appeared for the claimant federation, Mr. C. M. M'Donald for the coastal steamship companies, Mr. W. F. Story for the oversea companies, Mr. Ranson for the Brisbane owners, and Mr. H. M. Adams for the Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association.

Further evidence was called for the respondents. The witnesses were Messrs. Harwood and Grigg, accountants, who prepared various statistics for the respondents, and explained them, and Mr. C. E. Smith, secretary in Sydney for the Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association. Numerous exhibits were put in—the exhibit list reaching No. 77 up to the luncheon adjournment—mostly of a statistical nature, concerning the shipping of Australia for many years past.

Mr. M'Donald tendered a statement showing the amount paid by seven interstate shipping companies for wharf labour during 1913 as £836,904 8s 1d. His Honor, however, would not accept the statement, regarding it as unsatisfactory.

John Francis Brame, clerk in the employ of the Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association, tendered a statement showing the percentage increase in wharf labourers' wages since 1901, as compared with the percentage increase in the cost of living. The cost of living figures were taken from Mr. Knibbs's labour bulletin, dated February, 1914. The increases showed as follows:—Fremantle, wages 22.3 per cent., cost of living 9.3 per cent.; Melbourne, 41.6 per cent. and 19.6 per cent.; Sydney, 50 per cent. and 31.7 per cent.; Brisbane, 41.6 per cent. and 26.4 per cent.; Hobart, 41.6 per cent. and 15.6 per cent. In reply to his Honor, the witness said that his figures were not based upon the mean Australian rate.

Mr. Hughes questioned the accuracy of the figures. The witness said he compiled the statistics from figures supplied to him by the Sydney office of the steamship owners, in so far as Sydney was concerned. Mr. Hughes said that no change was shown in so far as Sydney was concerned, between 1905 and 1908, whereas a change was made in 1903. His Honor asked Mr. Adams to make inquiries on the matter.

John Holdsworth, timekeeper for the New South Wales Stevedoring Company, Limited, was called by Mr. Story, who stated that the witness represented the company, which did the work of the Nord-Deutscher Lloyd Company. Mr. Holdsworth produced a summary of wages paid to sixteen wharf-labourers from January 1 to December 31, 1913. These varied from £221 13s 8d, which was the highest, to £135 6s 5d, which was the lowest.

William John Meares, a clerk in the employ of Dalgety and Co., Ltd., produced a statement which he said he prepared. When questioned by his Honor he could give no detailed account of whether the men, whose earnings were set out, were ordinary labourers or hatchmen or "pannikin bosses."

Mr. Hughes rose to object to the evidence, but his Honor interrupted, and said that he would pay no attention to evidence, such as was being given, concerning the earnings of picked men. "You first of all pick out 23 men, hatchmen and 'pannikin bosses' and the more highly paid men," said his Honor to Mr. Story. "You do not bring the manager of the wharf to show what is paid to the others, but you put a mere figure—adder and subtracter—a clerk—in the box. I do not think that is treating the Court fairly." His Honor would not accept the statement which the witness produced.

Gordon Livingstone Neilley, paymaster for the Central Wharf Stevedoring Company, produced a summary of the accounts earned by certain men in the company's employ—numbering 31—during 1913. Amounts varied from £173 16s 1d, or an average of £3 6s 10½d a week, to £130 1s 3d, or an average of £2 10s a week.

Captain G. M. Smith stated that any increase in the trimming rate would affect the trade of the port.

His Honor: I want to fix the ordinary rates, then I shall give you an adjournment. You will be able to adjust a good many rates on the basis of the ordinary figures. I want, if I can, to get all the conditions of work which are to bind the employers put down in black and white. Then I want all unfair conditions amended and altered. I want the employers to see how far they can concede in regard to working conditions. Then you may come before me and speak to the minutes. I wish to adopt your agreement as far as I can. You have not yet agreed, but I hope you will. I do not wish to fix you with the existing practices where they are unreasonable. We should finish on Wednesday, and I should work on the award during Easter. I hope to deliver judgment on the 16th.

The hearing was adjourned till the following day.

(Before Mr. Justice Power.)

THE TANNERS' CASE.

Further evidence was tendered on behalf of the employers in the plaint lodged by the Federated Tanners and Leather-dressers' Employees' Union.

A. J. Lawson, tannery manager for Messrs. Farleigh, Nettheim, reviewed the claims made. He stated that the industry could not compete with the world's markets, on which it depended for a considerable portion of its consumption, if it were compelled to pay the rates demanded.

F. J. Luland, secretary New South Wales Master Tanners' Association, estimated that approximately 50 per cent. of the tannery product of New South Wales was exported.

The case stands part heard.

SUPREME COURT

IN BANCO.

GRAZIER'S CLAIM FOR £3000.

CASE SETTLED.

The case was settled in which a claim for £3000 was made by William Stuart Crawford, grazier, residing near Jindabyne, against Balmain Brothers, the plaintiff seeking compensation for injuries sustained in a motor car accident between Jindabyne and Kosciusko, on February 23, 1913, it being alleged that the negligence of the defendants' servants was responsible.

Mr. J. C. Gannon, K.C., and Mr. E. M. Mitchell, instructed by Messrs. Shipway and Berne (agents for Mr. F. Mitchell, of Cooma), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Messrs. Iceton, Faithfull, and Maddock (agents for Messrs. Blaxland, Mawson, and Rose, of Cooma), for the defendants.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

THOMPSON v POWER.

A verdict for defendant was given in this suit. James Thompson, ironworker, of Waterloo, claimed the sum of £38 10s from Francis Power, of North Sydney, balance said to be due under a contract for the erection of awnings around shops defendant was building at Randwick.

Mr. Milner Stephen (instructed by Mr. F. A. Davenport) appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Flannery (instructed by Messrs. McDonell and Moffit) for defendant.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of four.)

ADAMS v SYDNEY FERRIES, LTD.

Sydney Charles Adams, commercial traveller, residing at Norris-street, Mosman, claimed £150 damages from the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., alleging negligence on the part of the company.

Defendants pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Watt (instructed by Messrs. Murphy and Moloney) appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Sheridan (instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co.) for defendant.

Plaintiff, in his evidence, said that at about 11 o'clock at night on November 28 he had occasion to use the horse punt of the defendant company from Milson's Point to Bennelong Point. He alighted from his vehicle while the boat was in transit, and in the course of a walk along the deck of the punt fell down a coal hole, which at the time was unguarded and unlighted. He suffered injury to his left leg, and had to consult a doctor. Subsequent to the accident he had suffered loss of sleep and lost over two stone in weight.

Cross-examined, plaintiff denied that at the time of the accident he was under the influence of drink.

The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff for the full amount claimed.

DALEY v NICHOLLS.

William Michael Daley, of 350 George-street, solicitor, sued William Nicholls, dealer, Bourke-street, for £42 9s 4d, said to be payable by defendant to plaintiff for work performed by plaintiff as solicitor to defendant.

The defence was that the bill of costs was not delivered according to law, and that the bill had been paid.

Mr. Breckenbridge, instructed by Mr. W. N. Daley, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Coyle, instructed by Mr. W. D. M'Mahon, represented defendant.

A verdict for the amount claimed was returned for plaintiff, subject to taxation.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

A PITT-STREET WINE SALOON.

PIC v CLEMENTS.

Mr. Bonney, instructed by Mr. W. Arnott, appeared on behalf of Peter Pic, licensee of the wine saloon, known as the "Picnickers' Halt," 9 Pitt-street, Sydney, and made an ex parte application for an injunction to restrain Jean Seraphim Clements from excluding him from the premises.

Plaintiff set out in his statement of claim that he sold the wine saloon, license, and business to the defendant, who recently arrived from San Francisco, it being a term of the contract that defendant was to do all things necessary to obtain a transfer of the license within 10 weeks. Defendant failed to obtain the transfer, and a dispute arose as to the amount he should receive for improvements, which he had effected, and for stock purchased. Plaintiff tendered him £53, which defendant refused to accept. Plaintiff then resumed possession of the premises, but during his temporary absence, it was alleged, defendant locked him out. Plaintiff now asked for an injunction to restrain Clements from excluding him from the premises.

His Honor granted an interim injunction till the 8th inst, and on plaintiff's paying the sum of £53 into court on the 7th inst, he directed defendant to deliver up possession of the premises till the 8th inst, or further order of the Court.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

ALLEGED BREACH OF AGREEMENT.

Dibble v East.

Mr. H. G. Edwards, instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail, applied, on behalf of Minnie Dibble, of 508 King-street, Newtown, for an injunction to restrain Thomas East from committing any breach of the agreement made by him when he entered plaintiff's employ as a bread-carter.

There was no appearance on behalf of the defendant.

Plaintiff set out in her statement of claim that she was carrying on a bakery business in King-street, Newtown. On January 27, 1911, when the defendant was engaged by her as a breadcarter, he entered into an agreement that he would not, during his service with her, and for a period of 12 months after leaving her employ, either directly or indirectly disclose the names of her customers, or solicit or endeavour to obtain the custom, or cause to be served with bread, within a radius of five miles from her bakehouse, any persons who were customers of hers during his service. Defendant left her employ on March 14 last and, she alleged, entered into partnership with one George Moroney, under the name of the Gold Medal Bakery at Leichhardt, which was within the prescribed area mentioned in the agreement. It was further alleged that he continued to carry on the business with Moroney till March 23 last, when he purported to dissolve the partnership. Plaintiff charged that defendant was still carrying on the business with Moroney, and that during the currency of the partnership he had committed a breach of his agreement with respect to her customers and the prescribed area.

Plaintiff prayed that defendant be restrained from breaking his agreement, and that an inquiry may be made by the Master as to what damages she had sustained by reason of his alleged breaches.

His Honor granted an injunction till the hearing of the suit.

DIVORCE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

CATTS v CATTS.

The Federal member for the Cook division, James Howard Catts, brought a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights against Eva Alice Catts, formerly Weber.

On respondent's behalf an issue of cruelty was raised, and respondent sought a judicial separation on this ground.

Mr. Windeyer and Mr. M'Kean (instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Stinson), appeared for petitioner, and Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Rowland (instructed by Mr. G. A. Raves), for respondent.

His Honor asked whether there was a possibility of a settlement being arranged.

The parties consulted, following a statement by petitioner's counsel, but it proved abortive, and the case proceeded.

Mr. Windeyer, opening petitioner's case, said since proceedings commenced Mr. Catts had been villified, his good name attacked, and his position in public life made intolerable, owing to the publication of the charges that had been brought against him. Other influences had been at work, which had proved a curse to these two young people. That influence had been the cause of very great bitterness between them, and if it could be removed it would be a very good thing for them both. Last Christmas Mrs. Catts wrote a letter to petitioner, who did not realise the spirit in which it was written. However, as Mrs. Catts did not bring her case before the Court, petitioner, after waiting, had to bring the matter forward himself, because as a public man he could not allow the matter to rest in the way it was. Counsel wanted his Honor and all persons interested in the case to understand that his client was compelled either to have the matter fought out or the whole of the charges against him publicly withdrawn. Petitioner was of opinion if he could accomplish that he and respondent could live together as happily as any other couple.

Giving evidence, petitioner said he married respondent at St. James's Church, Sydney, on August 12, 1907, in spite of opposition on the part of the wife's parents. After the marriage he took his wife to Melbourne, where he carried on his Parliamentary duties. They lived amicably at Melbourne until he returned home one day to find respondent crying. Asked what was the matter, respondent said she had received a letter from her mother to the effect that her father could not eat or sleep owing to the absence of respondent. As a result of her request regarding her father's illness, petitioner brought her to Sydney and took a house at Enmore. Subsequently, her parents took a house next door. This caused differences between them, because his wife spent a good deal of her time at her parents' house. She spent very little time at his house, which he had bought and paid £200 to furnish. In May, 1908, a child was born at the house of respondent's mother. Previous to that time he had had no serious quarrels with his wife or with his mother-in-law. Towards the end of 1908 a serious dispute took place between petitioner and his wife. Respondent said: "If you are not nice to my people, I won't be nice to yours." Petitioner had done everything possible to maintain amicable relations with her people. Except when there was a girl in the house, petitioner made his own breakfast. When petitioner returned to Sydney from Melbourne at week-ends he regularly took her to the theatre, and during their married life respondent had had frequent trips. On one occasion, during 1908, petitioner said he wished to take the baby to see his mother who was in business in Erskine-street. Respondent dressed the baby, but said he was not to allow the child to be kissed by petitioner's cousin. Petitioner said that was impossible, whereupon respondent refused to allow the child to leave the house. Petitioner had to take the child in spite of his wife's resistance. Petitioner, a little later, found his wife absent from home, and in response to a request from respondent, he agreed to allow her £2 10s a week. He also paid a number of small bills. A reconciliation followed upon terms which his wife imposed. Respondent then left Sydney for Katoomba. During 1909, while she was in the hospital, he saw her each week-end. After she was discharged, she refused to return home. She went again to her mother's house at Katoomba. In August, 1911 (witness added), his wife took offence because his brother called at the house and left without taking off his hat. A little later witness and his wife were walking in the Botanic Gardens, when she saw witness's brother approaching. She said she would snub him, so witness left her, and had tea at a relative's house. There was no quarrel about the matter subsequently. The following day he could not get into the house because it was locked, and had to have tea at his brother's. At night the house was still locked up. He gained an entrance at the back of the house, and found his bedroom and a room he used as an office locked. The day following the office was broken open. On each occasion the front door was locked, the back of the house wide open. A few nights later, after witness and respondent had retired, respondent jumped out of bed, rushed to the balcony, and screamed, into the street. His father-in-law entered the house by means of a key which witness thought had been lost, and asked witness what was the matter. Respondent said witness had been mauling her. Witness ordered his father-in-law out of the house, saying, there was a limit to his patience. Witness said he refused to accede to respondent's request to go and live with her parents. Respondent said she had made a promise to her father when he was dying to live with her mother. Respondent declined to accompany witness to Melbourne, whereupon he said that if she persisted in that attitude he would stop the money he was allowing her. However, he did not do so.

Petitioner, continuing, said he was now prepared to become reconciled to his wife, provided she consented to live with him away from present influences.

Questioned regarding a typist who worked at his house during the last Federal election, witness said his wife never objected to the arrangement. The typist had her meals at the house, and during part of the time she was there respondent was in the hospital. Witness and the typist did not wash up the dishes. Witness always did that himself. (Laughter.)

Cross-examined by Mr. Shand, K.C., witness said he had at all times acted as a gentleman towards his wife. While she was in the hospital he visited her whenever possible, and if he could not visit her he telephoned. He did not use violence towards her at any time, nor did he ever speak to her in a rough, ungentlemanly manner.

The case stands part heard.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

The hearing was continued of the case in which both the Master Printers and Connected Trades Association and the New South Wales Typographical Association appealed against the award of the Printing Trades Group No. 1 Board, covering hand compositors and linotype and other machine operators.

The Master Printers, for whom Mr. J. Stuart Thom appeared, asked for a variation of the award in order to revert to a 48-hour week, the rates of pay awarded in the 1910 award, the elimination of the union picnic day as a holiday, and to have the right to indenture apprentices solely to machine operating.

The union desired the award varied in order expressly to prohibit the employment of apprentices on machines unless indentured to the trade of hand compositing, and not then until they had had two years' experience with the hand-setting of type. The union also desired a higher multiple and the employment of the "point system" in the cast-up of matter set.

After a hearing extending over two weeks, Mr. Thom finally replied on behalf of the respondent employers, and his Honor reserved judgment.

INDUSTRIAL MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

(Before Mr. G. C. Addison, Chief Industrial Magistrate).

Sydney Arthur Josephson, of Goulburn and Brisbane streets, Sydney, trading as Waugh and Josephson, was charged with a breach of the Building Trades' (Group No. 7) Board Award, in failing to pay a journeyman the minimum hourly wage of 1s 6d.

Inspector Chambers appeared for the complainant, the Minister for Labour and Industry, and Mr. F. Wegg-Horne for the defence.

James Walker, the journeyman mentioned in the complaint, stated that he was a plumber and gasfitter, and when Inspector Chambers interviewed him on August 25 last, he was screwing a thread on a two-inch coil. In his work he used pipe-cutters, taps, hack-saw, and blade, tongs, blow-pipe, spirits and solder, hammer, chisels, files, and considered he was employed on plumbers' and gasfitters' work. He had been at defendant's for 11 years. Between August 1 and August 31 last he was paid £2 12s a week of 48 hours. He detailed other work he did.

After the evidence for the defence had been given Mr. Wegg-Horne submitted that the work that Walker did was incidental to the engineering trade in the building of refrigerating machinery.

Inspector Chambers pointed out that Walker was apprenticed to plumbing and went to defendant as a plumber's assistant. He said that cutting a thread on a wrought-iron pipe and bending the pipe used for carrying gas was plumber's work.

The reserved decision in this case was given yesterday, no order being made against the defendant, and £4 4s costs being made against complainant.

The Coal Cliff Collieries, Limited, 82 Pitt-street, were charged with a breach of the Metropolitan-Newcastle award of the Building Trades' (Group No. 1) Board (carpenters and joiners), in failing to pay a carpenter and joiner the minimum hourly wage of 1s 6d.

John Hill, the carpenter and joiner mentioned, said he had been for 14 years on and off with the colliery, and found his own tools. He worked as a "general hand," and served his time at colliery work—meaning by "general hand" that he was a carpenter. He had repaired the engineer's cottage, about three-quarters of a mile from the colliery.

Mr. Morgan, for the defence, contended that the award pointed out that collieries were exempted.

Mr. Waugh, for the prosecution, contended that as the great bulk of the houses were three-quarters of a mile from the colliery, they were not "in or about" the colliery.

The magistrate held that the work was "in or about" the mine, and that the employee was not covered by the award mentioned in the complaint when doing the work alleged in the complaint. He made no order against defendant, and allowed £1 costs against complainant.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Acting Judge Hamilton and juries.)

Mr. J. N. Mason Crown Prosecutor.

PASSENGER'S LUGGAGE STOLEN.

William Ellison, 58, was charged with stealing a portmanteau and contents and an overcoat, the property of Ernest Albert Freeman, at Sydney on March 11. There was a second count of receiving Mr. Freeman's property well knowing it to be stolen.

The accused conducted his own defence.

The case for the Crown was that Norman Freeman, a cadet at the Duntroon Military College, went to the Central Railway Station to get a train for Queanbeyan, en route to the college, and when near the ticket office he put the bag, to which was strapped the overcoat, on the platform, and turned round to look at the clock. Very shortly afterwards he missed the property.

Ellison, in his defence, said that he was asked by a man to carry the bag for him to the tram. He denied that he stole it.

The jury convicted Ellison on the charge of stealing, and he was sentenced to two years' hard labour in Bathurst Gaol.

WINDOW SMASHER CONVICTED.

Joseph Cedric, 28, pleaded not guilty to a charge of maliciously injuring a plate-glass window, the property of Margaret Cross, at Redfern, on March 19, doing damage to the amount of £22.

The accused was undefended.

Cedric, in his defence, said that for three years he had been working in water in a sewer, and he suffered with severe pains in his head as a consequence. On the day in question he took drink in an endeavour to alleviate the pains, and he got drunk. He did not know what he was doing when he broke the window. He bore Mrs. Cross no ill-will, and was prepared to make restitution.

An official of the Water and Sewerage Board, under whom the accused had worked for some time, gave him an excellent character.

The jury returned to court with a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation to mercy on the ground that Cedric was unconscious of what he was doing through drink, but his Honor said that the recommendation could not be accepted in that form, and it again retired. Shortly afterwards it returned with a verdict of guilty, adding a rider recommending Cedric to mercy on account of his previous good character.

Cedric was bound over on his own recognisance of £40 to appear for sentence when called upon.

CHARGE AGAINST A YOUNG MAN.

Arthur Randall, a young man, was charged with assaulting Willie Guy, at Sydney, on March 20, and robbing him of £4 10s 6d.

Mr. P. K. White appeared for the defence.

The Crown alleged that while Guy, a Chinese, was standing in Campbell-street, with £4 10s 6d in his hand, the accused rushed at him, punched him on the jaw, and ran away with the money.

The accused, who described himself as a plumber, denied that he was the person who robbed Guy, and several witnesses deposed that at the hour of the alleged assault (7.30 p.m.) and for some time after the accused was in their company playing dominoes and drinking at an hotel.

The jury found Randall guilty of assault, with intent to rob.

On pleading not guilty to a charge of having maliciously damaged a quantity of furniture, the property of Mary Payne, at Sydney, on February 6, the Crown Prosecutor said that the charge would not be proceeded with.

Randall was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour in Goulburn Gaol. His Honor said that the particular form of crime of which the prisoner had been convicted was very prevalent at present, and must be put down by severe sentences.

HEARING OF APPEALS.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

PENALTY VARIED.

James Lillicot, who was sentenced to two months' hard labour in Darlinghurst Gaol by Mr. Barnett, S.M., on being convicted at the Water Police Court on February 25 on a charge of unlawfully assaulting James Fleming on the previous day, appealed against his conviction, but the appeal was dismissed, though the penalty was varied by the substitution of a fine of £3. The appellant, for whom Mr. C. B. Teece appeared, was ordered to pay £3 3s costs. Mr. Herbert Harris represented the Crown.

DECISIONS RESERVED.

The Court reserved its decisions in the appeal of James Crawford against his conviction on a charge of being the keeper of a common gaming-house, and in that of George Morgan, who had been found guilty of being found in a common gaming-house.

FORT-STREET SCHOOL.

MR CARMICHAEL PRESENTS PRIZES.

SITE TO BE RESUMED.

Mr. Carmichael (Minister for Education), who was accompanied by Mrs. Carmichael, presented the annual prizes at Fort-street School yesterday afternoon. Mr. A. J. Kilgour (headmaster) presided.

Miss A. Partridge (headmistress) read a report of the Girls' High School. Many of the school ex-teachers, she said, were holding their own brilliantly at the University in the arts, medicine, and science faculties.

Mr. Kilgour, in presenting the report of the boys' school, said that the High School syllabus (four-years' course) had been in operation throughout the year. The wider range of reading and liberal courses of study were making a strong appeal to the pupil, and cultivating in him a taste for literature and science which would more effectually equip him for his life's work. Sixteen boys were awarded bursaries to enable them to enter the University. In the intermediate examination 123 out of 136 boys passed. The best pass was secured by Percy Anderson, a boy who had won a scholarship at a little school (of not 20 pupils) on the Dorrigo. Ninety-seven of the old boys had been successful in examinations in their various faculties at the University. At the general sports meeting Firth had proved himself the champion athlete of the school, and at the swimming carnival Kinninmont won the 100 yards championship, 100 yards all-schools' championship, and the 16 years championship of all schools. Paling was elected captain of the school in December last.

Mr. Carmichael said that the highly satisfactory reports gave evidence that the traditions of the school had been worthily upheld during the year. "Tradition is the beacon that is constantly fed by noble lives, always to be placed in front of us for guidance on life's stormy sea," said the Minister. There had been no more heartening influence than those old—some very old—pupils who had assembled at the annual reunions of the school. He was diffident about referring to the "old" girls of the school, though women were happily becoming conspicuous in the life of the Fort-street School. Dr. Mawson was a Fort-street boy, and one of the most distinguished men in the Yale University—Wellisch—was numbered among the old pupils. He might mention Sir Edmund Barton, and many others. Mr. Kilgour had spoken of the necessity of a new building in the near future. "We recognise," said Mr. Carmichael, "that Fort-street should have been attended to a considerable time ago. But our supply of money is limited. I am afraid the Fort-street school will have to go, because the various railway tunnel projects will encroach on the present site. But whatever the site of your future school, you will carry to it the traditions of the old school."

UNKNOWN INCENDIARY.

An inquiry into the nature and origin of a fire which occurred at 12 Lewisham-street, Dulwich Hill, on March 25, was held by the Acting City Coroner (Mr. Gates) yesterday.

Five different fires were discovered on the premises.

George N. Whitfield, owner and occupier of the premises, said that he did not know of anyone who would do himself or family an injury, and he could not account for the fire. He estimated his loss, including the piano, at £150.

The Coroner found that the premises had been wilfully set on fire by some person unknown.

POLICE COURTS.

CRUELTY CHARGE.

Gus Ryan appeared before Mr. M'Kenery, D.S.M., at the Water Police Court, on Monday, on a charge of driving a horse which was suffering from sore shoulders. Defendant pleaded guilty.

A fine of £1, with 6s costs, was imposed.

EXCESSIVE MOTOR SPEED.

At the Paddington Police Court yesterday, before Mr. J. L. King, S.M., Milton Miller was charged with driving taxi-cab No. 278 at a faster rate than four miles an hour past a tram in Oxford-street. William Joseph Doughty stated that on the 25th ult., at 8.45 a.m., at Oxford-street, near the William-street corner, a young lady left the kerb to board a stationary tram. The taxi came along at the rate of 18 miles an hour. Its off mudguard struck the girl on the hip, and lifted her off the ground, throwing her on to the footpath.

The defendant said that he was travelling at about 15 miles an hour. The young lady stepped in front of his car. He blew the horn three or four times. The tram had not stopped when the girl was knocked over. He applied the brakes, but the car skidded, as the road was greasy owing to recent rain. He took the girl to the hospital.

A fine of £3, with 18s costs, was inflicted, in default one month's imprisonment.

INTERESTING SELECTIONS FROM THE WORLD'S SMARTEST BEAUTY ARTICLES—SIMPLE RECIPES MOST EFFECTIVE.

TO KILL ROOTS OF SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.
"Home Science."

Women annoyed with disfiguring growths of superfluous hair wish to know not merely how to temporarily remove the hair, but how to kill the hair roots permanently. For this purpose pure powdered pheminol may be applied directly to the objectionable hair growth. The recommended treatment is designed not only to instantly remove the hair, also, but to actually kill the roots so that the growth will not return. About an ounce of Pheminol, obtainable from the chemist, should be sufficient. * * * For complexions inclined to be oily many smart women are now using just the natural slacine of orange blossoms. It is perfectly harmless, makes a capital greaseless cream which holds the powder perfectly, and does not encourage the growth of hair. * * * Disagreeable body odours can be instantly neutralised by the occasional application of a little powdered (white) pergol to the affected surfaces.

OXYGEN TO REMOVE BAD COMPLEXIONS.
"Useful Hints."

Oxygen has the peculiar faculty of destroying waste matter in the body without affecting healthy tissues in the slightest degree. Sallow, blotchy, and lifeless complexions are caused by the accumulation of waste matter which adheres stubbornly to the surface of the skin. The most practical way to apply oxygen to this waste matter is to use mercolised wax, such as may be obtained at the chemists' shops. It should be rubbed well into the skin for several nights, and washed off in the mornings, like cold cream. In contact with the skin, it releases oxygen, and thus clears the skin of the disfiguring waste matter. It is perfectly harmless, pleasant to use, and indeed very beneficial as a skin food. * * * To bring a natural red colour to the lips, rub them with a soft stick of prolactum. * * * For tired, hot, and perspiring feet use a teaspoonful of powdered onalite in a foot bath.

THE MAGNETISM OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR.
"Applied Arts."

Beautiful hair adds immensely to the personal magnetism of both men and women. Actresses and smart women are ever on the lookout for any harmless thing that will increase the natural beauty of their hair. The latest method is to use pure stallax as a shampoo on account of the peculiarly glossy, fluffy, and wavy effect which it leaves. As stallax has never been used much for this purpose, it comes to the chemist only in sealed original packages, enough for twenty-five or thirty shampoos. A teaspoonful of the fragrant stallax granules, dissolved in a cup of hot water, is more than sufficient for each shampoo. It is very beneficial and stimulating to the hair, apart from its beautifying effect. * * * For an actual hair grower nothing equals pure boranium. It is quite harmless, and sets the hair roots tingling with new life. * * * The use of rouge is almost always obvious, but powdered colliandum gives a perfectly natural colour, and defies detection.

THE POWDER PUFF PASSES.
"Boudoir Talks."

Every normal woman is always interested in any plan by which she can quickly enhance her beauty, provided the plan is perfectly safe and simple. Ever since the discovery that ordinary clemintine, such as any chemist can supply, is an instantaneous and harmless beautifier, there has been a growing demand for it from smart women everywhere. They usually get about an ounce and add just enough water to dissolve it. A little of this perfectly harmless lotion gives a beautiful complexion to any face instantly. It renders face powders quite unnecessary. Moreover, its use cannot be detected. The skin is instantly beautified, but appears perfectly natural under the closest scrutiny. * * * To make the eyelashes grow long, dark, and curling, apply a little mennaline with the finger tips occasionally. It is absolutely harmless, and beautifies the eyebrows as well. * * * Pilenta soap is the most satisfactory for all complexions. It even works well in cold or hard water.

PRINCE ALFRED HOSPITAL.

GREAT INSTITUTION.

THE NURSES' HOME OPENED.

In the presence of a large gathering, the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital was held yesterday. The Governor, Sir Gerald Strickland, presided, and additional interest was given the gathering by the opening of the additions to the Nurses' Home.

Professor Anderson Stuart, in the opening address, said:—"I hope you do not believe in omens, because this is the thirteenth time that I, as chairman of the Hospital, have to move the adoption of the report of the hospital. In spite of the omen, I have very little but good to say of the institution. The number of patients treated in the hospital wards during the year was 7297, of whom 4366 were cured. The number of available beds in the hospital was 392, and, as the average number of patients resident daily was 394.7, it is obvious that the average number of patients was greater than the number of available beds. The number of operations was somewhat less than last year, owing to the fact that during the smallpox epidemic some of the surgical wards had to be closed to the admission of patients. The Pathological Department has during the year been reorganised and developed, and Dr. Hamilton Tebbutt, who has formerly been a resident medical officer in the hospital, and who had spent three years in Europe, specially engaged in studying this kind of work, has been placed in charge of the department.

During the year an important step was taken by the board, in waiting upon Mr. Flowers, at that time Acting Chief Secretary, requesting assistance from the Government in the erection of an isolation department. Mr. Flowers was good enough to promise to recommend the Cabinet to adopt a scheme which had been submitted by the board, providing for about 110 cases of all classes, and, although political exigencies make money scarce, the board is not without hope that the sum of £7000, which was promised, will be forthcoming at an early date.

"The out-patient and casualty department treated 25,000 people, and, as each person attended twice, the amount of the work accomplished by the department has been very great indeed. The nursing staff, under a very able matron, has carried out its work quite satisfactorily. The board has been occupied in making the conditions of life for the nurses as much better as lay within their power. Each nurse in this hospital has one whole clear day per week off duty. With the very ample accommodation provided in the new Nurses' Home, to be opened by Mr. Flowers to-day, the position of nurses in the hospital will be greatly ameliorated.

"In connection with the ear, nose, and throat department, an annexe has been provided for 20 patients."

Mr. H. E. Kater, M.L.C., seconding the motion for the adoption of the report said: "In submitting to you a statement of our finances for 1913, I have to inform you that we have had a deficiency of revenue to expenditure of £4208 18s 11d. This is the largest deficiency we have yet had, but I must explain that it was not due to the ordinary expenditure of the hospital exceeding the revenue by that amount, but to the fact that we carried out large and important new works, and paid for them out of revenue. Apart from these works, the board was able to carry on the regular business of the hospital out of its ordinary revenue, which position was due to the fact that the Government came to our rescue with an addition to our revenue of £7000 a year in the form of a special subsidy. But for that assistance we should have had a large deficit. Our revenue for the year, owing to this help, was £45,441 14s 6d. The raising of wages is one of the difficulties with which the board are faced. The expenditure on salaries and wages has been on the upward grade for some years past. In 1913 it was £20,619. For the current year it is estimated to be at least £23,000.

The election of directors resulted in the following directorate being chosen:—Mr. M. Gotthelf, Mr. S. Hordern, Sir Philip Sydney Jones, Mr. H. E. Kater, M.L.C., and Colonel Macarthur Onslow, M.L.A.

The Lord Mayor, in proposing a vote of thanks to the Government for the aid given the hospital, said the Minister, Mr. Flowers, would probably make a mental note of the fact that the £7000 would be required again this year. The hospital would need £50,000 to supply all its needs.

Sir Matthew Harris seconded the motion, which was carried with acclamation.

The Archbishop of Sydney, Dr. Wright, in proposing a vote of thanks to the hon. medical officers, paid a tribute to the splendid work done for humanity's sake. All the hospitals had on their medical staffs men of whom the whole State and the Empire should be proud. It was a great service rendered generously and liberally, without thought of fee to the poorest patient.

Mr. J. J. Cohen seconded the motion, and voiced the great debt which the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital owed to the medical staff.

Miss Strickland presented prizes to the following nurses:—

Third Year: Nurse Barclay Phillips, 1, Nurse Glasson, 2. Second Year: Nurse Johns, 1; Nurse Traill, 2. First Year: Nurse Grant 1; Nurse Sinclair, 2. Cookery: Nurse Traill. Gold Medal: Nurse Kircaldie.

Sir Gerald Strickland, after expressing the pleasure it gave him to attend, said he was glad that Professor Anderson Stuart had discovered that omens were not dangerous, for 1913 was a most prosperous year for New South Wales, while it was the year in which these two great hospitals achieved such an increased standard of efficiency. Sometimes he was tempted to be not quite well and come for a while to the hospital. No one could suggest that Mr. Flowers could have done better than he did with that £7000 of the people's money. Few steps had received such general and heartfelt commendation as the building of this new Nurses' Home. (Applause.)

THE NURSES' HOME.

Mr. Flowers, in declaring open the additions to the Nurses' Home, said: "The work of this great institution must go on. As far as I am concerned it will go on. You might not have gathered much comfort from the Estimates, but I think I will be able to do something more for this magnificent hospital before the beginning of the next year." The Archbishop had praised the doctors, but he (Mr. Flowers) paid his tribute to the nurses. They talked about getting the public to subscribe, and keeping out of the clutches of the Government, but the tendency of the times, in spite of all, was that they would always have to go to whichever Government was in power for assistance. If the public failed to contribute, the Government must come forward and make good what the public had refused to give by voluntary subscriptions. He had great pleasure in declaring the Nurses' Home open. (Applause.)

Dr. Purser proposed a vote of thanks to the Governor and Mr. Flowers, and the vote was enthusiastically given.

THE CHAFF BOYCOTT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Would you permit a few lines on the above matter from one who has no axe to grind in commenting on the situation? It is surely evident that those responsible for boycotting chaff, the farmers' product (who are the backbone of this country), are not aware of the trials these men undergo, the risks they have to take in the matter of uncertainty of seasons, etc., of the dry time just passed, the troubles and delays in getting trucks, etc., and their product to market, of all descriptions. Such action is likely to recoil on people for such unfair treatment. Something should urgently be done at all times, and in all cases, to assist the man on the land, and no obstacle of any kind should be allowed to delay the prompt handling of every product from the producer. It is a pity it cannot be realised how much it means to the farmer in the matter of quick despatch of his product. I am, etc.,

G. L. WEAVER.

Leura, April 4.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I beg to protest against your correspondent "E.R.L.'s" protest as being based on false information. He is utterly astray in saying that the "R.C. religion teaches that there is no hope of salvation for those who do not believe in it." This, on the contrary, is what Pius the Ninth says in an encyclical of 1868:—"It is known to us and to you that they who suffer from invincible ignorance about our most holy religion, and who live an honourable and upright life, carefully observing the law of nature and its commands, imprinted by God on the hearts of all, and are ready to obey God, can, by the operation of the power of divine light and grace, attain eternal life." The fact is, as the Pope's words intimate, the R.C. Church is much wider in her view of salvation than Protestantism. It is the Protestant view, as enshrined in the Anglican Articles, that all the works of infidels are sins, whereas it is the teaching of Catholic theologians that the veriest savage that never heard of the name of Christ may, by believing in a Moral Governor and living up to his imperfect lights, attain salvation.

I am, etc., M.L.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

ENGLISH TOUR OF 1908.

THE FINANCES.

James Joseph Giltinan, salesman, of Gordon, whose estate was compulsorily sequestrated on January 28 last, on the petition of A. C. Rofe, was yesterday examined before the Registrar in Bankruptcy (Mr. F. H. Salusbury), by the official assignee (Mr. Lloyd).

Giltinan said his bankruptcy had been caused by a lawsuit instituted by Arthur Camden Rofe, in respect of money lent to the New South Wales Rugby Football League, to enable a team of footballers to tour England in 1908. He was appointed manager by the League. Rofe financed the tour, at the League's request, through him. There was no guarantee, but a document, which stated that Rofe was to be paid out of the proceeds of the matches, and that he was to receive a bonus if there were any profits. There were no profits. He (bankrupt) acted for the league. He was the responsible party, because he signed a promissory note, which Rofe held. Rofe instituted proceedings against him, and he defended the action. The jury gave a verdict against him, and he was ordered to pay. Later on, Rofe petitioned for the sequestration of his estate. When the team went to England, he (bankrupt) was in partnership with Victor Trumper in a sports and mercery business in George-street, Sydney. He retired from the partnership. Trumper found the money for the business. Bankrupt got a salary and an equal share of the profits. When he joined the partnership he had a cottage at Petersham, the deeds of which he had lodged as a guarantee for an overdraft. He subsequently sold the property to his mother for £450. He received the purchase money (£180), which he deposited in a business for himself in 1909. He carried on the business for 12 months, and then it was known as J. J. Giltinan, Ltd.

The football tour resulted in a loss of £450. He was to get £1 a week out of the tour and an equal share with the players. He admitted the verdict in the action was against him; but it was a verdict given in error. He signed the p.n. at Rofe's suggestion. Rofe advanced £2000, and he paid him back £1800, in addition to that amount Rofe was to receive a bonus of £200, which was to be paid out of the profits of the tour, but there were no profits. Rofe and he were on excellent terms at the time he signed the promissory note. Rofe was entitled to the money, but bankrupt did not owe it to him. He did not institute proceedings against the Rugby League, but had often written to it. Rofe also made applications to the league for the money. There was no agreement between him and the chairman of the league as to the responsibility he took on. The league executive was not the same now as when he took the team Home. When he came back from England the league, which had been altered, declined responsibility. He made application to the league for repayment of the money to Rofe. They refused to pay, and said they were not indebted, and that the tour was a private speculation on his (Giltinan's) part. Before he went to England he was empowered to take steps to see about the financial matters in connection with the tour, and a resolution to that effect was in the league's books. Mr. Hoyle was chairman of the league at the time. When he came back the league declined to take any notice of him. He had no money to sue the league, but he told Rofe that he would sue them if he (Rofe) found the money, but he declined.

Rofe had made frequent applications to him for payment, but he would not pay him, because he did not consider he was liable. "Rofe was quite certain that all he had to do was to sit back in his chair, and he would land £200," but it did not turn out as anticipated. He had three life assurance policies in the A.M.P. Society for £250, £300, and £500 respectively. He was now drawing a salary of £5 a week. His agreement with the firm would terminate in June next. In addition to his salary, he got 10 per cent. commission if there were any profits. The firm of J. J. Giltinan, Ltd., was formed on November 26, 1909. It went into liquidation in June, 1912. During the time he was in the company he drew £6 a week, in addition to commission. The furniture belonged to his wife.

In reply to Rofe, bankrupt said Rofe entered into the matter of the league tour freely. According to the agreement, which Rofe drew up, one-half of the proceeds of each match was to be remitted to him. He, unfortunately, undertook to give Rofe a personal guarantee, but at that time he was secretary of the Rugby League. If he had still been secretary the amount would have been paid back to Rofe, but unfortunately he was displaced as secretary before his return from England, and he had never been back on the executive of the league. He intended the money to be paid from the funds of the league.

In reply to the official assignee, bankrupt said that while he was manager of Giltinan, Limited, he did work for Rofe. There was no clause in his agreement with the company restricting him from doing work in his own time that he was familiar with.

The meeting closed, and the public examination was declared concluded.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

LATE MR. J. R. WOODHOUSE.

Probate has been granted of the will of the late Mr. Joseph Richard Woodhouse, grazier, of Fairfield, Wagga Wagga, who died at Carabost, near Wagga Wagga, on December 9 last. Testator appointed his wife, Mary Ann Woodhouse, and Alfred James Lukins, grazier, of Corryong (Mrs. Lukins predeceased the testator), executrix and executor, and trustee of his estate, the whole of which passes to his widow and children. He directed that £200 should be invested for each of his children and allowed to accumulate until the sons attained the age of 21, and the daughters attained their majority or married before that time.

The net value of the estate was sworn at £9972 7s 1d.

ESTATE OF THE LATE MR. W. ONUS.

Probate has been granted of the will of the late Mr. William Onus, grazier, of Inverell. The testator, who died on December 5 last, appointed his wife, Emma Maria Onus, his son, Sydney James Onus, grazier, of Gravesend; and John Borthwick, solicitor, of Inverell, executors and trustees of his estate, the whole of which he bequeathed to his trustees upon trust for his wife during her life or widowhood. After the death or re-marriage of his wife, the grazing properties at Gravesend, and Avon Downs, in the Warialda district, and elsewhere, together with the livestock, etc., were to be held by his trustees, who were empowered to carry on the grazing business for a certain period, in trust for his sons, Sydney James, Alick, and William. The residue of the real estate was to be held in trust for his daughters in equal shares; and the residue of the personal estate in trust for all his children.

The net value of the estate was sworn at £17,016 4s 3d.

LATE MR. W. J. GALL.

Probate has been granted of the will of the late Mr. William James Gall, grazier, of Tycannah, near Moree. The testator, who died at Randwick on December 6 last, appointed his son, Gordon Logan Gall, of Tycannah, his son-in-law, Arthur Osborne Williamson, bank manager, of Bellata, and John Thomas Crane, agent, of Moree, executors and trustees of his estate. He directed his trustees to pay his sons, William Henry and John Edward Gall, £1000 each, and to invest £300, and devote the income therefrom or such part of the principal as they deemed fit to the maintenance and education of the daughter of his late son, Herbert James Gall; the residue to be paid to her on her attaining the age of 21. He authorised the trustees to carry on the grazing business until his youngest child attained the age of 21, and to appoint his son George Logan Gall overseer.

Testator further directed the trustees to pay his widow an annuity of £320 out of the income of the estate, and to allow her to reside at the homestead till the youngest child attained the age of 21, and to pay her such further sum as they deemed reasonable for the upkeep of the homestead, and the maintenance and advancement in life of the children. He also directed that on the youngest child's attaining the age of 21, the whole of the estate was to be sold, and the proceeds, with the exception of £7000, divided equally among his children, other than his sons William Henry and John Edward, such shares to be paid to each on his or her attaining the age of 25. The trustees were to invest the £7000, and pay the income therefrom to his widow during her life, and after her death to call in the investments and divide them equally among the children entitled in the distribution.

The net value of the estate was sworn at £417,83 1s 2d, the bulk of which consisted of real estate.

LATE MR. F. T. WATKINS.

The net value of the estate of the late Mr. Francis Thomas Watkins, of Marsden-street, Parramatta, has been estimated for probate purposes at £27,423 1s 9d. The testator, who died on December 13 last, appointed his wife, Rosalie Ann Watkins, his daughter, Alice Gertrude Watkins, and the Perpetual Trustee Company, Ltd., executors and trustees of his estate, the whole of which he bequeathed to his trustees in trust for his wife during her life; after her death, the estate to be divided equally among all his children.

IMPERSONATION.

POLICE REPORT.

VOTING AT WILLOUGHBY.

In the Legislative Assembly last night, Mr. Wade asked whether the Government had received the report of the police regarding the impersonation in the Willoughby electorate.

Mr. Cann said he had received the report that afternoon. He had just glanced through it, but it was not in a fit state to lay on the table of the House. It was available to the leader of the Opposition or the member for the district, who could see it. But he could not lay the report on the table of the House in its present condition.

Mr. Thrower asked whether the Government would take into consideration the advisability of appointing a Royal Commission to inquire into the roll-stuffing in the Macquarie electorate.

Mr. Cann said he had received the report from the Macquarie electorate, and as a result he had sent one case to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Mr. Wade further asked how many cases had been reported on by the police of persons having left the district months before the poll took place, and who then voted.

Mr. Cann said he believed the report disclosed four cases.

Mr. Larkin asked whether it was not a fact that in the case of where a dead man was supposed to have voted, there were a father and son of the same name. The father, who was dead, was marked off as having voted, whereas the son voted and was not marked off.

Mr. Cann said there was a case of the kind reported.

Mr. Wade asked, after he had perused the report, if Mr. Cann's attention had been drawn to a statement in the police report on the Willoughby election with regard to one elector, who, according to the report, was away from Willoughby in the country at the time of the second ballot, and voted as an absentee voter. Would the Minister have inquiries made as to the statement, and ascertain, in view of the fact that there were no absentee votes in the country, how this person could honestly vote as an absentee for the second ballot.

Mr. Cann admitted it was quite true that there was no polling going on in the country at the time the second ballot took place in the city. He had noticed the case in question, and there were several others.

Mr. Wade: All illegal votes.

Mr. Cann said his intention was to send the cases to the Justice Department, to see if these people could not be brought to justice.

Mr. Larkin: In view of the satisfactory state of affairs generally shown in the police report on the Willoughby election, will the leader of the Opposition be given an opportunity of apologising for his statements? (Opposition laughter, and cries of "Order!")

Mr. Wade: Will the Minister give me an opportunity of a thorough investigation of the whole electorate by a Royal Commission, and, if I am proved wrong, I will apologise?

Mr. Cann said that, from what he had gathered from the report, he did not think a Royal Commission would be justified. He would act as he had always done, and wherever there was a case of personation or dual voting, it would be sent to the Justice Department for action.

"SOMETHING RADICALLY WRONG."

Speaking on the impersonation in the Willoughby election at the second ballot, Mr. Wade said last night in an interview that Mr. Cann had given him access to the police report embodying the result of inquiries into the alleged irregularities. He had only been able to give a cursory glance over the papers, but it was sufficient to disclose, in his opinion, something was radically wrong.

"In March last," remarked Mr. Wade, "I said I had 21 definite cases of impersonation and about 12 as to which I was not able to say anything definite. In forwarding these to the Minister I also included a number of cases of persons who could not be found at the addresses given on the electoral roll. The investigations now show impersonations pure and simple 17, persons who voted and could not be traced 12, persons who having left the district for periods ranging from two to twelve months prior to the election, and thus were unqualified to vote, 31, persons said to have recorded absentee votes 5. None of these 31 persons voted at the first ballot, but came into action on the occasion of the second ballot. I want to know now, is the Government prepared to take action against these people?"

"This makes a total of 65 votes out of the small number I was able to examine, and I have no doubt if a searching inquiry is made this list would be amplified. It makes it perfectly clear the present electoral system is full of defects, when a person is encouraged by a law which can be broken with impunity."

LAND TAX APPEAL.

VALUE OF AN ESTATE.

HIGH COURT'S FINDING.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In the matter of the appeal of the owners of Killingworth Estate, near Yea, Mrs. Christina Morrison, Mrs. Margaret Buchanan, and Miss Robertson, against the Commonwealth Land Tax Commissioner, judgment was delivered in the High Court this morning by Mr. Justice Isaacs.

The law points had been previously decided by the High Court, and to-day the decision was founded upon the facts of the case. The owners in the valuation of the property for 1910 gave the improved value as £94,611, and the unimproved value as £44,482, the tax being £381, while the Crown assessed the improved value at £91,000, and the unimproved value at £75,000, and the tax at £984.

Mr. Justice Isaacs, after reviewing the evidence, said that the best method in this case of arriving at the unimproved value was to deduct the improvements from the total improved value. He arrived at the value of the land as approximately £84,000, or £6 12s 6d per acre. Estimating the added value given to the land at the time of assessment at £30,000, the unimproved value would figure out at £54,000. Accordingly the assessment of the unimproved value estimated by the Commonwealth Land Tax Commissioner at £75,000 would be reduced to £54,000, less the statutory reduction of £5000. The Commissioner to pay appellants the costs of the appeal.

PACIFIC CABLE.

GREATER CONCESSIONS NEEDED.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

Speaking at Dunedin, the Postmaster-General (Mr. Rhodes), referring to the Pacific cable rates, said that though the rates were now lower he did not think the Pacific Cable Board was granting sufficient concessions to New Zealand. It was not running the cable on commercial lines. The cable was annually utilised to the extent of three million words, and its capacity was from seven to ten million words. If Canada, by establishing wireless communication with England, could break down the cable rates, they ought to receive the benefit in the matter of rates. Meanwhile the Government would not relax its efforts for a reduction of cable rates. Mr. Rhodes went on to say that the Murray multiplex transmitter was expected to do a great deal for them. Mr. Murray was a young New Zealander, who had thought out a simple system for facilitating telegraph work. By his transmitter 12 operators could be employed on one line, six at each end. At present, by means of a quadruplex, four operators could work at each end. The Murray transmitter, it was estimated, would enable from 240 to 280 messages to be sent over a line in an hour. The same number of messages by the quadruplex would require three cables across the Straits, three land lines, and 24 operators.

SMALL-ARMS FACTORY.

MEN AND MACHINES.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Millen) was in conference all yesterday with representatives of the employees at the Small Arms Factory, Lithgow, the local branch of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, and the manager of the factory, Mr. Wright. Messrs. Howe and Carr, M.'s P., were also present.

The conference was the outcome of the report submitted by Mr. Swinburne, a member of the Interstate Commission, as to the working of the factory, the installation of certain machinery, and the grade of men who might be employed on the machines.

It was decided, at yesterday's conference, to refer certain matters arising out of the report to the Industrial Registrar, Mr. Holme, for interpretation as to the State award and practice.

Mr. Swinburne's report recommended that, pending the obtaining of an award from the Federal Arbitration Court, the State award should be followed.

MURRAY WATERS.

BIG SCHEME.

A GIGANTIC STORAGE WEIR.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

A conference of Ministers representing the Commonwealth and New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, interested in the question of the control of the River Murray, was held on Saturday afternoon.

After a sitting lasting three and a half hours, the delegates rose without having reached a settlement of the differences. The Commonwealth, New South Wales, and Victorian delegates were able to agree on a proposed final arrangement, but the South Australian representatives were not satisfied with it, and a deadlock was reached.

Mr. Cook, at the close of the conference, briefly announced that a further conference would be held on Monday, when it was hoped a settlement would be reached.

The problem before the conference was the settlement of the old question of irrigation versus navigation.

The representatives of Victoria and New South Wales were, it is believed, able to stand together at the conference upon common ground. If the Commonwealth and South Australia would provide for navigation in the Murray, they were quite prepared to agree to a minimum flow of water, being allowed for that purpose. Both Mr. Watt and Mr. Holman were able to point out that their States would find little difficulty in coming to an agreement for the construction of storages on the Upper Murray for their common benefit. An immediate proposal was for the erection of a gigantic storage weir at Cumberoona, just above Albury, or at some other more suitable site with a capacity of one million acre feet, which is considerably larger than the great Barren Jack storage in New South Wales. The cost would probably amount to £1,350,000.

The conference had also information before it to the effect that Victoria had under consideration schemes for a further storage in the Goulburn River above the existing weir, to add about 500,000 acre feet to the storage obtained from that river for irrigation purposes.

SHIPPING MISHAPS.

DUNMORE REFLOATED.

SMART SALVAGE WORK.

The steamer Dunmore, which was beached in Lady Bay on Friday morning last, after a severe collision with the steamer Kiama, was successfully refloated early yesterday morning, and is now safe in Jubilee Dock, Balmain.

Captain E. Montague Williams, assistant-surveyor to the Sydney Marine Underwriters' Association, has had charge of this difficult piece of salvage work. Referring to the task last night, Captain Williams said that the hole in the Dunmore's bow was patched up on Saturday last. An extra bulkhead was also built, and a good deal of caulking done. This did not stop the water from coming along the bilges, but prevented any great inrush. The tug Stormcock then endeavoured to haul the vessel off, but the hawser carried away, and got foul of the tug's propellor. All hopes of getting the vessel off with that tide were then abandoned.

The services of the tug Champion were secured on Sunday, but, as the tide was poor, the attempt to refloat the vessel was not successful. Shortly before 3 a.m. yesterday the Champion made a second attempt, and succeeded in getting the Dunmore off. The Champion then towed the Dunmore stern foremost to Double Bay, the tug Britannia being lashed alongside the steamer, in order to steer her.

At Double Bay a further examination of the vessel's bottom was made by a diver. This was deemed necessary, as the range at Lady Bay was too great to allow of a satisfactory examination being made there. After some more caulking had been done, and the vessel had been further patched up with canvas, she was towed stern first to Jubilee Dock, and reached there at about 5 p.m.

MYEE AGROUND.

AT NAMBUCCA HEADS.

POSITION GETTING WORSE.

Information was received in Sydney yesterday to the effect that the North Coast Company's steamer Myee had gone ashore at Nambucca Heads on Sunday last, and that her position was getting worse.

According to a telegram received yesterday, the Myee was crossing the bar when she ran aground. During the night she was washed up on to the Spit, and, according to the telegram, it was feared that the bottom of the vessel had been damaged.

Captain Cuthbert, of the Sydney Marine Underwriters' Association, who left Sydney at the week-end to proceed to the Tweed River, where the North Coast Company's steamer Coolebar was aground, was intercepted, and has now proceeded to Nambucca Heads, in order to see what can be done for the Myee.

The North Coast Steam Navigation Company, Ltd., received a telegram yesterday, stating that the Myee had moved further up the spit.

COOLEBAR REFLOATED.

The steamer Coolebar, which had been ashore on the bar at Tweed Heads since the middle of last week, was, according to telegraphic advice received yesterday, refloated early on Sunday morning. After floating off, she proceeded up the river, and is apparently undamaged.

H.M.A.S. TINGIRA SPORTS.

A large number of people accepted the invitations of the captain and officers of H.M.A.S. Tingira to the athletic sports at Lyne Park on Saturday afternoon. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Edeline Strickland were present, accompanied by the Misses Strickland, General and Mrs. Finn and the Misses Finn, and attended by Major M'Naught, A.D.C. Rear Admiral Sir George Patey and Lady Patey were also present, and were attended by Flag-lieutenant Poe and Mrs. Poe. Lady Edeline Strickland wore a pale champagne-tinted frock, arranged with heavy lace and touched with black, and her hat was massed with black and white ostrich plumes; Miss Strickland wore an apple-green coat and skirt, and hat to match, and the Misses Cecilia and Mabel Strickland were in white. Lady Patey appeared in a dainty grown of white voile, embroidered in shades of pink, and worn with a pink sash, and her black lace hat showed a crown of black velvet. Other visitors included Lady Cullen, Mrs. Wright and the Misses Wright, Archbishop Kelly, the Rev. Father Sherin, Flag-captain Radcliffe, Archdeacon D'Arcy-Irvine and the Misses D'Arcy-Irvine, the Rev. G. N. MacDonald (chaplain), Captain Henderson, Captain Glossop, Lieutenant Seton, Lieutenant Deane, Mrs. Brownlow and Miss Marjorie Brownlow, Mrs. Dent, Captain Brown, Mrs. Gordon Wesche, Mrs. T. F. Knox, Chief-engineer and Mrs. Thompson, Paymaster Norton, Lieutenant and Mrs. Hopkins, Miss Seton, Miss Cumming, Miss Lloyd, Miss Kathleen Beattie, Commander and Mrs. Barnes and the Misses Barnes, Messrs. D. C. and T. D'Arcy-Irvine, Mrs. H. L. Bullen, and Dr. and Mrs. Purdy.

Refreshments were served in tents, and the band of H.M.A.S. Australia played during the afternoon. The programme, which was mainly under the supervision of Lieutenants Seton and Deane, was an interesting one, and included a splendid and exciting display of physical training.

FIREARMS.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION.

The Premier (Mr. Holman) has been in communication with the Inspector-General of Police in view of his intention to bring down legislation to regulate the sale of fire-arms.

Fatalities resulting from the use of fire-arms during the years 1911, 1912, and 1913 were as follow:—Revolver 155, shot-gun 70, pea-rifle 83, rifle 20; total 328.

Accidents not fatal during the three years in question were as follow:—1911, 67; 1912, 88; 1913, 131. Of these accidents, taking the years in the same order, pea-rifles were the instruments in 42, 53, and 69 cases respectively. The shot-gun comes next with 17, 24, and 33. Accidents with revolvers rose from five in 1911, and six in 1912, to 23 in 1913.

The Inspector-General suggests that licenses should not be issued to persons under 16 years of age. A penalty of six months imprisonment, without option, is recommended in the case of unlicensed persons carrying fire-arms between the hours of 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. "This," says the Inspector-General, "would be of great assistance to the police in the event of persons being discovered at night time in possession of fire-arms, and would serve as a check on offenders going about armed."

EVENING BOYS.

THE PETERSHAM SCHOOL.

A SPLENDID SUCCESS.

"And, therefore——"

In one of the class-rooms in connection with the Evening Continuation School at Petersham, a warm debate was going on between the unionists and the non-unionists. That is to say, the subject of the debate was "Unionism versus Non-Unionism."

"This is a hotbed of unionism," remarked Mr. W. C. Ewing, who has charge of the school. But it was evident that the non-unionist minority was a very substantial one. Preparatory to the debate the master addressed the boys briefly on the qualities that go to make debaters, and on the methods of famous statesmen. There was a great British statesman, he mentioned incidentally, who was fond of fingering the third button on his waistcoat.

Every boy immediately began to look for the third button on his waistcoat, and, having found it, felt assured that there was no reason in the world why he should not make a great debater.

A young man of about 24—for they are not all boys who go to these continuation schools—led off with the case for unionism. He is a sub-manager at the State Brickworks, and if a belief in the principles of unionism is a recommendation, he should be making a big success of his work.

The teacher had perched himself on the table to see that the rules of debate were properly followed. He was no longer the teacher; he was speaker.

The case for the Government having been stated by the sub-manager of the brickworks, a youth of about 18 rose and put the case for the opposition. His English was a bit mixed, but his logic was good, for his command of the word "therefore" was astonishing. The use of the word "therefore" implies that one has stated an argument which leads to a definite conclusion. This boy may not have made a special study of such things as the rules of the syllogism, with its major premise, its minor premise, and its conclusion; and as to the laws of thought, if you were to ask him what the law of excluded middle was, he would probably say he was too busy to bother about such things. Yet he was intensely logical. He knew whatever is, is, and asserted it with dogmatic pertinacity; he knew that nothing can both be and not be, and that everything must either be or not be. "And, therefore——"

A KNOTTY POINT.

He stood there in front of the class, first shoating on one arm and then shooting out the other to emphasise his points, and he "roasted" that unionist from the brickworks. "We have heard a lot about the boss," he remarked.

"I never said 'bos;' I said 'capitalist,'" corrected his friend from the brickworks.

"Well, a boss is a capitalist in a small way," declared the non-unionist, his right arm shooting up like a piston-rod.

"Not necessarily," said the Brickworks.

"Oh ain't he? What do you know about it?" And the right arm came down, and the left one shot up. "A boss is a boss. He either ain't a boss, or he is a boss; and if he's a boss he's a capitalist, though only in a small way, maybe. Now, take the trade of motor driving."

"Motor driving's not a trade," said the Brickworks.

"Oh, it's not, ain't it? Well, what is it—a profession?"

"No."

"It's not a trade, and it's not a profession; then what is it? Supposing a motor car gets stuck up on Parramatta-road, dont' you expect the driver to know something about the mechanism of the machine, so as to be able to tell what's the matter with it? And how can he do that if he's not learnt his trade or profession or—calling?"

"'Calling,'" said the Brickworks; "that's a better word."

And so the debate went on. At times it grew so heated that the Speaker was obliged to call "Order." A visitor to one of these debating classes will find it very interesting; and there is no doubt that the lads themselves enjoy it.

A STRIKING SUCCESS.

All of these young men are at work every day. There are young clerks, machinists, carters, and all sorts of workers among them. Many of them have had to start on life's rough highway with but a scanty education, and now they are doing their level best to improve themselves. If, taken as a whole, Mr. Carmichael has been disappointed in the attendance at these evening continuation schools, the Petersham school, at all events, is proof that there are some who value these schools, and are glad to avail themselves of the privilege of attending them. No fewer than 330 pupils are enrolled at this school at the present time, and the average attendance is about 260. This is in striking contrast to the case of Newcastle and Maitland districts, recently cited by the Minister in illustration of the failure of the system. During the last term of last year the attendance at Cook's Hill and all the four other evening continuation schools in the Newcastle and Maitland districts only averaged 144, while at Petersham alone the attendance was 208.

Four of the students from the third-year class have gone to the University to take the economics and commerce diploma course, and the headmaster hopes to send from six to ten to the University next year. To all intents and purposes, it is a high school. It is the only evening continuation school where a third-year course is taken—third-year subjects including bookkeeping, economics, elementary commercial law, and commercial history.

In all there are eight classes, averaging 40 to a class. There are two preparatory classes, and these are doing good work in building up neglected education, preparing lads for railway and postal department examinations, and for entrance to the commercial classes proper. This year 30 lads, beginning in this way, have entered upon the commercial course. A gratifying feature is that many employers recognise the work done in this connection by their young employees by giving promotions and increased salaries to those who gain the certificate; and some of the accountants' societies have, at the request of the headmaster, agreed to accept this certificate as giving exemption from their preliminary examination.

THE BOYS LIKE IT.

Shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, commercial geography, and all that goes to equip a lad for a business life, are taught here, and the attendance is an indication that there are many lads who prefer to spend their evenings in this way rather than about the streets or at the picture shows. The boys were anxious to improve their prospects in life, and they are taking themselves seriously. When the schools first began, two or three lads attended because they thought they would get "a bit of fun" out of it, but they either stayed away afterwards or else remained to praise—and work. And they come, these young men, from far-distant suburbs—not only from Petersham, but from Balmain, Enfield, Burwood, and other places. Except that one must be over 14 (unless a special exemption from day school has been obtained), age is no bar. A number of men considerably over 20—one of three butchers who came down from Enfield, and went through the two-years' course, was over 30—have passed, or are now passing, through the school.

The Petersham evening continuation school has been the largest of all since the first year, when those at Cleveland-street and Cook's Hill, Newcastle, rivalled it. To-day it stands above all, a credit to the head master and the teachers under him. The remuneration of the teachers varies, some of them receiving 10s an hour and others 5s, according to the subjects taught. Most of them teach in the Public schools in the day time, but one of the teachers at Petersham works at the Treasury in the day time, and another works in the Local Government Office. The school is open three nights a week, from 7.30 to 9.30.

A GREAT RECORD.

But to teach all day and then to teach again three nights a week is a tax beyond the endurance of most men, and it is a noteworthy fact that Mr. Ewing is the only one of the original headmasters of these evening continuation schools who is now left in them, all the others having resigned. Throughout the whole three years the Petersham school has kept up a high standard, both in attendance and efficiency. At the first certificate examination out of 63 passes Petersham had 33, and at the second out of 57 commercial passes Petersham had 29.

This is a great record, but Mr. Ewing has peculiar qualifications as headmaster of such a school. Taking the University course in economics and commerce, he passed with high distinction, securing first place. He won the Chamber of Commerce prize for the best three-years' course, and divided Professor Irvine's prize for economics with another student. He also spent some time in business houses in Sydney—special leave having been granted him by the department—making a practical study of modern business methods. For the past six years he has been teaching special commercial work at Petersham day school, where he occupies the position of first assistant, under Mr. James Rickard, who is one of the most successful Public school teachers in the State.

It would pay the department to send a man of Mr. Ewing's stamp to make a special study of commercial education in America, where the best and most up-to-date methods in this branch of work are practised—especially in view of the fact that the Minister proposes to make attendance at the continuation schools compulsory, as is the case in Germany.

MUNICIPAL COAL MINE.

WHY IT IS WANTED.

CITY COUNCIL'S SCHEME.

The proposal for the acquisition of a coalmine by the City Council to supply the requirements of the electric light undertaking will be considered at the meeting of the Council to-night.

In a report to the council in support of his scheme, the city electrical engineer (Mr Mackay) states that the consumption of coal at the council's power house has already reached a great quantity, and is increasing very rapidly. Last year the council paid £28,341 for the coal used at the power house, and he estimates that this year they will have to pay more than £35,000. By the year 1917, if not before, the cost of coal per annum will have increased to not less than £50,000. A great portion of this amount would, under existing conditions, Mr. Mackay says, represent the cost of haulage of the coal from the place at which it was mined and the profit to, first, the company raising the coal, and, second, the company selling the coal to the council. He believes it may be practicable to save those profits, and eventually to save a great part of this haulage. The way in which he proposes to do this is for the Council to acquire an area of ground from which coal can be obtained, so that they may save the profit of the owner of the colliery and also the profit of the agent.

"If the council became possessed of property from which coal might be raised," Mr. Mackay continues, "it would probably be advisable within the next few years to establish a generating plant adjacent to the property and transmit the electricity from that station to Sydney. The site of the existing power house is in some ways inconvenient. Without going into all the details, it might be said that one of the inconveniences, and not the least, is that it is in effect impracticable to store at the power house such a quantity of coal as would make the council absolutely secure aainst interruption to their supply of electricity through labour disturbances affecting the supply of coal. There seems no reason to doubt that within the next few years, provided the council can acquire a property from which coal can be raised in quantity within a reasonable radius, say, 70 miles from Sydney, it would be economical for the council to generate its electricity by means of very large and up-to-date generating units, and to transmit the electrical energy from this generating station to Sydney. I recommend that the council should advertise to the effect that it is prepared to consider propositions under which the Council might acquire property from which coal can be raised. The situation of the property should be within not more than 10 miles of a railway. No proposition should be considered in which there is not a practical certainty of the existence of 10 million tons of coal within reach."

Mr. Mackay pointed out that it might be necessary for the council to construct a short length of railway line, and also to construct a transmission line, consisting of steel towers carrying overhead electric cables. He believed clause 4 of the Electric Lighting Act gave the council power to spend money on all those things.

The city solicitor (Mr. Dawson) has informed the council that he is of opinion that the council has full power to purchase and work a coalmine for the purpose of obtaining coal for use in connection with the generation and supply of electricity by the electric light department.

LATE MR. JOHN PARRY.

Mr. John Parry, the late Comptroller of Stores, who had been associated with the Railway Department for 35 years, died on Thursday last at Mount Kosciusko, where he had gone a few days previously. He had been out motoring with friends, and on returning to the hotel he retired about half-past 7. A few minutes later a visit was made to his room, and he was found to be dead. Mr. Parry was 58 years of age, and was born in Wales. He arrived in the State in 1879, having been sent here by Messrs. M'Kenzie, Clunes, and Holland, signalling and interlocking engineers, of Worcester, England, with which firm he served his apprenticeship as a mechanical engineer. He was in charge of the models of railway signals and interlocking belonging to the firm on view at the International Exhibition here. Later on he was appointed by the Government to supervise the installation of the interlocking system on the railways. In November, 1884, he was promoted to the position of resident engineer, attached to the staff of the engineer for existing lines. In July, 1889, he was appointed interlocking engineer, and also reorganised the permanent way workshops at Redfern. He was afterwards superintendent of the Southern and South Coast lines, and later on of the Main Suburban lines. His last appointment was comptroller of stores for the railways and tramways, a position from which he retired owing to ill-health a few months ago. Just before his retirement, and when he had partially recovered from a severe illness, he went for a trip to the United States, but upon his return he was again taken ill. He recovered, and when he left for a trip to the Australian Alps about a week ago he was better than he had been for months past. Therefore, his sudden death came as a great surprise. He leaves a widow and grown-up family. The cause of his death was cerebral hemorrhage.

The late Mr. Parry had resided at Grantham, Burwood-street, Burwood, for a number of years, and was connected with St. Luke's Church, Concord, having been superintendent of the Sunday-school for some time. Speaking at the morning service yesterday, the Rev. E. Claydon, the rector, mentioned Mr. Parry's death, and referred to the deceased as a grand stamp of a Christian and a good Public servant.

The funeral of the deceased left his late residence yesterday morning for St. Thomas' Cemetery, Enfield. Over 400 friends were at the graveside, among them being Messrs. J. Harper, H. Richardson, and Fraser (Commissioners for Railways), T. Hall (late chief accountant, Railways), J. Maeoun (chief accountant), J. Doran (Tramway Superintendent), C. A. Hodgson (outdoor superintendent), Williams (traffic auditor), A. Manton (tramway storekeeper), A. Rayment (secretary to the staff committee), C. Oliver (late Chief Commissioner), J. Spurway (secretary to the Railway Commissioners), and H. Mortimore (acting comptroller of stores).

WHITE PLAGUE.

SUCCESSES OF SCIENCE.

At the annual meeting of the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital yesterday Professor Anderson Stuart showed how science was gradually winning in the fight against the White Plague.

"During the year," he said, "we have established an anti-tuberculosis dispensary, for the maintenance of which a special subsidy of £500 per annum has been given by the Government on the condition that two nurses visiting outside should be appointed to act in connection with the dispensary. A new department has therefore been established, with its own waiting room and consulting rooms, and with its own resident medical officer, and two of the honorary physicians, namely Drs. Mills and Froude Flashman, have taken charge of the dispensary, and have regularly attended on certain afternoons and evenings. The attendances, however, have been steadily increasing, so that in the seven months of the year during which the department has been open 213 patients have been attended to, and of these 120 were found to be suffering from the disease.

"Altogether, the department, which we owe largely to the foresight of Mr. Flowers, seems destined to play a most important part in the work of the hospital and in the formation of a proper public opinion—of a proper mental attitude by the patient to himself and others—all most important factors in the great campaign now being fought so successfully against the 'white plague.' There is no doubt it is being successfully fought. The official figures for Great Britain show it conclusively. For example, in 1861-70 the average mortality from tuberculosis (all forms) was 3239 per million persons living in England and Wales, while in 1891-1900 it had fallen to 2010; and again, in Scotland the fall was from 3620 to 2370. From the 10 years, 1851-60 to 1891-95, the average death rates per 1000 of the population of England and Wales fell from 2.68 to 1.46. These figures are most gratifying, but, of course, much has yet to be done. In Australia our figures are only half of that, thanks to the splendid sunshine and the good conditions of life.

QUIRINDI, Monday.

For the past three weeks the Defence Department has had men effecting repairs to the local rifle range, but so far no money has been sent along to pay them. The captain of the local rifle club has been paying the men out of his own pocket till such time as their money is sent along.

ALMOST A MIRACLE.
Backache and Kidney troubles at Darlinghurst.

Nothing will please me more than to give a testimonial as to the splendid results I obtained from the use of "Fisher's" Phospherine.

I used to suffer very badly from Kidney and Bladder troubles. For weeks together I would be prostrated and unable to leave my room. I had severe pains in the small of my back, and could stoop only with the greatest difficulty. I gradually wasted away till my bones nearly protruded through my skin, and the absence of colour in my face made me look like death itself.

More than one doctor prescribed for me; but I gained no real benefit from any medicine till I started with Fisher's Phospherine.

It was the first remedy that seemed to have a stimulating and enlivening effect upon the Kidneys. I regularly dosed myself with it, and in a few days' time there was a most remarkable difference in my health. The pains went from my back, and I had a natural appetite which I had not had during many weeks previously.

Fisher's Phospherine put flesh on rapidly, and in about three weeks from the time I first used it I was completely well, and up to my usual weight. I have not been troubled with my kidneys since; but then I take a few precautionary doses of Fisher's Phospherine occasionally to ward off any attacks that might be induced by taking cold or otherwise.

SURPLICE.—In loving memory of our dear brother-in-law, Arthur H. G., who died April 7, 1913.

WEBBER.—In sad and loving memory of my dear wife, Catherine Webber, who departed this life April 7, 1913, aged 54 years.

I stood beside your dying bed,
And watched your fleeting breath;
I thought that day my prayers and love
Would snatch you back from death.
And even as I watched, dear heart,
The portals opened wide,
And your pure spirit passed away
For ever from my side.
Some day when shadows deepen,
And the call comes down the line,
Let your face be there to welcome
At the gate, dear wife, mine.

Inserted by her loving husband, George Webber, and daughter and son-in-law, Maude and James Monagan, Mrs. and Mr. Boylan, and Percy Webber, and grandchildren, Gladys and Maggie.

WEBBER.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Catherine Webber, who died April 7, 1913.

With tearful eyes I watched you, mother, going on your way,
Although I loved you, mother, dear, I could not make you stay.
Oh, how my heart is breaking when I think of how you died,
To think you could not speak to me before you closed your eyes.

Inserted by her loving daughter and son-in-law, James and Maud Monaghan.

POSITION OF THE COUNCIL.

Yesterday a good deal of time was taken up in the Legislative Council in dealing with the postponed clauses of the Savings Banks Amalgamation Bill. It is only needful to say that the criticism was friendly rather than destructive. Since the measure had been accepted in principle and practically in detail, all that was required was to make it workable and to protect the interests of everybody covered by the operations of an amalgamated bank. To this end it was decided that the Barrack-street Bank employees should have at least the security in the future that they have enjoyed in the past, and amendments were proposed and accepted by the Government to that end. What, however, strikes the dispassionate onlooker is the difference between the temper of the two Houses. The Legislative Council is able to give careful consideration to the work in hand, without any thought as to Hansard and the constituencies; while the Assembly is nothing if not aflame with what may be considered appeals to the country. One is, of course, the popular Chamber, and the other is concerned with the public will only as it has been expressed through the ballot box in certain definite directions. We realise, for instance, how difficult it is for the Opposition in the Legislative Assembly to deal fairly and comprehensively with Government proposals, because the caucus behind the Cabinet is the real authority. Income Tax and Stamp Duties bills are introduced and reintroduced, only to reveal the fact that Ministers cannot explain their provisions, do not know how much money is to be raised by their agency, and are forced at last to ask for merciful consideration at the hands of members opposite. Yet when the crucial moment comes, and the Opposition really tries to do its duty by the country, it finds that the solid majority against it votes blindly and cares nothing for the warnings which have been uttered. Mr. Wade and his supporters last week had to wash their hands of the whole business in desperation over the futility of doing anything.

The Labour party is not concerned with the future or with consequences. It carries a mandate to smite capital and capitalists as the Israelites smote the Amalekites, and since the caucus has decided how this shall be done, there is nothing more to be said. This accounts for the callous way in which estimates for a whole year are rushed through with all-night sittings in a short session at the end. Who cares for details of proposed expenditure? The main thing is to keep on spending, and to find plenty of money, so why waste time in discussing details? A State Parliament conducted in this way promises to become an institution with as much apparent use in the Constitution as the appendix in the human body, and we may possibly find ourselves some day being asked in all seriousness to hand the whole show over to the Commonwealth, since nobody can do worse with our affairs than the people nominally in charge of them. Certainly the Labour idea of the Legislative Council is that it is useless and a nuisance. Yet it is becoming the only Chamber in which the public is able to get a fair and exhaustive debate upon the merits of vital government measures forced by the caucus upon the country. This is what adds such importance to the debates now proceeding in the Council. With regard to the taxation bills sent up, it has no scope outside of searching discussion; and unless it is prepared to reject the measures in question, it must accept them, however clearly they may threaten to do infinite mischief. But, at any rate, there can be no mistake as to the immediate position, or as to the duty which lies before the Council. Nothing can prevent its members from disburdening their minds and that there is to be some plain speaking is evident enough from what has already been said. The leader of the Government in the Upper House last night moved the second reading of the Income Tax Bill and while the debate was postponed until the Machinery Bill could be dealt with, it was evident that members had plenty to offer by way of criticism. This is specially true of the Stamp Duties Bill, whose second reading enabled Sir Joseph Carruthers to speak candidly upon the folly of handicapping trade and commerce. But the main point to be made is that the Government does not understand its own measures, and Mr Flowers had to admit again and again that he was in the dark. The Council is to help him into the daylight, but the only persons to benefit will be the awakening taxpayers.

KILLING THE GOOSE.

The present Government of New South Wales appears to have as one of its aims (if, indeed, in many of its legislative proposals it has any conscious aims at all) the emulation of that graceless person who killed the goose that laid the golden eggs. In its impetuous greed for the handling of public money, the immediate excuse for increased taxation, namely, the removal of the deficit and the balancing of the national accounts, becomes a secondary consideration. It does not matter what effect the taxes may have on industry, or what inconvenience and even hardship they may cause to individuals. Nor is it necessary that any indication should be given of the purposes to which the revenue yielded by the taxes shall be appropriated. The one consideration which dominates every other phase of the situation is the desire to fill the national exchequer to overflowing. One of the means of accomplishing this was made known in the Legislative Assembly yesterday by Mr. Hoyle, the Assistant Treasurer, who introduced a bill for the fixing and collecting of inward and outward wharfage and harbour rates in Sydney, from which the sum of £34,000 is expected. The special sinking fund under the control of the Harbour Trust is to be abolished, and the revenue raised by an impost of 6d per ton on wheat, 6d per bale on wool, and 10s per ton on general merchandise is to be handed over to the general revenue accounts to be employed for the general purposes of the Government.

It is at least doubtful whether the proposed duties, which are in the nature of export taxes, are constitutionally valid. But, quite apart from this point, two vital principles are involved which cannot be too strongly emphasised in the discussion on the bill. These taxes in effect involve a blow at the primary production of this State. The welfare of every section of the community depends so much on the prosperity of the staple primary industries of the country, that no Government exercising true statesmanship, foresight, and wisdom would take any step which was calculated to injure those industries. Australia has to compete against the whole world in the commodities which she exports. Any restriction in the despatch of those articles to the most favourable market, any undue burden on the men who have the articles to sell, place an unnecessary handicap on Australia in international commerce. These taxes could be more readily justified if they were intended to meet a deficit in the accounts of the Harbour Trust. But this is not the case. Mr. Hoyle admitted last night that the Harbour Trust is a paying concern, but added naively that it was not getting sufficient for services rendered. In other words, the Government regards the Trust not as a body whose function it is to provide an efficient port for Sydney, but as a convenient means of assisting an embarrassed Government to retrieve its financial laches. There is no guarantee that the £34,000 which the Government expects to obtain from these taxes will be used to improve the wharfage accommodation of Port Jackson. The Government will be at liberty to use it for State butchering, baking, and candle-stick making. The Harbour Trust will be obliged to go cap in hand to the Government for the wherewithal for those improved facilities which are essential to the prosperity of the most important port in the Southern Hemisphere. This is neither sound finance nor prudent economics, and the considerations to which we have referred must, we feel sure, appeal to many supporters of the Government who shrink from injuring the agricultural interests of the State, and desire to see the harbour facilities of Sydney developed on progressive lines without excessive Ministerial interference or dependence on the general financial situation.

THE MURRAY WATERS.

It would be foolish to assume that there is nothing in South Australia's contention with regard to the Murray waters. It is true that all the arguments for the present are on the other side. If it were a simple question of whether navigation or irrigation should come first, there would be no room for hesitation as to the answer. Before it is possible to carry produce to the sea, there must be produce to carry, and, along a great part of the inland rivers, production can only be obtained by means of irrigation. The case for New South Wales and Victoria, which want to use the Murray waters for irrigation, is so clear up to this point that it needs no further argument. The use of those waters for irrigation at the present time is so far more important than their use for navigation that it would probably be worth the while of the two up-river States to buy up the whole of the South Australian river fleets and compensate their owners for loss of future profits, if by doing so they could settle the objections which South Australia makes on behalf of her existing interests in the navigation of these rivers.

Unfortunately, the question is not to be settled by any such simple means. Supposing that such a solution were attempted, there would presumably come a time when the energy of the up-river States in irrigating land in the river basin would have duly resulted in the development of closely-settled agricultural settlements at no great distance from the waterway. The schemes even now proposed have in view the planting of thousands, and possibly hundreds of thousands, of people in districts served by the rivers. As those schemes progress towards completion, it is not only possible, but even probable, that the rivers would begin to be looked upon by this farming population as a providential means of carrying their products cheaply to the sea. The existence of these cheap water-ways close alongside of heavily-producing districts might well become one of the most outstanding advantages which those districts offered. The river system might come to be looked upon as an asset much more valuable than a railway, an asset which might even render profitable some of the land which would be unprofitable if served by railways on account of the prohibitive cost of carriage by rail. It would be a shallow view which did not admit that there was this much of justification for the South Australian contentions. Although at present the inland rivers are of almost negligable value for navigation, and can never be anything else until their waters have been freely used for other purposes, still the mere fact of using their waters for other purposes is likely of itself some day to render them valuable for navigation. As South Australia will profit by the trade that goes to the sea by river steamer, it is perhaps fair to ask her to provide the funds for locking the rivers—at any rate, along the part of their course which is below Mildura or Wentworth. She has already proposed to throw a series of locks across the lower reaches of the Murray; and if her statesmen have such a belief in the future of the river trade, they may be prepared to stake upon it an expenditure commensurate with their expectations.

THE FUTURE OF CHINA.

During the past few years three Eastern nations have attempted to organise themselves upon constitutional and democratic lines, but in no case has the experiment proved permanently successful. The enlightened few had imbibed Western ideas, and sought to put them into practice; they did not realise that they had to face the passive antagonism of the great, inarticulate mass of the population which, with the innate conservatism of the Orient, preferred the evil it knew to the evil it did not know, and was consequently utterly averse to change. The "Young Turks" and the "Young Persians" alike found that it was impossible to put new wine into old bottles at the present stage of Oriental progress, and though the Republic of China was inaugurated with a loud flourish of trumpets, one wonders whether the four hundred million odd nominal "Republicans" in China are greatly concerned under what particular form of government they live, and move, and have their being. The revolution in China did not proceed from any national conviction. It was engineered by a small section, composed of those who had been better educated and had travelled further than had the vast majority of their compatriots. It was financed mainly by Chinese who were voluntary exiles from their land, and had found their exile profitable. It developed into an opportunity for intrigue and self-aggrandisement and corruption in high places, and incidentally it brought an era of lawlessness and anarchy wherever the area of the new Government could not immediately reach. The history of the Republic has been instructive. The Manchu dynasty had outlived its vigour, and Sun Yat Sen, "the stormy petrel" of revolution, started a movement which he had neither the character nor the ability long to control. He overthrew one regime, but he was not able to replace it with another. He reduced Eastern China to a state of turbulence and lawlessness which required a firm hand to quell, and hence Yuan Shih Kai, swashbuckler, Imperial General, and political adventurer, was made President of the Republic. General Yuan Shih Kai is about the last man to be suspected of Republican leanings, if accounts are true, but he has certainly supplied the firm hand.

His presidential career has been interesting. It shows an increasing impatience of constitutional forms, and a progressive approach towards the assumption of supreme power. He has a downright way of disposing of critics which is quite incompatible with the position of the president of a republic. We all remember how a few months ago he deprived twenty members of the Opposition of their seats in the Chinese Parliament. Since then the nominal Cabinet has become moribund, and Parliamentary responsibility a dead letter. The latest news is that a fresh Constitution is being drafted, under which Yuan Shih Kai is to be to all intents and purposes a dictator. The next step, perhaps, will be that he blossoms forth as an Emperor, and founds a new dynasty of his own. That China should become a kingdom once more would not surprise those who are acquainted with Chinese conditions. The revolution has touched only the fringe of her immense territory, and at its outset many observers prophesied that the pendulum would soon swing back. Later, when it appeared that the Manchu dynasty had gone never to return, they prophesied that after a brief interregnum King Log would be replaced by King Stork. Yuan Shih Kai appears to be qualifying himself for that role, and to-day we publish rather a significant cable which supports this view. Anyone, whether president or emperor, who aspires to govern China, must have money at his disposal, and he is not likely to get money unless his rule offers some guarantee of permanent good order. We now learn that the five-Power group of bankers will probably lend China £25,000,000, subject to certain conditions whose fulfilment depends on the maintenance of civil and political order in the country. Clearly these bankers have confidence in Yuan Shih Kai's ability to control the destinies of China, and if he can do so in fact it would be quite foreign to his disposition to refrain from doing so in name as well.

State Parliament House.—The member for Willyama, Mr. Jabez Wright, has felt the heat considerably since he has entered on his Parliamentary duties, and generally appears to be one of the most uncomfortable members in the Chamber. Yesterday, he asked the Acting Premier whether it was his intention during recess to go into the matter of the ventilation properties of the Chamber and provide a sliding roof, or "some other device that science had placed at their disposal," to drive the germs that existed—they must, he contended exist seeing the number of human beings there were in the Chamber—out of the House. (Great Laughter.) The Acting Premier said the administration of the Chamber was in the hands of the Speaker, and, if he made any recommendation, it would receive due consideration. The Speaker said he was fully in accord with the member for Willyama as to the need for having a sliding roof. The Chamber, he believed, was in the same condition now as it was in the days of yore. He would go into the matter, and he would ask the Government if it could see its way clear on the next estimates to provide for a number of further rooms for the accommodation of members in which to meet their constituents. (Cheers.)

Council Chaos.—"I'll undertake to remedy the chaos in a week," declared Alderman Richards five or six months ago before he was elected Lord Mayor. He has been in office since the beginning of the year and the remedy has not been provided yet. It is true that the Lord Mayor within a week or two of assuming office issued a report on the state of the service, with recommendations for its thorough reorganisation, but though this has been before the council and the various committees several times nothing practical has so far resulted. A special meeting of the health committee was convened yesterday afternoon to consider the Lord Mayor's report affecting the city cleansing and other services, but not a sufficient number of aldermen could be got together to form a quorum, and so the meeting lapsed. There is very little likelihood of any further action being taken till after the Easter recess.

The Oldest Bank.—The first bank established in Australia was the Bank of New South Wales, and it will be 97 years to-morrow since it first opened it doors for the despatch of business. From 1788 to 1817 the settlers conducted their financial affairs without any banking institution properly so called, and the need of a bank was greatly felt. In those early days a primitive method of barter obtained, namely, through the medium of spirituous liquors. It was known as the "rum currency." Next grew up the Government currency consisting of notes with a sterling backing, payable on demand, or Government store receipts for wheat. There was also what was termed the "colonial currency," which was represented by private promissory notes. Depreciation of the private paper currency was followed by depreciation of the Government currency, and on account of the unsatisfactory arrangements that then existed Governor Macquarie, in November, 1816, convened a meeting of the men who had a stake in the country to take into consideration the state of the currency. It was resolved that a public colonial bank be established, and in the following year the Bank of New South Wales was organised, and started business at the house of Mrs. Mary Reiby, in Macquarie-place, on April 8, 1817.

A Speaker's Position.—Referring at the Liberal rooms last evening to the industrial unrest, Mr. W. E. Johnson (Speaker in the House of Representatives) alluded to the limitations of his office. "I notice," he said, "that a gentleman who occupies a similar position in your State may be president of a party organisation, and criticise, at different functions, even the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth, without anybody taking umbrage at his doing so. It is, however, expected of me that I shall take part in no political speeches on any account. Nevertheless, I think it a very salutary rule that any occupant of the State or Federal Speaker's chair should, as far as possible, refrain from active participation in meetings of strong party character, except, of course, when the position is forced upon him of having to take the platform at the election in which he is opposed by the other party."

Earl Grey's Appreciation.—Earl and Countess Grey, accompanied by Lady Sybil Grey, left Sydney on the Niagara yesterday on their return journey to England. They will spend a short time in Canada, where Earl Grey will renew his efforts to induce the Dominion Government to participate in his Dominion House scheme. Before he left yesterday Earl Grey said that he desired to express his thanks to the Government of the State and his Excellency the Governor, through whose kindness and hospitality he had been enabled to obtain a general impression of large stretches of the rich and fertile lands possessed by New South Wales, to realise part of the astonishing achievements already accomplished, and to appreciate the energy of a people who had had the character and the faith which had enabled them to surmount difficulties which would have daunted men less courageous than themselves.

National Art Gallery.—The annual report of the National Art Gallery, which was tabled in the Legislative Assembly last night, states that the trustees purchased three oil paintings by British artists and two oil paintings by French artists. Two oil paintings and 15 water colour and black and white drawings were secured locally. The attendance during the year was very satisfactory—178,362 persons attending on week days, and 118,583 on Sundays. The trustees are now in negotiation with representatives on the Continent with a view to obtaining reproductions of the best and most suitable equestrian groups, for the extension of the entrance gallery portico. A commission was given to Miss Dora Ohlfsen, an Australian sculptor now resident in Rome, to execute a bronze panel for the exterior entrance facade of the gallery building. The subject is to be "A Roman Chariot Race," and the panel is expected to be completed at the end of 1914. The revenue received from the investment of the sum of £1000 bequeathed by the late Mr. Richard Wynne for the best landscape scenery, or the best piece of figure sculpture executed by an Australian artist, was awarded to the painting of the Federal capital site, by Mr. W. Lister Lister, and which was selected from competitive paintings submitted to the Federal Government in July.

The Governor Defines a "Wowser."—Everyone knows what a "wowser" is, though few can define him. At yesterday's meeting of the new Art Union Sir Gerald Strickland summed him up in a pithy sentence. "I was asked the other day by an English visitor what is a wowser?" said his Excellency. "I gave my friend Mr. Scaddan's famous explanation—'a person who objects to seeing three inches of open-work stocking, but does not object to see people working underwaged,' but that did not satisfy him. So I said that I thought the wowser was Mrs. Grundy's husband."

The Federal Capital.—Commenting on his recent visit to Canberra, Earl Grey said that he had been immensely impressed with the country and the glorious panorama presented by the amphitheatre of hills at the Federal capital site. "I was disappointed," he said, "not to see the plaster cast that has been made showing the designs which are now in contemplation. The general contour of the country is undoubtedly very beautiful, but everything depends on the manner in which advantage is taken of it. I understand that the Government is exercising every care to secure the very best possible town plan. I was glad to see no buildings had yet been constructed, and I think the Government is quite right to be very slow in giving a decision as to how this unrivalled opportunity of creating a beautiful city shall be used."

Yellow Fever.—The Premier has received the annual report of the Entomological Research Committee recently presented to the British Parliament. The report is of local interest, because it deals with the danger of yellow fever infectivity due to the early opening of the Panama Canal. No mention is made in the report of the danger which threatens Australia, in common with India and other parts of the Empire. The Commonwealth and the States contribute to the Bureau of Entomology £500 annually. Australia is represented on the committee by Mr. F. V. Theobald.

Our Girls.—Last week the Education Department issued a report, showing the avocations which the lads who leave our primary schools propose to follow in order to earn a livelihood. The Minister for Education (Mr. Carmichael) has had a further return prepared, which gives similar information concerning the girls of the State. Out of 6144 girls who left the primary schools last year, it is gratifying to note that 4836 intend to occupy their time, at least for the present, with home duties, which, after all, is considered by many people to be the true sphere of a woman's activities. It is an arresting fact that a very much larger percentage of girls go into the home after leaving school in the country districts than in town, the figures showing that, while 67 out of every 100 girls in the metropolitan district on leaving school will thus occupy themselves, in the country the figures are much higher, being 85 out of a hundred. In other words, 33 girls out of every 100 come into industrial competition in the city, while only 15 out of every 100 come into competition in the country.

Country Students' Success.—At the presentation of prizes in connection with the Fort-street High School yesterday, the head master announced that both the boy and girl at Fort-street who took the highest place in the intermediate examination had come to Fort-street from small country schools. The boy who passed the best examination, topping the list for the school, originally came from a small school in the Dorrigo district, while the girl who gained the best pass among the Fort-street girls came two years ago from the small school at Tichborne. Commenting upon this, the Minister (Mr. Carmichael) expressed his gratification that such concrete evidence was available as to the success of the policy of the Government in furnishing opportunity for secondary education to every boy and girl throughout the State. He expressed the hope that the success of these pupils would be continued, and that they would be found among the winners of State University exhibitions.

A Thousand Wombats.—Speaking in the Legislative Assembly on the question of the abolition of pasture protection boards, Mr. Dunn, member for Mudgee, wished to combat the argument that members of boards were chosen because of their practical knowledge. He knew one board at least, he said, where this was not so. The members decided to offer 10s a head for wombats, and in less than a week they had a thousand claims to pay out. The whole of the funds were gone, and they had to try to compromise to make ends meet. They also endeavoured to reduce the whole of the salaries to make up the deficiency.

Lord Mayor's Motor Car.—The motor car that has just been purchased by the City Council for the use of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress for official visits is one of the handsomest in the city. It is electrically lighted, and equipped with all the latest contrivances. The council has half a dozen other cars for the use of heads of the various civic departments.

THE WEEK IN LONDON

AN AUSTRALIAN'S NOTES.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The Britannia Airship.

LONDON, March 6.

With the Secretary for War asking for one million sterling for aviation in the Army Estimates, and Mr. Churchill's enthusiastic in his speeches as to the necessity of effort by Great Britain to get into line with Continental army aircraft, the question of military aviation is much with us. It is also with us by the appeal being made throughout the Empire on behalf of the Britannia airship. The Britannia airship committee hopes to prove that the Government is wrong in its selection of the German, French, and Italian models for this big forward move in airship construction. In Mr. Churchill's speech on the Navy Estimates a night or two ago the First Lord stated that Messrs. Vickers had contracted to build one large rigid and three smaller non-rigid dirigibles on the German plan, that a second large Astra Torres (French) non-rigid had been ordered from France, and that Messrs. Armstrong have contracted for three large semi-rigid ships of the Fontanini (Italian) design. All that, of course, means enormously increased activity. It also gives the Britannia airship committee its chance of asking the public for support to the extent of £15,000, that it may prove to the British Government the superiority of this new design over all those others. The committee, moreover—an influential one—desires to interest the dominions in the matter, and I understand that all the State Governments in Australia will be consulted in regard to it. The dirigible is by this time, of course, firmly established as an aerial necessity. The aeroplane has its own wonderful place, but the dirigible, with its distance capacity, its carrying power, and its other facilities, has a part of its own to play. The Zeppelin disasters have done nothing to alter that fact. They were largely the result of defects in construction, plus undue haste on the part of authority. Too much was demanded of them. But since then the Parseval non-rigid has come into the matter, and the Astra Torres, while the latest Zeppelin type has done everything asked of it. The Schwaben, for instance, a Zeppelin, made 150 ascents in four months last year, and carried over 2000 passengers. From Lucerne, the Ville de Pau, an Astra Torres, made 141 ascents last winter, carrying 706 passengers. The development of navigation by dirigible in recent months is, in fact, enormous. For the Britannia airship it is claimed that it will not only be British built, but that its qualities are such that it will outrival all present competitors. The details are too technical for quotation, but it may be said that this ship is non-rigid, but can be converted into a rigid gasholder by means of longitudinal steel tubes, that its screw action is entirely novel and designed for a facility of manoeuvring as yet unknown, and that its motor equipment and its general construction assure it of speed and strength. It will have a horsepower of 360, its length will be 338ft, and its speed 56 miles an hour.

The Way of Enlightenment.

When the history of the current Home Rule struggle comes to be written, not so much the thing itself as the party manoeuvring attached to it, will have most prominence. It began a long time ago. It is still in full blast. It is, in fact, in fuller blast than ever. The Unionists' counter to the Government's Parliament Act was the Ulster convention, and the spectacle of 100,000 of a potential army suddenly and strikingly dissolved. That was distinctly clever—much more clever than the Liberals' long-affected laughter at it as of no account. That pose has been given up, gradually, and, in its place, the Government has set for some time past a seemingly inflexible determination to stand to its own guns. For weeks and months the Opposition newspapers and speakers have fought at that stony inflexibility with all the weapons they knew of. They have jeered and stormed at and ridiculed the Government. They have used upon it their wit, their irony, their satire, and their not inconsiderable hysteria. None of these things availed anything. The Government said as little as possible, but contrived to say it still with an air of determination. Then—from who knows what dark counsels of desperate men—the Opposition evolved another quite skilful development—the new covenant, which, issued under an array of impressive names, binds its signatories by solemn declamation to resist the iniquitous measure, and to take any action they may be able to prevent its becoming operative. Thus, by means of this stroke, we have offices open, and, if the unwearied Unionist chroniclers are still to be believed, crowds of persons rushing eager-eyed and in hot haste to immolate themselves upon the sacred altar of Unionist principle. There was bound to be good "copy" in this, at any rate, and good "copy" reeks upon the printed page of our daily news-sheets. Now, and by way of more manoeuvring, we have it that the Government is not so determined after all, and that Mr. Asquith will, on Monday night, allow facilities for the Ulster counties that desire them to contract out of the bill. Side by side with this, the Government organs taunt the Opposition with the view that they will not accept this concession, because they do not intend to accept any concession, while the Opposition organs taunt the Government with the view that it is a concession made with the express view of its being rejected, so that the original bill may be proceeded with in a glow of virtuous-seeming helplessness. Meanwhile the electorate, absolutely and completely obfuscated by all this glittering rapier-play of skilful dialectic, is supposed to know exactly all about the merits and demerits of Home Rule. Curious, indeed, are the ways of politics.

The Pretty Girl.

The pretty girl is always an attractive subject. She could scarcely be otherwise. It is not surprising, therefore, to find argument keen, and enthusiasm high, in respect of her, now, when she is in debate in many quarters. It was Liverpool that began it, really—Liverpool, which insisted that the young woman of that northern griminess are the prettiest in the kingdom. At once it was discovered that no one else agreed with Liverpool. Worcester, indeed, protested that Liverpool might own some things, but Worcester owns not only England's one sauce but the fairest of England's women. Nottingham thereupon came into the matter, and Cardiff, and Dublin, and Plymouth, and Norwich, and ever so many more. London, indeed, is not without its claims, and they have been mentioned in connection with Hyde Park on any afternoon, and Ranelagh, and Hurlingham, and Covent Garden and Ascot. Myself am glad to find a novelist of England vigorously in statement of his faith that the prettiest girls in England are to be seen in the city streets at 6 p.m., when the shop assistants and the typists come out. He is on good ground. It is really amazing to see how often in that 6 o'clock throng in London beautiful faces and forms leap out of the mass. Beauty more or less unadorned it may be, but it is beauty well enough, and great array of it. We do not take our Liverpool seriously when it claims the really pretty girls of England.

TROUBLESOME NATIVES.

PUNITIVE PARTY KILLS SEVENTEEN.

A punitive party from the German warship Cormoran, which was despatched to the interior of Bougainville, in the German Solomons, over a month ago, killed 17 natives and wounded ten others.

The natives of Bougainville have been engaging in faction fights for some time past, and the native police have had great difficulty in checking these outbreaks. A punitive party was accordingly landed from the Cormoran, and two days' fighting resulted in 17 of the natives being killed and ten wounded. The punitive party escaped injury. The Cormoran afterwards went on to Jaluit, where the incident was reported.

IRISH CRISIS.

ULSTER PROBLEM.

UNIONIST PROTESTS.

THE FEDERAL IDEA.

LONDON, April 6.

The Stock Exchange and the Baltic Mercantile and Shipping Exchange organised processions to take part in the Unionist demonstration in Hyde Park yesterday.

The leading Conservative clubs, including the Carlton, also sent large contingents, of members, who commingled with great parties of workmen from the East End.

Sir Edward Carson, who was one of the speakers, denied that the army belonged to the Radicals. The Government, he declared, had no right to use the forces of the Crown in Ulster when it refused to take a vote of the people on the Home Rule Bill.

Lord Charles Beresford said that if the army were used against Ulster, it would break the navy as well as the army. Mr. Churchill, he added, had organised a plot against Ulster. This Liliput Napoleon was a man with an unbalanced mind, and was absorbed by a frenzy of vindictiveness against Ulster because the people of Belfast had refused to receive him.

Lord Milner, in the course of an address, said that in earlier civil wars the combatants had beliefs and convictions, but if fighting occurred in Ulster the contending parties would be fundamentally agreed in attachment to the Flag, Throne, and Empire. These people would be hurled against each other in a fratricidal conflict, owing to the sinister pressure of the Government, which hated Ulstermen and the army.

SETTLEMENT SUGGESTIONS.

Liberal members of the House of Commons have tabled eight amendments in connection with the Home Rule Bill debate, each seeking to effect a solution of the trouble on Federal lines, and the Unionists have tabled four, including Mr. Alfred Lyttelton's in favour of the exclusion of Ulster and the establishment of a Federal Commission.

There are indications that before the third reading of the bill the Government will provide a suggestion stage for the formulation of plans for a settlement.

Lord Dunraven, in a letter to the newspapers, suggests that the present Home Rule Bill should be passed, but with the operative clause altered, enabling a suspension pending a Federal bill, which would preserve Ireland's integrity.

Mr. D. V. Pirie, M.P. (Liberal), proposes the appointment of a statutory commission to draw up a Federal Constitution, which, he says, could certainly be enacted before the expiry of the exemption period of six years suggested by the Government.

THE EAST FIFE SEAT.

It is understood that the Unionists in East Fife regard Mr. Asquith's Ladybank speech as peaceful, and in consequence will not oppose his re-election.

"THE FIRST ROUND."

In course of a speech at Wolverhampton on Saturday night, Mr. G. N. Barnes, M.P. (Labour), referred to the army incident, and said that the army had emerged from the first round of the battle "second best," and he emphasised the view that both the army and the navy should be democratised.

CHINESE FINANCE.

PROJECTED £25,000,000 LOAN.

PEKING, April 6.

There is a growing prospect of the five-Power group of bankers agreeing to advance a £25,000,000 loan to China, provided the President, General Yuan Shih Kai, accedes to the conditions stipulated, which include the placing of the administration of the salt gabelle on a sound footing, arranging a certain measure of foreign supervision, note redemption, and currency reform.

The loan is partly intended, besides reforming the currency system, to redeem certain short-term loans, and to strengthen the provincial note issues.

SPLIT VOTES.

LIBERAL AND LABOUR.

DIVERGENT AIMS.

LONDON, April 6.

Mr. G. N. Barnes, M.P. (Labour) in a speech at Wolverhampton on Saturday night, declared that the objects of Liberalism and Labour were distinct.

Although at present they had much in common, yet while Liberalism was concerned with political reform, the extension of the franchise and religious freedom, Labour sought a fundamental alteration in the economic structure of society.

He added: "It is absurd to think that the Liberals could do the work of Labour, controlled and financed as they are by the wealthy."

If Mr. Asquith wished to avoid three-cornered contests, he declared, the remedy was in his own hands by means of the second ballot or alternative vote—otherwise there would be more three-cornered contests in the future than in the past.

THE NEAR EAST.

REBELLION IN ALBANIA.

CAPTURE OF KORITZA.

ATHENS, April 5.

The insurgents have captured Koritza.

Prince William, the new ruler of Albania, summoned his Ministers and proposed that he should march at the head of the troops against the rebels.

The Cabinet decided to order a general mobilisation.

VIENNA, April 6.

Out of 800,000 inhabitants, Albania would be able to raise 80,000 warriors.

She is now mobilising 25,000, and these will be supported by 2000 well-trained gendarmerie and Albanian militia, also a few thousand regulars.

SOUTH AFRICA.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES BILL.

THE STUMBLING BLOCK.

CAPETOWN, April 6.

The Industrial Disputes Bill has now been printed.

It is based on the measure introduced in Canada by Mr. Lemieux, and applies to all industries. It establishes voluntary conciliation machinery and compels resort thereto before a strike or lock-out is entered upon.

It also provides for the recognition and registration of trades unions; but it omits the clauses that were in the original draft legalising the federation of trades unions, and it is expected that the Labour party will oppose the bill on this ground.

RAILWAY DISASTER.

THIRTY-EIGHT CASUALTIES.

A BRIDGE COLLAPSES.

ATTICA (Indiana), April 6.

Three persons were killed and 35 injured when a passenger train crashed through a bridge over the Wabash River yesterday.

The engine, a baggage car, and a day coach dropped into the river. The coach was crowded with passengers, but the rear end of it did not fall into the water, and, although the majority of the injured were in this vehicle, no one was killed in it.

The engine-driver was crushed to death under the engine, the fireman was scalded to death, and a baggageman was killed by an avalanche of falling trunks in his car.

The disaster was caused through the bridge having been weakened by a collision between two freight trains upon it not long before.

GERMAN EMPEROR.

AND ROMAN CATHOLICISM.

BERLIN, April 6.

Recently several newspapers published a letter which had been in the possession of the late Cardinal Kopp in which the Emperor, in writing to the Landgraefin Anna of Hesse in 1901, when she became a Roman Catholic, strongly disapproved of her change of faith.

The "Norddeutsche Zeitung" now states that in accordance with the will of the late Cardinal Kopp the letter has been returned.

The paper adds that the missive proves to be about a purely family matter, and was not intended for publication. It contains no reflection upon the Roman Catholic faith, and all reports to the contrary are baseless.

"The originator of those reports," it says, "is seriously blameworthy for distorting the circumstances whereby religious peace was endangered and a disrespect for Roman Catholicism lightly attributed to the Emperor which was entirely foreign to him."

POST OFFICE EMPLOYEES.

COST OF CONCESSIONS.

LONDON, April 5.

Mr. C. E. H. Hobhouse (Postmaster-General) announces that concessions to employees of the Post Office on the lines recommended in the report of the select committee of the House of Commons will cost £640,000 during the first year of their operation, and ultimately £1,225,000.

THE ROCHETTE INQUIRY.

PARIS, April 5.

The Chamber of Deputies debated the report of the committee appointed to investigate the circumstances attending the non-prosecution of Rochette, the notorious swindler.

The Chamber declined to authorise the prosecution of the people who had been censured by the committee, but a resolution was unanimously agreed to in favour of more efficaciously separating the powers of the Judiciary from those of the executive.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

LONDON, April 6.

Fenner, the absconding stockbroker, who is charged with fraudulent transfer of share certificates, has arrived in London from Paris under an extradition warrant.

Fifty German and Italian bricklayers, joiners, and engineers have arrived at Haworth, Yorkshire, in connection with the sinking of a new colliery, which is to be developed with German capital. A German provision store has been opened on the estate.

In the action, Fairfax and Roberts, of Sydney, versus Bradley and Cohn, arising over the sale of some black opals, which were entrusted to them by plaintiffs for sale in 1912, and in connection with which the plaintiffs alleged negligence in effecting a sale, the jury awarded them £450.

The death is announced of Mrs. Huxley, widow of Professor Huxley, the famous scientist.

The larger applicants in connection with the Queensland loan have been allotted one quarter of the stock applied for, and the smaller applicants one half.

BERLIN, April 6.

Three soldiers at Metz have been sentenced to nine, six, and three months' imprisonment respectively, for ill-treating two recruits, one of whom committed suicide owing to the cruelties practised upon him. A non-commissioned officer was sentenced to a week's detention for insufficient supervision.

THE SUFFRAGISTS.

BOMB IN CHURCH.

ANOTHER LONDON OUTRAGE.

LONDON, April 6.

Half an hour after Evensong yesterday in the Church of St. Martin's-in-the-Field, the police heard an explosion in the building, and almost immediately the church became filled with dense smoke.

The fire brigade was summoned, but before its arrival the police entered the church, and found that the explosion had been due to a bomb, some remains of which were found in the southern aisle, together with remnants of a rubber bag.

Two stained-glass windows and a pew immediately below the pulpit were shattered by the explosion.

During the service the pew that was wrecked was occupied by a prominent church member and an unknown woman of about 35 years of age.

It would seem that a candle had been inserted in the lid of a canister of gunpowder, and this was then placed under the seat, apparently during service, and 80 minutes elapsed before the flame came in contact with the explosive. Other accounts, however, state that the canister, which was wrapped in suffragist literature, contained clockwork.

SCIENTIST'S TRIUMPH.

ELECTRICITY FROM THE AIR.

A SPANISH INVENTION.

LONDON, April 6.

The Madrid correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" states that Senor Yglesias Blanco, in the presence of King Alfonso and a number of representative men, carried out, in the village of Pozuelo, experiments with his apparatus for extracting electricity from the atmosphere by means of antennae, mounted in pairs on a high tower.

The electricity was received at a pressure of 6000 volts, which he transformed down to 150 volts.

Fifteen lamps in a house in the vicinity were lighted by the electricity so secured, and full pressure was maintained throughout the test, which was a prolonged one.

MEXICO.

HIGH-HANDED VILLA.

SIX HUNDRED DEPORTATIONS.

TORREON, April 6.

General Villa, the rebel leader, has ordered 600 Spaniards to be deported. Special trains have been provided, and the exodus to El Paso (Texas) will begin to-morrow.

The property of all the unfortunate deportees is to be confiscated by Villa.

LIBELLING ROYALTY.

GERMAN WRITERS PUNISHED.

BERLIN, April 5.

Herr Zepler, editor of "Der Freie Weg," and Herr Smith, another journalist, have been sentenced to six weeks' detention in a fortress for libelling the Crown Prince by satirising the Prince's farewell to the First Hussars when he was leaving Dantzig.

The satire was in the form of a letter, which was supposed to be written by a very sentimental girl just leaving school.

AN INSULTED TEACHER.

SECURES LEGAL REDRESS.

BERLIN, April 6.

The Municipal Council of Partenkirchen objected to a lady teacher herself selecting a locality for her residence, and, considering herself to be deeply insulted during the discussion that took place in the council on the subject, she instituted legal proceedings, with the result that she obtained a judgment in the Munich Court condemning the council and sentencing the burgomaster to three days and his colleagues to two days' imprisonment.

SUNDAY SHOOTING.

NEW BISLEY DEPARTURE.

LONDON, April 6.

The National Rifle Association, for the first time in its history, has allowed Sunday shooting at Bisley.

Major Richardson, president of the North London Club, has explained that formerly rifles were of low power, ranges were plentiful, and the population smaller, so that Sunday shooting was needless; but to-day the increase of population, and the disappearance of ranges, made it difficult for the workers to get any shooting during the week.

He added that Sunday shooting was also advocated, as it meant an improvement in marksmanship, and was thus of benefit from the point of view of national security.

MISSING SEALING STEAMER.

ST. JOHN'S (Newfoundland), April 6.

The steamers that are searching for the sealing steamer Southern Cross report that, so far, they have been unable to discover any trace of her or of her crew, and consequently the anxiety in regard to the missing vessel is deepening.

If the Southern Cross is not found by sunset to-morrow, she will be posted as "lost with all hands."

SUNSPOTS.

CAUSE OF MAGNETIC STORMS

ADELAIDE, Monday.

The Government Astronomer (Mr. G. F. Dodwell) remarked yesterday that the large sun spot referred to in a cablegram indicated that the sun's quiescent period is now probably over, and that a reawakening of sun spot activity is at hand. It is expected that the outbursts of solar energy will become more frequent until they attain a maximum, about the year 1917. As seen in the telescope at the Adelaide Observatory, there is really a group of spots at the present time, the largest showing a characteristic bright filament stretching across the centre. The group is situated in the northern hemisphere of the sun, and is about half way across the disc. It is a feature of sun spots that they start in high solar latitudes, and gradually work towards the Equator, where they die out. Every 11 years the number of and area affected by these outbursts reaches a maximum. The increase from the minimum to the maximum is accomplished in about four years, but the decline to the next minimum takes longer, usually about seven years. Our sun is, therefore, called a late star. The turning point of the minimum period, which now seems to have been passed, has been somewhat delayed, through some cause unknown. It is probably connected with the phenomenon of the double maximum in the years 1905 and 1907. A very remarkable connection has been shown to exist between sun spots and magnetic storms on the earth, and with the extent of the oscillations which the magnetic needles go through day by day. The effect of these solar outbursts on the earth's weather has not yet been definitely traced, though it has been affirmed by many that it is probably masked by other atmospheric interactions. But that there is some effect in cloud formation, especially of the type known as cirrus, appears to be shown by the investigations carried on in the Philippine Islands and other tropical places.

THE SHOW.

OPENING TO-DAY.

AUSTRALIA'S SHOP WINDOW.

Australia's great Easter Carnival opens to-day at the Royal Agricultural Ground, Moore Park.

With the probability of fine weather, the 1914 show should establish a record. The entries total about 8500, and over £7000 is to be disbursed in prize-money.

Last year, it will be remembered, the ferry strike practically cut the metropolis in two, and those residing on the northern side of the harbour could claim only the most precarious connection with the city. The result was that tens of thousands of northern suburbanites and visitors were prevented from visiting the show, and the attendance suffered considerably. This year the only obstacle seems to be the extra tram fares, but a prosperous community will doubtless rise superior to these pinpricks, and anything up to half a million sightseers should file through the turnstiles.

Since the Easter Show is dependent to a large extent upon country patronage, the recent rains were particularly welcome. Not only did they freshen up the arena and put a new green carpet on the lawns, but they relieved the fears of drought in the country, and sent tens of thousands of farmers and graziers, and country folk generally, care-free on their annual jaunt to the metropolis. And the city merchants, experiencing the reflected prosperity of the country, co-operate heartily in the annual carnival. For out at Moore Park at this season of the year are presented the first fruits of the States' activities. In effect, it is Australia's shop window. The pick of our products is there on exhibition. The wealthy man from the land is presented side by side with the product of the city's factories. It is a comprehensive display of the best that the Commonwealth can produce.

In the ring will be paraded the finest general collection of stock in the world. Possibly the Royal Horse Show in the old country might present a better collection of horses, but no show ring in the world presents a better collection of stock. Reference has already been made in these columns to the agricultural and industrial sections. Yesterday the finishing touches were put on the preparations. The last of the exhibits arrived. To-day is Judging Day. The show opens, and experts from all over the State will critically examine the exhibits and award the prizes.

To-morrow will see the official opening. The ceremony will be performed by his Excellency the Governor, and amongst the visitors will be the Admiral and Lady Patey, Federal and State Ministers and members, and many distinguished visitors from abroad and from the other States and New Zealand. At the annual banquet the president (Sir Francis Suttor) will preside.

The hunting contests, high jump, water jump, trotting races, and other ring events will occupy the attention of visitors on every day of the show from to-morrow till Wednesday, April 15. The secretary (Mr. H. M. Somer) and his staff have been working strenuously for weeks past to perfect the arrangements.

DOMINION HOUSE.

NOT A RIVAL BUILDING.

COMMONWEALTH AND STATES.

Before he left Sydney on his return to England, Earl Grey discussed the decision of the Premiers' Conference approving his Dominion House scheme, and the effect which that approval might have on the Commonwealth Building now under construction on the east end of the Aldwych site, where it is proposed to erect the Dominion House.

Earl Grey expressed his great gratification at the decision of the conference, which was calculated to give a lead to the other Dominions. He stated that although he had no status in the matter, the question would probably be brought before the Imperial Conference next year, possibly at the instance of Australia.

"It has been suggested," said Earl Grey, "that my scheme contemplates putting up a rival building to the magnificent Commonwealth Building now in course of construction. I wish to make it quite clear that this is not the case. I regard the Dominion House which I am advocating as complementary to and not in any way substitutionary for your Commonwealth Building. I should be strongly opposed to anything which might cause the States of Australia to work against the Commonwealth. On the contrary, it is my conviction that the wellbeing of Australia, the security of your continent, and the greatness and prosperity of its people depend on the States and the Commonwealth working loyally hand in hand and shoulder to shoulder. I hope that all the States may be housed in the Commonwealth Building. The reason why Mr. Cook, the Federal Prime Minister, and the Australian Premiers have all expressed themselves in favour of my scheme is because they realise, as good, practical business men, that the increased effectiveness of the advertisement that Australia will secure by being part of the most imposing building in London, which will be five or six times greater than the Commonwealth Building now under construction, is well worth a guarantee of 2d per head of the population of 1911. I repeat what I have said elsewhere, that if single firms find it pays to spend £200,000 per annum in teaching people to desire to buy the articles they have to sell, is it too much to expect that the fifteen million white people of the self-governing dominions will be prepared to guarantee half that amount, or only £100,000, in order that the people of the United Kingdom may be able to gratify their natural desire to purchase from their kinsmen overseas rather than from the foreigner?"

GREATNESS OF AUSTRALIA.

"I say that the effect of my scheme will be to familiarise the 'city' and the people of England and of Europe with the greatness of Australia; and, secondly, to strengthen your credit, which, in my opinion, is an important consideration. An almost unlimited amount of capital is required for railway and land settlement purposes in Australia. When I say, further, that the effect of the Dominion House scheme will be to bring the dominion producer and home consumer closer together, thus increasing the demand for your produce, and enabling your primary producers to secure increased sales and higher prices, I think you will agree with me that a 2d per head guarantee, the greater part of which will never be called upon, is, as stated by the chairman of the Bank of New Zealand, to be regarded as only a 'mere fleabite.'

NOT A COMPANY PROMOTER.

"If I were a company promoter," continued Lord Grey, "you would be right to be suspicious. But as I am giving and not receiving money, and am spending my health and devoting my energies to a cause which I believe will, if realised, add new prosperity to the dominions, new strength to the Empire, and new glory to the Crown, I have the right, I think, to claim, not only your sympathy, but your support. It may be difficult for some people, who, on principle, never do anything for nothing, to believe that I shall not gain some profit, direct or indirect, from the realisation of my scheme. That, however, is the case. The only return I shall secure is the happy consciousness that I have been instrumental in helping a good scheme for the Empire. And as I have been brought up in a school which has taught me to regard the ability to render any service, however small, to the Empire, on whose strength your liberties and well-being depend, as in itself a privilege of a far higher value than any money, I shall be rewarded, and more than rewarded, by the mere consciousness of success. If I had not been capable of real, loyal, disinterested service, Cecil Rhodes, who gave the whole of his life and the whole of his fortune after death, to the service of the Empire, would not have selected me as one of the trustees entrusted with the duty of carrying out his ideas."

THE DIPROTODON.

ANCIENT FOSSIL.

OVER 100,000 YEARS OLD.

INTERESTING SPECULATIONS.

Referring yesterday to the fossil jaw of the Diprotodon brought to Sydney by Mr. J. C. Gillam, of King's Creek, near Warwick, in Queensland, Professor David said that some idea as to its antiquity might be formed from what is at present known as to the geographical distribution of Diprotodon and its contemporaries.

"For example," he said, "Diprotodon has now been recorded from many places in Queensland, particularly from the Darling Downs district, where its bones are associated with those of an extinct form of the Suspapuensis— that is, the New Guinea hog. This animal, of course, still lives in New Guinea. The Diprotodon remains are also found at many places in New South Wales, notably at Myall Creek, near Bingara, and as far south as Queanbeyan. Between Lake Frome and Lake Eyre, in South Australia, the sub-fossil carcases of the Diprotodon are extraordinarily numerous, even the casts of the thick skin forming the pads of the feet are still preserved in the hardened muds of the lake. These carcases are associated with the remains of an allied animal something like the South American tapir in appearance, but also a marsupial, known as Nototherium, and in the same deposit skeletons have been found of a gigantic ancestor of the emu, from twelve to thirteen feet in height, known to scientists as Genyornis.

"Recently the remains of Diprotodon have been traced to Western Australia. The Diprotodon must have ranged over the whole of Australia at a period of time when the New Guinea hog still survived in this continent, and at a time not sufficiently remote from the present for the hardened muds to have lost the impression of the soft parts of the animals' feet.

DEVELOPMENT OF BASS STRAIT.

"Further light is thrown on the date of Diprotodon by the distribution of its contemporary Nototherium. This has been found in Queensland, New South Wales, South Australia, and recently in Tasmania, occurring in the latter area in an old swamp deposit only a few feet below the surface, not far from Jacob's Harbour, at the north-west end of the island. As Nototherium was no doubt an animal incapable of swimming to any very great distance, its occurrence in Tasmania, as well as on the mainland, in prehistoric times, can only be explained on the hypothesis that Bass Strait either did not exist at all, or was so extremely narrow that the Nototherium was able to swim across. Obviously considerable time is needed to admit of so important a geographical change as the development of Bass Strait subsequent to this early distribution of the Nototherium family, and probably whatever date applies to Nototherium applies equally to the Diprotodon.

"Quite recently in Europe Professor de Geer has been able to date almost exactly the close of the ice age in the region of Scandinavia. He has done this to the satisfaction of scientists by the careful study of the number of annual deposits of fine silt laid down subsequent to the retreat of the old ice sheets from the Baltic region, where formerly they had a thickness of over 5000ft., he has estimated the date as very close to 11,000 years from the present time. The close of the great ice age in the northern hemisphere approximates nearly to the close of what geologists call Pleistocene time. It was during this time that we find that both in the northern and southern hemispheres large herbivorous animals were extremely numerous, and there can be little doubt that this Diprotodon from King's Creek belongs to this epoch.

HOW LONG AGO?

"It is much more difficult to date the beginning of Pleistocene time than the close. Some geologists consider that the commencement of Pleistocene time was about a million years ago, others about a quarter of a million years, or not more than 100,000 years. Certainly, during this period the map of Europe underwent very important geographical changes. For example, in early Pleistocene time neither the Straits of Gibraltar nor the Straits of Dover existed, so that it was possible for true African lions, hyenas, and hippopotami to migrate from Africa into the northern part of England. When one considers that from about the middle of Pleistocene time to the present the land has altered its level in regard to the sea by amounts as much as at least 400ft or 500ft, and when one considers that a movement of this order, of the nature of an uplift, would unite Tasmania to the mainland, so as to make it possible for land animals to migrate from Tasmania to Australia by a continuous land bridge, one may reasonably argue that at the time when Tasmania was joined to Australia half of Pleistocene time had already passed away. As an extremely rough estimate, one may guess the age of this Queensland skull as something over 100,000 years."

"INTO THE MIRE."

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT.

BANK MANAGER CHARGED.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

At the police court to-day Stephen Thomas, manager of the Strathalbyn branch of the South Australian Savings Bank, was charged with embezzlement.

The following, from a confession which defendant sent to the head office, was read:—"I first made use of the bank's money about July last, by holding over a credit of £20. This amount I tried hard to pay back, and, driven to desperation, I started gambling, with the hopes of paying it back. This made matters worse, and I had a lot of expense, and had run myself into debt, so that I was compelled to hold over more credits. I substituted one credit for another, about once a week. To make matters worse, I was about £10 short in my cash in October last, and not having the money to put in, I neglected to report it, as I should have done, but held over a credit to make the amount good. I was dragged more and more into the mire, and started drinking heavily, and the amount I was liable for in January last was £150. At the commencement of the new year I decided to make a supreme effort to pay the money back, little by little, at the end of each month. At the end of January I paid back £20, which left me £140 to the bad. I fully intended to pay back £5 per month from now on, until I had paid the whole amount off. I am prepared to restore every penny I have made use of."

Defendant was committed for trial at the Criminal Court, and admitted to bail.

CUNNING RUSE.

BOY ROBBED IN A BANK.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Remarkable impudence and daring were shown by an unknown man in the Bank of New South Wales in Collins-street on Saturday morning, when William Thompson Skinner, a boy employed by Messrs. Stewarts and Lloyds, Ltd., South Melbourne, was robbed of his firm's bag, containing cheques and a note to the value of £395. The amount was to have been deposited in the bank.

When Skinner entered the banking chamber a well-dressed young man hurried up to him and asked, "Which firm, son?" The boy replied, "Stewarts and Lloyds," and the man quickly retorted, "Oh, yes; you are wanted in No. 2 room upstairs. Come on and I'll show you the way. I'll take your bag until you come out." The boy handed over the bag. He, however, could find no person in No. 2 room who wanted him, and when he descended the stairs the man had disappeared.

The firm immediately stopped payment of the cheques, so only the £5-note will be of value to the thief.

RUSH OF BILLS.

OPPOSITION PROTEST

PLEA FOR DELIBERATION.

Despite the pointed protest against rushing bills through Parliament entered last week by Mr. Cocks, M.L.A., and others, the Acting Premier last night felt constrained to ask the Legislative Assembly to continue the rush. In extenuation, he pleaded the end of the session, and the desire to finish before Easter. Mr. Cann came along with a sheaf of important bills dealing with taxation ready to be put through in record time.

Mr. Cann moved the suspension of the standing orders to enable the Income Tax Management Amendment Bill, the Sydney Harbour Trust Wharfage Harbour Rates Bill, and the Loan Bill, to be put through all their stages in one day. If these measures were not sent to the other House fairly promptly, he saw no prospect of being able to close the session this week.

Mr. Wade objected to the two latter measures being put through in this way. The increase of taxation in respect to harbour rates and harbour dues would, he believed, yield £100,000. This second bill opened up a money question of importance, and they wanted to be convinced that the procedure was correct, and to understand what was aimed at. It was not fair to the members or to the country to rush matters through in this way, and in any case it did not seem possible to conclude the sittings by Friday. The Loan Bill, he added, involved the appropriation of loan money for the whole of the year, a matter of nearly £8,000,000. He suggested that the Income Tax measure only should be dealt with that night.

Mr. Cohen moved an amendment to omit the Wharfage Rates Bill and the Loan Bill.

Mr. Waddell and Mr. Price protested against the proposed suspension. The former suggested that the House might meet earlier next morning.

Mr. Perry pointed out that the matter of wharfage rates was a very important one, affecting all the producers.

Mr. Cann said, when the House met after the dinner adjournment, some better understanding had been come to. It was suggested they take the Income Tax Bill through all its stages, and introduce the Harbour Dues Bill, then to meet at 2.30 p.m. to-day and put the bill through all its stages by as near 6 o'clock as possible. Mr. Cohen then withdrew his amendment.

"FAIR PLAY."

WHAT CHIEF COMMISSIONER WANTS.

A DIFFICULT POSITION.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

When a deputation from the Newcastle City Council was waiting upon Mr. J. Harper, Chief Railway Commissioner, to-day, Mr. J. C. Reid, the Mayor, congratulated Mr. Harper on his appointment to the position of Chief Commissioner. Mr. Harper, responding, said: "I have to thank you for the kindly expression of feeling. You may depend upon it that we will try to do our best. If we get fair play I think we will achieve a fair measure of success. Fair play is all we ask for."

When being waited upon by a deputation from the Hamilton Council Mr. Harper was asked twice by different aldermen for a new railway station to be constructed at Hamilton. In reply to the first request he said that Hamilton had all the accommodation that was necessary, and he thought that they did not need it. The second time the question was asked he said: "I tell you frankly, you will not get it. Don't you think, at a time like this, when we are asking for increased fares and freights on the railways and tramways, that I would be guilty of a gross breach if I spent money on a new station of that kind. It is my duty as a public servant to conserve the expenditure in every way as far as the public is concerned. That is my duty, and the one I intend to carry out. The very moment I can see my way clear to reduce fares and freights I will consider your request."

TAXATION.

GOVERNMENT PROPOSALS.

DISCUSSED BY THE COUNCIL.

The Government's taxation measures—the Income Tax Amendment Bill and the Stamp Duties Bill—came up for discussion in the Legislative Council last night. Both measures were received with great interest. In the case of the Income Tax Bill discussion was postponed until to-day, so that the machinery bill could be first considered.

The Stamp Duties Bill was submitted to a careful analysis, and many sarcastic references were made to the harassing nature of certain of the provisions.

STAMP DUTIES BILL.

Mr. Flowers gave a brief outline of the bill.

Sir Joseph Carruthers said he had no hesitation in saying that the bill was one of the worst which could be introduced into any Parliament. He introduced the legislation which abolished the stamp duties of the State. When they brought in such a bill, and placed great penalties upon the public for evasions of the measure, they were encouraging honest men to become lawbreakers. (Cheers.) He would far sooner see increases upon the income tax or the land tax proposed rather than place such hampering shackles upon trade, barter, and commerce. (Cheers.) The measure now proposed would hamper and harass the small trader, while it would allow the owner of the large emporium to get off scot free. The bill teemed with penalties—in fact, they were attached to every clause—and so the unwary would be tripped up and turned into criminals.

"I can assure the Government of this," said Sir Joseph, "if this bill is in operation for three years, not ½ per cent. of the transactions supposed to be taxed under it will pay the tax."

Coming to the Federal aspect of the bill, Sir Joseph said: "It strikes me very forcibly that the bill is going to increase the litigation of the State enormously. I think it is a distinct evasion of the Federal principle with regard to the States refraining from imposing restrictions upon interstate trade and commerce. We have now the position that scrip in companies registered in Victoria, Tasmania, or any other State will be taxable here, and if that is not an invasion of the Federal principle, I should like to know what is. (Cheers.) The Government had ample sources of revenue at its disposal, but to take the step of raising such a paltry sum in this way argues an utter want of knowledge of the State's resources. The Government has a majority behind it, and when the public comes to suffer from these duties, let us hope that they will return to a saner and sounder financial policy from either this or some other Government."

The second reading was agreed to on the voices.

In committee, Mr. Meeks protested against the way in which companies would be hampered under the bill, and prophesied that the result of the measure would be to drive the management of companies out of the State. The measure would do an immense amount of mischief, and would place obstacles in the way of co-operation and company promoting.

Clause 6, dealing with the taxing of voting papers and proxies, created a warm discussion.

The bill was carried through committee without amendment, and the third reading made an order for to-day.

PARCELS BY POST.

METHOD OF INSURANCE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

After a flying visit to Sydney the Postmaster-General (Mr. Wynne) returned to Melbourne to-day. Mr. Wynne stated that a proposal which he rather favoured had been placed before him by Sydney merchants to the effect that some methods of insuring parcels passing through the post might be adopted. He realised the peculiarities of the position, and he intended giving instructions that an actuarial investigation of the position should be made at once. He hoped to have figures placed before him showing the number of parcels lost in a given period, and their value, and on this information he would probably base a proposition for safeguarding the sender and consignee.

ARBITRATION.

FEDERAL CONTROL URGED.

MR. HOLMAN'S PROPOSAL.

DISCUSSED AT CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

At the Premiers' Conference to-day Mr. Holman (N.S.W.) introduced the question of the overlapping of functions in connection with industrial control.

The Employers' Association, Mr. Holman pointed out, had asked that the Premiers should consider this question. The conference might reconsider the question of handing over industrial control to the Commonwealth on the lines he had laid down two years ago. The vote taken on the second referendum showed that considerable growth had taken place in the opinion of electors that industrial matters should be handed over to the Commonwealth. There was only a majority of 26,000 votes against the proposal, whereas at the previous referendum the majority was 225,000. Industrial control covered a lot more than arbitration, but his scheme only provided for handing over arbitration. The arbitration question, and nothing else, should be handed over. Unless this was done there was danger of the whole block of industrial control being handed over to the Commonwealth. His views on the matter were contained in a memorial he and the Minister for Labour in New South Wales had prepared in answer to the employers' request. This he read to the conference.

Continuing, Mr. Holman said the view his Government took was that an enlargement of the powers of the Federal Court was necessary. It should have power to make a common rule. This was universally admitted. Two bodies of workmen in different States could combine and get into the Federal Court, and there was no reason in the world why two bodies should go through the farce of a dispute to enable one body to get before the Court. He would allow the Federal Court to deal with local troubles directly they found a satisfactory way of allowing the Federal Arbitration Court to deal with the State Arbitration Courts. There was no reason whatever why a set of men in Melbourne working in perfect harmony should enter into a dispute simply to allow a set of men at Sydney to get before the Federal Arbitration Court. He thought the whole question should be given over entirely to the Federal Parliament; that the smallest dispute in Australia, say, 50 men striking against their employer, should be heard before a body set up by one Act of the Federal Parliament. The more he considered the question the more he was convinced of the general benefit of such a change. He agreed that it was a gigantic price to pay, but it was the only way in which finality could be obtained. It was essential that the people of Australia, having gone so far, should go the whole way, and hand over the whole of the power to the Federal Parliament.

Mr. Blair (Q.) thought Mr. Holman's proposal was a gigantic one, and, although he agreed that they were hampered by High Court decisions, yet he would oppose what was suggested until it was fully considered. What was wanted was a clean-cut definition between Commonwealth and State functions. They should hesitate to give up State control until the people had definitely expressed a desire in that direction. If Mr. Holman's proposal was given effect to, it would mean unification in regard to the matters concerned. It would be used as a means to an end by the Commonwealth to get control of all industrial matters. Many of the advantages set out by Mr. Holman were still in the problematic regions. He agreed that the difficulty mentioned by the employers should be got over.

The President: There are only two ways of doing this; either the Constitution will have to be altered, or the States will have to voluntarily hand over their powers to the Commonwealth.

Mr. Barnes (Q.) did not agree with the president that this was the only way out of the trouble. He did not like the handing over of powers to the Commonwealth.

Sir Alexander Peacock (Vic.) viewed with alarm any proposals to hand over to the Commonwealth the powers now enjoyed by the States in regard to industrial matters. As far as Victoria was concerned, a great proportion of the workers were satisfied with the wages board system. Victoria would deal very charily with any proposal to alter her wages board system.

Mr. Peake (S.A.) pointed out that even if the States did give over their arbitration powers to the Commonwealth, there was nothing to show that the Federal people would cease their agitation to get complete control of all industrial matters. They could not get over the fact that small though it was, the majority of the people of Australia were against passing over to the Commonwealth the control of industrial matters. There was no doubt that industrial disputes were better handled by small local tribunals. He wanted to see the South Australian Act longer in operation before it was cast over. Although there was a rush to the Federal Arbitration Court at present, the time would come when the workers would not be so inclined to go there.

The debate was adjourned.

At 5 o'clock the conference adjourned till to-morrow.

IRRIGATION.

EXEMPTION FROM RESIDENCE.

IMPORTANT ALTERATION.

The Minister for Lands and Irrigation stated yesterday that he had decided upon an important departure in connection with residence upon irrigation farms. He intends to grant exemption from residence upon the area for the first five years upon condition that the settler expends a sum annually in permanent improvements to the extent of £3 an acre during the period of exemption, and then goes into permanent residence as a guarantee of bona fides.

Mr. Trefle attaches considerable importance to this alteration. He has found that several settlers who are now somewhat hard pressed for means to carry them on until their farms become reproductive would have been in a much better position had they remained at their old occupations until three or four or five years had passed, and then taken up permanent residence, with their fruit trees in full bearing.

"The concession," he went on, "will also enable a large number of persons who are anxious to settle upon the area to do so before giving up their present occupation. For instance, carriers, school teachers, Civil servants, and others who contemplate making a permanent home upon the irrigation area, but who are short of the necessary amount to tide them over the intervening period between taking possession of their farms and the productive period, will be met by this alteration in the matter of residence. These persons can from their savings carry on the improvement farm, and not give up their present means of income, until the farm is able to support them."

LETTERGRAMS.

POPULAR SYSTEM.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The lettergram system is proving popular. The Postmaster-General (Mr. Wynne) has been informed that these messages are being lodged in satisfactory numbers, and in some instances the night staff at the telegraph offices find that there are as many of them as can be reasonably dealt with. In Sydney on one recent occasion 1200 lettergrams were lodged on one particular night. Of these, 400 were despatched by the night staff, and the remainder had to be disposed of next morning.

ASHBURNHAM ELECTION.

The elections and qualifications committee yesterday dismissed the petition of Mr. J. P. Lynch against the return of Mr. A. H. Grimm for the Ashburnham electorate.

WHARFAGE IMPOSTS.

STORM OF PROTEST.

HITTING THE PRODUCER.

£34,000 TO BE RAISED.

A veritable storm of protest was raised in the Legislative Assembly last night against the new wharfage and harbour rates which the Government proposes to levy in the port of Sydney. The ground of objection taken by the Opposition was that the imposts would adversely affect the producers of the State, and drive trade away from Sydney.

The Assistant Treasurer (Mr. Hoyle) moved the expediency of introducing a bill to provide for fixing and collecting inward and outward wharfage rates, and inward and outward harbour rates in the port of Sydney, and to amend the Sydney Harbour Trust Act, 1900, the Sydney Harbour Rates Act, 1904, and the Sydney Harbour Trust and Navigation (Amendment) Act, 1908.

It was explained by Mr. Hoyle that Sydney Harbour was a very heavy expense on account of the construction of wharfs and other conveniences for shipping. The whole of the control was in the hands of the Sydney Harbour Trust. The Crown Law Department said outward wharfage rates could not be reimposed without legislative authority to do it. This was now being asked.

Mr. Wade: Where is your surplus going?

Mr. Hoyle: The natural profit would go into the general revenue, and we feel that in any public concern this should be so. (Opposition laughter.)

Mr. Cohen: It is the very opposite to what you said before.

Mr. Hoyle said it was proposed to abolish the special sinking fund which had been placed under the control of the Harbour Trust. In taking this action, the Government was only dealing with the Sydney Harbour Trust upon the same lines as it had dealt with the Tramways and Water and Sewerage Board.

When introducing the bill, Mr. Hoyle outlined the proposed new taxation, and the probable revenue he expected to derive from their imposition. It was proposed to impose a tax on outward cargo, for they considered outward cargo caused as much wear and tear on the wharf as inward cargo. They proposed to charge 6d per ton on wheat, 6d per bale on wool, and 10d per ton on general merchandise. As the wheat season was still in progress, they would not levy the charge on wheat till July next. The wool season was practically over.

It was further proposed, said Mr. Hoyle, to impose harbour dues at the rate of 10d per ton on any ships loading, but that would be taken off if the vessel loaded at the wharfs, the wharfage charge being 1/4 per ton. It was not proposed to extend these dues to Newcastle.

EXPENDITURE, £5,000,000.

In reply to Mr. Wade, Mr. Hoyle said the Harbour Trust was paying its way, but it was not getting enough for services rendered. (Opposition laughter.) The trust was faced with an expenditure of £5,000,000. They had to make resumptions, and must spend additional sums on which they would get no immediate return. The Commissioners were looking ahead like good business men.

The Government expected, continued Mr. Hoyle, to obtain about £34,000 revenue from these new sources, as follow:—

Wool, 700,000 bales at 6d, £17,500.
Wheat, 352,000 tons at 6d, £8800.
Skins, 10,000 tons at 10d, £4000.
Hides, 7000 tons at 10d, £3000.
Tallow, 8000 tons at 10d, £4000.
Other principal exports, 100,000 tons at 10d, £4000.
Sundries, £2500.

"A GRAB."

Mr. Wade said this was a most barefaced attempt to harass the great producing interests of the country, and it was a barefaced piece of impertinence on the part of the Minister to ask the House to consent to this legalised grab. The Assistant Treasurer was striking a blow at the producing interests. Wheat and wool were staple products of the State, and hides, skins, tallow, and potted meats could be taken with the wool. On these, the Government was going to impose a further burden of £35,000. Why was it done? Not in the interests of the producers, but in the Government's own interests, owing to its greed for revenue. He pointed out that the imposition of these fresh taxes would have a big effect on the prices received in England for the wheat and wool. Prices there could not be fixed by the prices in Sydney. He strongly opposed the doing away of the sinking fund.

Despite the fact, said Mr. Wade, that the Harbour Trust had cleared its operations by £75,000, the Government had the effrontery to increase the dues. It was simply for the purpose of more taxation. It would have to face the question later, either in the eyes of the public or in the courts. It was imposing by these means a direct tax on the produce of the country, and the action was going to damage the prestige of Sydney at the expense of benefiting Newcastle.

MAN ON LAND AFFECTED.

Mr. James regarded this as another attempt of the Government to strike at the man on the land. (Opposition cheers.) All its legislation had had the effect of dealing a blow at the sources of the State's wealth. The whole of their large cities depended on the production of the country. He would like to point out, too, that the small man was now going in for wool as much as anything else. The constitutional aspect was unsatisfactory, and after the State had collected the dues it was probable they would have to pay them over to the Commonwealth. It was going to fail in its object of raising money. It ought to be a further evidence to the community that this Government, as a whole, was absolutely incompetent to deal with any financial matters.

EFFECT ON TRADE.

Mr. Cocks condemned the method of introducing the bill. If they imposed these duties they were going to drive the trade across the border to States more liberal in their outlook. The charge did not fall on the exporter, but went right back to the producer on the land. The explanation by the Minister was misleading, and did not fit in with the figures before the House. The Government said "the surplus here is to increase, and we will annex it for paying into the consolidated revenue." It was a statement at variance with the utterances that had put the Government where it was. It was to be extremely regretted that this Government was reaching out in every direction to put taxation on the people.

NEWCASTLE PUT RIGHT.

Mr. Gardiner said there had been a system of differentiation on the railways against Newcastle for many years past. This would in a measure put it right.

Mr Cohen said that if these rates were to be imposed, let the Government treat all ports on the same basis. The Harbour Trust had already put £250,000 in the coffers of the Government. It was paying its way; then why should there be any need for this extra imposition? Why did not the Minister say straight out that he wanted to grab all the revenue he could and make the primary producer pay every time.

Mr. Perry said under the present proposals Newcastle would escape, and Byron Bay would have to pay.

Mr. Cann: You won't.

Mr. Perry: "We pay now." Continuing, he said that the Government should make the tax applicable to all ports. He protested on behalf of the producers along the coast against the imposition of an export tax.

MR. ROBSON'S POINT.

Mr. Robson asked why, if the Harbour Trust was paying its way, it should be made an instrument of further taxation on the people? (Opposition cheers.) The bill would have to run the gauntlet, if carried, of being held by the High Court to be unconstitutional, and he quoted legal authority for this. It was really sought to impose an export duty on tonnage, which was not within the power of the State Government.

Mr. M'Farlane denounced the bill as iniquitous. He pointed out that the imports might divert the butter trade of the North Coast to Brisbane from Sydney. It might also result in importers shunning Sydney, which would do a great harm to the port.

A Ministerial member: What odds.

Mr. M'Farlane said he had no doubt that the Government was paving the way for an all round tax. The bill would prejudicially affect primary producers.

Mr. Henley said they were told by the Government that they were going to increase the harbour dues, although the Harbour Trust had a surplus. What was the use of having a beautiful harbour like Sydney that they boasted of as against other ports if they were going to impose these duties? Public facilities should be given to the public as cheaply as possible.

Mr. Badgery said this tax was being forced by the big unions outside to prevent the export of foodstuffs.

Mr. Millard said the wharfs were built with loan money, and the Government got an excellent return. It was simply another grab on the part of the Government to cover up their extravagances. He predicted that the revenue to be obtained from these taxes would far exceed the £30,000 or £40,000 anticipated by the Minister.

Mr. Waddell wanted to know why Newcastle and other northern ports were not included in the bill. Why were they not? Was there any moral or honest reason for not including them?

Mr. J. Storey: I am in favour of including them.

Mr. Waddell said there was a tremendously big principle involved. Had it come to this, that, because the Government had a large number of supporters at Newcastle and other northern ports, they were not going to include these ports? The same thing had happened in regard to the increased tram fares. If these places were going to receive special concessions, because of the number of supporters, it was coming to a strange pass. The ideas of political morality of his friends opposite had degenerated greatly. Nothing in his 26 years of Parliamentary life would bear less investigation than this measure. This Government could not give a valid reason or raise the slightest excuse for introducing the bill. He challenged the Minister to justify this taxation, either from a moral standpoint, a commercial standpoint, or a statesman's standpoint. It was the most monstrous proposal that was ever put before the House.

Mr. Hoyle said that Newcastle was never specially considered.

Mr. Braund contended there was no justification for the introduction of the measure. He presumed that the Minister would subsequently impose a tax on meat. The Government was imposing a tax that would be detrimental to the best interests of the country.

On a division, the resolutions were agreed to by 35 votes to 27, the bill was introduced, read a first time, and the second reading made an order of the day for a later hour of the sitting.

YEAR'S LOAN WORKS.

£7,522,100 ASKED FOR.

The loan estimates for the year 1913-14, nine months of which have passed, show that a sum of £7,522,100 is set down for expenditure. The estimates were submitted to the Legislative Assembly last night.

The principal items are as follow:—

Sydney Harbour Trust.—Towards construction of works generally, and for the improvement of the port, £465,500.

RAILWAYS AND TRAMWAYS.

Railways.—Rolling stock, to meet additional traffic requirements, and equipment of new lines, £548,000; additions to railways lines, stations, and buildings, and for other purposes, £655,000; towards construction of Flemington to Belmore and Wardell-road to Glebe Island and Darling Island railways—further sum, £322,000. Tramways: Additions to lines, workshops, and buildings, duplication of lines, and for other purposes, £450,000; rolling stock to meet expansion of traffic and equipment of new lines, £243,000; towards additional power-house to meet the expansion of traffic, £181,000. Railways and Tramways: Purchase of railway and tramway stores and materials, which cannot properly be charged to appropriations of Parliament until actually issued for use—the amount to be carried to special deposits account (railway store advance account)—further sum, £170,000.

THE PREMIERS.

SAVINGS BANK COMPETITION.

A MEMORANDUM.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Premiers' Conference resumed its deliberations this morning in the Legislative Assembly Chamber, the Premier of Victoria (Mr. Watt) presiding.

On the motion of Mr. Holman, the conference, in order to expedite business, divided itself into three committees, 23 subjects being apportioned between them, leaving five matters for full discussion. No. 1 committee consisted of Messrs. Watt, Barnes, Griffith, Scaddan, and Sir Richard Baker; No. 2 committee, Messrs. Holman, Murray, Peake, and Collier; and the legal committee, Messrs. Mackinnon, Hall, Blair, and Houberg.

When the open conference resumed, the President reported that he had received from the Prime Minister the following document, which was apparently a memorandum by the governor of the Commonwealth Bank in reply to the offer made by the conference for the purpose of ending the existing competition between the savings banks of the States and the Commonwealth:—

"That the offer of the States be accepted as far as transferring the States' banking business in Australia and London to the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, the Commonwealth Bank of Australia Savings Bank Department from January 1 next to hand over to the States 75 per cent. of the increase of its depositors' balance, either quarterly or half-yearly, as may be arranged, receiving in exchange State Government debentures for a like amount at par, payable in 30 years from date of issue, secured in the usual manner; such debentures to bear interest, payable half yearly at current market rate, but not to be more than one per cent. above the rate of interest being paid by the Commonwealth Bank's Savings Bank Department on its depositors' balances; agreement, 30 years; no sinking fund."

On the motion of Mr. Barnes (Q.), seconded by Mr. Collier (W.A.), the communication was received.

At a meeting of the Friendly Societies' Association, a discussion took place in regard to the new doctors. It was decided to write to the hospital committee, stating that the association was of opinion that the Friendly Societies' doctors should be admitted to the medical staff of the hospital. The association delegates stated that they had had splendid meetings in the district, and fully 90 per cent. of the members of the various unions would support the new doctors.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

THIRD TAXATION BILL.

INCOME TAX MACHINERY.

The third Taxation Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly last night in the shape of a measure to increase the wharfage dues. The debate is reported in another column.

The Machinery Bill, connected with the additional income tax proposals, was brought forward and dealt with.

BELLINGER RIVER DREDGING.

It was stated on behalf of the Minister for Public Works, in reply to Mr. Briner, that the dredge Kappa had been condemned, and that another dredge would be sent to the Bellinger River, and would do the work of dredging the channel when more urgent work had been attended to.

GOVERNMENT MOTOR CARS.

It was stated by the Acting-Premier (Mr. Cann), in reply to Mr. Wade, that there were 46 motor cars for personal use owned by the Government, and 43 were in use.

LEURA BATHS.

Mr. Black was informed, on behalf of Mr. Griffith, that the swimming baths recently opened at Leura were constructed by the Government, half the cost being paid by the Katoomba Council and half by the Government. The council, who were to repay their moiety at the rate of £300 per annum, were making a charge to bathers to pay working expenses and their share of the capital cost.

GRAFTON WATER SUPPLY.

It was stated on behalf of the Minister for Works, in reply to Mr. Briner, that the original cost of the Nymboida water supply for South Grafton and Grafton was £56,327, the contract being signed on September 20, 1911, the delay in completing the work being due to lack of pipes. The supply of South Grafton was being pushed on, and should be available during May.

GRANVILLE LOCAL OPTION.

Mr. Lang was informed that, owing to eight absentee local option ballot papers being placed among the Granville electorate local option vote, a fresh ballot had been ordered.

STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATES.

Mr. James asked whether the Government intended to consider the position of stipendiary magistrates.

Mr. Thrower asked whether the Government would have an inquiry made into the matter of the administration of justice by the stipendiary magistrates in the metropolitan area.

Mr. Cann said he had no knowledge that the Government contemplated making any inquiry into the stipendiary magistrates, unless his colleague, the Minister for Justice, intended to do something.

COAL FOR THE NAVY.

Mr. Chaffey asked whether the Government proposed to have tests of coal made in various parts of the State so as to obtain a suitable supply for the Australian navy.

Mr. Thrower asked whether it was a fact that the Imperial Navy had been supplied by New South Wales coal for the last five years.

Mr. Cann said it was not contemplated by the Government to make any further tests for coal. He believed they had tests made of all the coal fields of the State, and they had the results of these tests on hand. He would be pleased to give members the results of these sample tests at any time.

STOCK WITHOUT WATER.

Lieutenant-Colonel Braund asked whether the attention of the Government had been drawn to an article in the "Herald" in relation to the ill-treatment of poultry consigned to Sydney, having no water for many hours.

Mr. Thrower asked whether it was a fact that three weeks ago the secretary of the Animals' Protection Society proceeded against a man for sending down some hundreds of galah parrots in a box suitable for only 100, and the man was fined £2 for cruelty. Would he appoint an officer of the department to look after this work instead of leaving it to the secretary of the Animals' Protection Society.

Mr. Moxham asked whether the Minister would consider the absolute necessity of providing water for stock sent to the saleyards. In some cases stock had gone for 48 hours without water.

Mr. Price asked for consideration for all stock travelling on the railways.

Mr. Hoyle said his attention had not been drawn to the article nor to the conditions existing. If notice were given he would furnish the fullest information.

PORT NAVIGATION.

Captain Toombs asked if the Assistant Treasurer was aware that ships of 1000 tons and upwards were proceeding to sea with only one A.B. on deck on watch, and were thereby a menace to navigation. Was he aware that this had been reported to the Superintendent of Navigation, and would the Minister see that ships were properly manned, and instruct the Superintendent to enforce the regulations?

Mr. Hoyle asked for notice.

HOMEBUSH STOCKYARDS.

Mr. Henley asked when the abattoirs at Homebush would be available, and when the new saleyards would be in use. Mr. Cann said the new saleyards were already all let to different people, and he himself had been persistent in wanting to know when they would be brought into use. He understood this would be within three months.

RAILWAY PROBLEMS.

Mr. Bagnall referred to the alleged unsatisfactory working of the signalling apparatus near Sydney, the number of engines out of commission owing to their being in a state of disrepair, and the number that were in commission in an unsatisfactory condition. Would the Minister consider the question of appointing a commission or some body to inquire into the matter?

Mr. Hoyle said he was not aware of the facts, but the question would be gone into during recess, and a remedy found if possible.

DACEYVILLE.

Mr. Fallick asked the Chief Secretary for some particulars regarding some Daceyville tenders, in which it appeared cheaper materials had to be submitted than was originally intended so as to favour the case for day labour. On this question Captain Toombs wished to know, once and for all, whether the Acting Premier would table all the reports from the various States, which proved that in all cases day labour was better than the contract system. (Opposition laughter.)

Mr. Henley: And the Prince Alfred Hospital report. (Opposition laughter.)

Mr. Cann declined to undertake the task of gathering the reports mentioned. As for the tenders, he understood some were called for, but what the particulars were he did not know.

SUNDAY TRADING LAW.

Numerous questions were asked as to whether the Government would take action in the country in regard to Sunday trading. Mr. Cann replied that a bill to deal with Sunday trading both in the metropolitan area, and the country was now under consideration by the Cabinet.

INCOME TAX MANAGEMENT BILL.

The resolution to suspend the Standing Orders having been carried, Mr. Cann moved the House into Committee of the Whole to consider the expediency of bringing in an Income Tax Management Amendment Bill. In committee the division was on purely party lines, 34 being for the motion and 28 against.

On the House resuming, the bill was read a first time, and the second reading made an order of the day for later in the evening.

SECOND READING.

In moving the second reading, Mr. Cann explained the principles of the bill. Clause 2 provided that the interest on a legacy should be subject to income tax. It also dealt with the incomes of shareholders in a company. Provision was made for the company to pay its share of the income tax, and in this case exemption to the shareholders was given. Outside companies trading here were to be asked to pay their share on the amounts earned here. It was proposed to abolish the 5 per cent. exemption on the improved value of land. In reply to a member, Mr. Cann said they expected to raise £113,000 per annum from this source. It was further proposed to obtain revenue from visiting people who came here and made huge sums.

Mr. Wright: They don't know what taxation is in this country yet.

An Opposition member: They soon will.

Mr. Cann said it was proposed to raise the penalty for failure to make out returns from £10 to £100.

A promise was extracted by Mr. Waddell from the Acting Premier that if manifest injustices were created by the bill an amending measure would be introduced next session.

Mr. Cocks contended that Commonwealth land taxation should be allowed as a deduction.

Mr. Nesbitt maintained that freeholders should be allowed a reduction to the same extent as those who paid rent. He uttered a warning against imposing burdens upon primary industries.

The second reading was agreed to on division by 35 to 27.

INCOME TAX AGAIN.

The Income Tax Management Amending Bill was considered in committee in the Legislative Assembly early this morning, and carried through without amendment. The bill was read a third time, on division, by 34 to 26, and referred to the Legislative Council.

ST. PATRICK'S COLLEGE BILL.

The St. Patrick's College, Manly, Bill, was, on the motion of Dr. Arthur, carried through all its stages.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Speaker, at 12.55 a.m., left the chair till 2.30 p.m. to-day.

SAVINGS BANK AMALGAMATION BILL.

BARRACK-STREET OFFICERS.

A long discussion took place last night in committee upon the postponed clauses in the Savings Banks Amalgamation Bill.

Clause 9, dealing with rights of officers of the Barrack-street bank, was the first clause to come under review. It was urged by several members, notably Mr. Garland, Mr. Pilcher, and Mr. Ashton, that the clause did not give the officers sufficient safeguard as regarded compensation. Mr. Pilcher was very emphatic. He said that no one would dream of treating a dog like the Government intended treating the officers under the clause. "From the way in which the clause reads now," said Mr. Pilcher, "certain highly efficient men might be dismissed from the bank after the expiration of the 12 months mentioned, and they would have no claim for compensation."

Mr. Flowers: Are the commissioners likely to keep a man on for 12 months and then dismiss him?

Mr. Pilcher: I do not know what the commissioners are likely to do. I am pointing out the power you are giving them.

Mr. Flowers: We must trust the commissioners to see fairness done.

Mr. Pilcher: Would you consider it fair and just if you, as an employee of the bank, were sent for by the commissioners one morning after the 12 months mentioned in the bill had expired, and were told that your services were no longer wanted, and that you would not be entitled to any compensation? I contend," concluded Mr. Pilcher, "that the clause is grossly unfair, and should be amended."

Mr. Kater moved to amend section 2 of clause 3, making it quite clear that the term of service under the Government of officers taken over with the Barrack-street Bank commenced at the date upon which they joined the bank.

Mr. Flowers welcomed the amendment, and said that he understood that the clause already provided for the point raised, but, if it would make it additionally clear, he was ready to amend the clause as suggested.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. Ashton moved another amendment, making the officers taken over subject to sections 32 and 33 of the Government Savings Bank Act, 1906.

This amendment, which was carried, was to give to them all the rights and privileges of officers already in the Government services, and also to preserve to them their status.

ADJOURNMENT.

At 10 p.m. the Council adjourned until 4.30 p.m. to-day.

RHODESIA.

BIG SETTLEMENT SCHEME.

COMMISSIONER ARRIVES.

Among the visitors at present in Sydney is Mr. H. W. Kempster, a commissioner, representing the British South African Chartered Company, which is the governing body of Rhodesia.

Mr. Kempster has come to Australia to study the land laws and methods of settlement. He has already visited all the other States, and from here will proceed to New Zealand, in a few weeks' time, and thence homeward via Canada.

When seen at the Wentworth Hotel yesterday he stated that the chartered company projected a big land settlement scheme in Southern Rhodesia, which would probably come into operation about next July, under a board. It was intended to start a vigorous campaign to secure settlers for the territory, which was about 450,000 square miles in extent and about 4000 feet above sea level, with climate conditions very similar to Australia on that account. It would probably not be so very easy to get the type of men wanted. That was the trouble that was going to confront all the Dominions. He did not think the old country could possibly supply the demand, and they would perhaps have to look to Northern Europe—Denmark, Sweden, Norway, and possibly Northern Germany. Up to the present only men with a capital of £1000 and upwards had been treated with in Rhodesia, but by the new scheme it was proposed to advance money under similar conditions to those that prevailed in the Australian States to eligible men to settle on the land, much of which was very fertile. Some apple orchards had been successfully established there, and they also grew tobacco, maize, citrus fruits, etc., according to situation. One of the great features of the country was cattle raising, and in the opinion of experts it was going to be one of the finest cattle-raising countries in the world.

COST OF LABOUR.

Questioned about good farm hands being available in England, where he had been investigating for several months, Mr. Kempster stated that the farmers in the old country were just now experiencing much improved prosperity, and they found it difficult to get adequate farm labour, due in a large measure to the great amount of emigration to Canada. As to increases in the rates of wages the trouble was that the producer on the land in all branches had to compete in the open market, and could not raise his prices with increases in wages, and he observed the same difficulty out here in Australia. He had learned from a number of landholders in Australia, that their especial difficulty was in getting competent hands. Skilful and reliable men were scarce, and he feared it would be difficult to get many out from the old country, where just the same trouble was experienced by farmers, though the much higher wages paid here were certainly an inducement. A great portion of the stream of immigration was diverted to Canada, because the latter country was so short a distance comparatively from England.

IMPRESSED WITH AUSTRALIA.

"I consider Australia a great country, and I think that very few people realise its potentialities," proceeded Mr. Kempster. "The climate here is an exceedingly genial one, and the nearest approach to that of South Africa that I know of. I like the Australian. He is superb, particularly the men out-back. I have never experienced any rudeness; nothing but courtesy and unbounded hospitality. The Australian speaks out fearlessly. Wherever I have been I have found a strong feeling of Imperialism deep down in the hearts of all. This is a country with golden opportunities, and any man who is a hard worker must get along. Success on the land depends on the personal equation. I have seen men with equal facilities, and one has got along well and the other has not. The one man is stout-hearted and has tackled his work with a will, while the other has gone about things in a lackadaisical way, and wondered how it was the other fellow was going ahead while he made no progress at all."

CHARTERED COMPANY'S RULE.

Concluding, Mr. Kempster said that the Government of Rhodesia was very similar to that of a Crown colony. The administration was in the hands of the British South Africa Company, whose operations might best be compared with those of the old East India Company, which was the nearest analogy. He had no hesitation in saying that the administration had been a success. A small section was agitating for a different form of Government, but if a referendum were taken he felt confident that the great bulk of Rhodesians would favour a continuance of the Chartered Company's rule. The Rhodesians were very proud of the fine traditions associated with the founding of the territory. Had it not been for Rhodes it might never have been part of the British Dominions. He mentioned that Earl Grey had been administrator of Matabeleland in 1896 and the following year, and had helped to lay the foundations of the present prosperity of the territory. Sir Arthur Lawley, at one time Governor of Western Australia, had succeeded Sir Starr Jameson as administrator of Mashonaland, upon the latter's appointment as director of the South Africa Company.

AN ART UNION.

TO ENCOURAGE AUSTRALIAN ART.

REMARKS BY STATE GOVERNOR.

A well-attended meeting, at which Sir Gerald Strickland presided, was held at the Royal Society's House yesterday afternoon for the purpose of forming an association for the encouragement of Australian art. Sir Gerald, who was attended by Captain Robinson, A.D.C., was supported by Mr. Campbell Carmichael, Minister for Education, and M. Chayet, Consul for France. Among those present were also Mrs. Malcolm Stephens, Miss Florence Rodway, Mrs. Lancelot Harrison, Professor Woodhouse, Dr. Maitland, Dr. Andrew Davidson, and Messrs. Victor Mann, Julian Ashton, J. S. Watkins, T. Sulman, C. T. Burfitt, and A. W. Green.

Sir Gerald Strickland, in an introductory address, expressed his pleasure at the opportunity of assisting the movement, but said that he felt considerable diffidence because of the close approximation of administrative work of a practical character. It gave him exceptional satisfaction, however, to show practical sympathy with the proposal. He admitted that an art union furnished subject for for comment. He had sometimes wondered why so many raffles at bazaars were called "art unions," since the prizes had little to do with art and there was nothing to do with union. The present proposal was justified, however, by its origin, even if other art unions had been confused with a less desirable objective.

The Governor went on to say that the proposal reminded him of life insurance. For after all life insurance was a wagering transaction. But an art union, conducted on the basic principle that the whole proceeds should be devoted to the encouragement of Australian art, with no part of the funds devoted to the expense of management, was certainly more in accord with the principles of an art union than anything he had yet seen. Personally he could not afford to spend large sums in pictures, but he was prepared to pay 10 guineas' worth of a one-hundred guinea picture and take his chance. A valuable picture would be valueless cut up in parts, so he was prepared to take his chance of getting the whole.

Another point emphasised by his Excellency was that under the proposal experts would buy the good pictures. He said this, partly to make himself feel virtuous and to make every one of his hearers feel doubly so. They would get more than its market value for their chance. The new proposal would encourage Australian art systematically, and result in doing something more than paragraphs or talk. He hoped that this meeting would be a beginning that would bear constant fruit.

Mr. Carmichael, seconded by M. Chayet, proposed a motion, subsequently carried, to the effect that an association, known as "The Art Encouragement Association of New South Wales," be formed. Its object should be to promote a knowledge and love of the fine arts and their general advancement in this State. He proposed that the association should ask the Government for permission to conduct an annual Art Union, for the purchase of work by Australian artists, which should be allotted as prizes among the members. The entire funds subscribed, without any deduction for management expenses, should be devoted to the purchase of art works and the encouragement of Australian art.

M. Chayet said that he had been struck by the love of everything artistic existing generally among Australians. He was convinced that in this country there was much latent artistic talent, and that the future possibilities of art were very great.

Mr. Sulman, president of the Town Planning Association, suggested that the scheme should embrace the applied as well as the fine arts. Applied arts were so much in need of encouragement as the fine arts, and their sphere of artistic influence would be the wider in that many people who could not afford to buy pictures or statues would be easily induced to buy good furniture in preference to bad.

The following office-bearers were elected:—President, Mr. Carmichael; vice-presidents, Judge Backhouse, Mr. P. Board, Dr. Maitland; council, Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Malcolm Stephen, Mrs. Macleod, Mrs. Lancelot Harrison, Miss F. Rodway, Mrs. Tom Marshall, Dr. Cecil Purser, Dr. Molesworth, and Messrs. O. C. Beale, C. Lloyd Jones, J. Sulman, W. H. Ifould, A. W. Green, J. D. Fitzgerald, H. D. M'Intosh, F. H. Oxnard Smith, W. Lister Lister, J. S. Watkins, Julian Ashton, and Lionel Lindsay; treasurer, Sir James Fairfax; secretary, Mr. N. L. Salmon.

The Governor, Sir Gerald Strickland, was elected patron of the association.

MR. WADE'S ADDRESS.

The annual meeting of the Women's Literary and Debating Club was held in the rooms of the Liberal Association, Pitt-street, last evening. Mrs. C. G. Wade presided.

Mrs. Laseron (hon. secretary) read a report written by the late secretary, Mrs. J. H. Wise, who also sent in her resignation. The year's work was outlined, and it was stated that the club was still a live factor in the life of the Women's Liberal Association.

Mr. Wade (leader of the Opposition) referred to the prosperous work of the club. "We are not going backward," he said. "The last two elections—Federal and State between them—exacted almost five months' continuous work. This time you have one election—and one only so far as we can see. And there is much that can be done by increasing your own efforts and spreading the gospel of Liberalism wherever you can."

It was most important to consider those men and women whose views and politics were influenced to a large extent by their surroundings. "If you can get hold of these people," he continued, "in the office, in the factory, in the home circle, you will make a foundation for influential Liberal interests. We must lay ourselves open to introducing a course of new blood every few years. In a few years the population will have entirely changed. Therefore you can do good work in making this society more attractive for the young people.

"You can take to heart one lesson we have learnt from the last general election. It is a sound one, requiring the attention of every Liberal elector in the State. We must once again endeavour to bring about a purified election system. My remarks apply also to the Federal practice. Our first ballot in the voting on December 6 of last year gives, on the figures then returned, not less than 46 seats out of 90, and a majority of anti-Labour votes polled—a majority of 20 odd thousand over Labour votes. Yet to-day you hear that Liberalism is no good, that its policies have nothing in them. There has been no revulsion of feeling, as some of our candid critics are wont to say. And there has been no breakdown in the Liberal policy.

"I say emphatically that the rolls were not pure, that the voting was not straightforward. After the poll I found many irregularities had occurred. If we cannot get rid of that danger Labour may come back to power over and over again. What I want to obtain is an absolute recast of the whole electoral system as far as this State is concerned."

Mr. Wade referred to the facility with which the Government was "shoving bills through." Taxes, he said, were being imposed until every citizen would be affected. There would be a reaction before long.

Mr. W. E. Johnson (the Federal Speaker) also spoke on the subject of industrial unrest, advocating the principle of mutual co-operation. He stated that the Broken Hill strike cost the workers £280,000, the Newcastle strike nearly a million, and the Brisbane strike £300,000.

OVER 90 ENGINES SHORT.

CAUSE OF TRUCK TROUBLE.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

At a deputation which waited upon Mr. J. Harper, Chief Commissioner for Railways, to-day, Mr. H. C. Langwill, president of the Chamber of Commerce, referred to the shortage of trucks.

In reply, the commissioner said that that was a chronic complaint. They were over 90 engines short. The trouble was in getting the work out of the engines that they should get. That state of affairs was gradually improving. They were getting a supply of engines from England, while others were at present in course of construction. By the end of next October they would have 60 engines from England, and additional engines from their own shops. The Clyde works were behind to the extent of 15 engines. Before the end of the year they would be in a good position, and the output would reach the number required. They had already under order 1700 trucks. One contractor was delivering at the rate of 90 a month. They were being delivered as fast as they could be manufactured in this State.

NEW ZEALAND CABLES.

SAVING TIME.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Cable messages from New Zealand are at present received at La Perouse station, near Sydney, and repeated to the central Telegraph Office. Arrangements are now being made by which it is hoped that the necessity of repetition will be obviated, and the cable messages will be received direct in Sydney. It is understood that if this plan succeeds a saving of about 20 minutes will be made on each message.

WOMBEYAN CAVES.

BOWRAL, Monday.

Information is to hand that extensive damage has been caused on the Wombeyan Caves road between Wollondilly River and Maarten's Pass by the recent heavy rains. From a rough estimate it is calculated that the repairs will cost over £1000. The assistant engineer of Nuttal Shire Council states that it will be useless for tourists to think of using the road from here to Wombeyan Caves during Easter, unless they are prepared to walk, as it will be a considerable time before vehicles can be taken over the road.

The ordinary working hours of stationmasters, night officers, and relief officers shall be 96 per fortnight.

In view of the difficulties incidental to the immediate reduction of the hours of employment directed by this award, the following special provisions are made, to apply to stationmasters, yard masters, night officers, and relief officers:—

(a) On all stations (inclusive) between Sydney and Parramatta; on all stations (inclusive) between Sydney and Hurstville. On all stations (inclusive) between Sydney and Hornsby, Milson's Point and Hornsby, Newcastle and Toronto, Newcastle and West Maitland, and on all depot stations the reduction of hours shall come into force on the first day of July, 1914. Officers, working in excess of 96 hours per fortnight on these stations after that date, shall be paid overtime at the rate of time and a quarter; (b) on all stations (except those lastly indicated), between Sydney and Werris Creek, Sydney and Yass, Sydney and Bathurst, and Sydney and Wollongong inclusive, the reduction of hours shall come into force not later than 12 months from the date of this award, but, until such reduction is effected, officers working on these stations shall, after the first day of July, 1914, be paid the following allowances in recognition of the longer hours worked during the reorganisation of the service. (i) Where the hours worked do not exceed nine hours per day on an "over all" of 11 hours, 5 per cent. of the officer's salary. (ii) Where the hours worked exceed nine hours up to 10 on an "over all" of 12 hours, 10 per cent. of the officer's salary. (c) On all other stations the reduction of hours shall come into force not later than two years from the date hereof, but until such reduction is effected officers working on these stations shall receive the allowance set out for stations in the last clause. In calculating the amount of these allowances "salary" shall not include the value of quarters. (d) After the expiry of the different periods for the fixed reduction of hours, the extra allowances set out in sub-clause (b) and (c) shall be discontinued, and officers shall be paid overtime at the rate of time and a quarter for all time worked in excess of 96 hours per fortnight.

Provision is made for officers on duty away from home, and an expense allowance is granted to them. An officer relieving in one position for two months in a higher class is to receive at least the minimum salary of the higher class. All existing privileges as to sick leave, annual holidays, and railway passes are to continue during the currency of the award. Officers compelled to work for more than three hours on Christmas Day, Good Friday, or Easter Monday are to receive one day's leave on full pay for each of such days. The award has been made on the understanding that within three months of its coming into operation the Chief Commissioner shall constitute an appeal board.

FINANCIAL.

A CHEQUE PROBLEM.

"C" writes:—

Sir,—A firm contains two partners. By arrangement with the bank, cheques are signed by either partner, but whichever partner signs the cheques the same name is signed. Thus: A signs cheques A, but B signs cheques also A and not B. B therefore signs another name, not his own. Is this legal?

But why trouble? Who is likely to contest the matter? Not the Bank, which has agreed to pay, nor the holder, who is paid. Then who?

STATE WOOL EXPORTS.

The following is a return showing the number of bales of wool exported oversea from the State of New South Wales during the period from July 1 to March 31, in the seasons 1912-13 and 1913-14 respectively:—

There has thus been an increase for the period of 73,066 bales.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The markets were slow all round yesterday, and everything seemed disinclined to move till after the holidays. There was a total absence of the buying spirit. In Eastern produce all lines were without quotable change in prices, but the tendency was towards firmness. Tapiocas were again fluctuating slightly in Singapore, but not sufficiently to affect the local price. Pepper and spices were steady. Rice was firm; desiccated coconut was hardly so easy as it was in Colombo a couple of weeks ago.

In the metal markets quotations of sheet lead were reduced 5/ a ton. This did not represent the whole of the drop in the price of pig lead, but it should be remembered that the lead now being manufactured was purchased some weeks ago, when prices were considerably higher than they are today. Lead piping was not reduced because when the previous alteration—a rise—was made, pipings remained undisturbed. Supplies of lead manufactures are now normal, and shipments of piglead from Port Pirie give every promise of regularity. Wires, black and galvanised, were steady at late low rates. The demand for wire-netting was hardly as keen. Galvanised iron was bought in large quantities by the storekeepers. Inquiries for iron tanks had fallen off. Cement was in steady request at low rates.

The oil market was slow. An increase in the price of Blundell, Spence's oil in London steadied the local market a little, but 1' did not induce any speculative buying. The cables quoted 2/2½ for raw oil f.o.b., prompt shipment, a rise of a farthing. The distributing quotation locally was unchanged at 3/8 for raw oil and 3/10 for boiled. Parcels were about /2 below these rates. Whitelead was inquired for, but no business was done. Fish oils were firm, and no concessions were granted on the high rates now ruling.

The jute market was stagnant. There were branbags of February shipment obtainable at 4/9 slings, but the large holders wanted 4/10. Spot lots were selling at 5/ net to rails. Cornsacks were steady, season's shipment 6/3 slings or 6/4½ net to rails. There was inquiry for woolpacks, and some sales of February shipment were made at 2/11, while for season's shipment 2/10 less discount was given.

In brewers' goods there is inquiry for English malt, which remains very scarce, and which has been offered at 10/3 duty paid, delivered. Some few sales of last season's Victoria Chevalier malt have been made at 6/3 on rails, Sydney, and new malt at 5/6. New Cape malt is 1/ below the latter price. The demand for the new malt, however, has been disappointing. Tasmanian hops are being quoted at 1/4½ to 1/5, delivered in Sydney, small lots. Were a parcel on c.i.f. and e. terms wanted concessions would be made on these rates. The report given last week that hops in first hands in Tasmania are light has been confirmed, but as some of the larger brewers are still carrying 1913 crop the demand for the new season's hops up to the present has not been active. Holders of American hops in the other States are quoting /11½ to 1/ in bond, ship's slings, Sydney, for best samples. American hops are now attracting very limited attention, buyers being concerned with the Tasmanian crop.

BROKERS' ASSOCIATION.

The second meeting of the brokers to form a Brokers' Association was held on Friday under the presidency of Mr. Freebairn. Some discussion arose as to the wisdom of allowing the public to become acquainted with the facts of the previous meeting, and in some quarters there was a desire that the proceedings should not be divulged for the benefit of the general mercantile community. The project of the association was advanced a further stage. A committee of three—one each from the grain, the produce, and the jute divisions of the calling—was appointed to confer with the president of the Chamber of Commerce, and ascertain what could be done in the way of forming a brokers' section of the chamber. When all the facts have been ascertained the committee will draw up a report and submit it to a further meeting of brokers.

A QUIET MARKET.

The market for breadstuffs was quiet in all departments yesterday. Wheat was on offer at 3/9 ex trucks Darling Island for parcels, but buyers were not anxious, and the business done at this rate was insignificant. Buyers seemed still more shy of the forward position.

For growers' lots shippers were offering 3/4 at country stations, equal to 3/8½ ex trucks Sydney.

SHARP ADVANCE IN EGG VALUES.

Yesterday there was a "boom" in eggs. The supplies were light, and, as the full Easter demand had set in, agents had no trouble in securing prices fully 2d a dozen higher than those ruling on Friday last. New-laid were worth 2/2 to 2/3, and railways and South Coasts from 1/5 to 1/7 a dozen. Choice quality river eggs commanded from 1/5 to 1/6, but inferior samples were to be had at 1/4. Quotations from Adelaide were firmer, the lowest f.o.b. quotation being in the neighbourhood of 1/5. The local market was practically bare of South Australian eggs.

There was no movement in the price of butter. Choicest brands realised 102/ per cwt for local consumption and 100/ for export. A large quantity of second-grade brands were available, but for these there was little or no inquiry. Advices from Melbourne indicated that the market was steady for choicest brands of both local and interstate butters, but lower descriptions were dull. The Victorian production was declining rapidly, but this was being counterbalanced by heavy arrivals from the northern States, especially from New South Wales, which preferred to sell on the Melbourne market to shipping to London on consignment. Grocers were operating briskly for choicest Victorian, but, owing to there being only a moderate quantity available, they were buying the best interstate brands freely. A fairly large business was passing in choicest New South Wales butter at /11½. Choicest Queensland was quoted at 1/0½, and occasionally 1/1. Superfine Victorian was worth 1/2.

The market was well stocked with cheese. Three heavy shipments were in from the South Coast. There was no change in quotations, which were well maintained at from /7¾ to /8 a lb.

Bacon attracted a fair amount of attention. Sides were sold at from /8½ to /9½, flitches at from /8½ to /9½, and middles at from /10½ to /11¾ a lb.

Quotations were:—

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

MARKET GLUTTED WITH STRAW.

CHEAPER POTATOES.

Produce received from Tasmania yesterday included 20,256 bags of potatoes, 9102 bags of oats, 1721 bags of peas, 794 bags of turnips, 115 bags of tares, 63 bags of barley, and 1793 bales of straw.

The market was glutted with oaten derrick straw. It was estimated that there was sufficient straw on hand to fill all requirements for the next six weeks or two months. Tasmanian or Victorian oaten was offered at £2/15/ a ton. Tasmanian wheaten was rather scarce, and was worth from £3/2/6 to £3/5/ a ton.

The opening prices for the Tasmanian potatoes were about 10/ lower than those ruling last week. Redskins and Bismarcks were cleared at £7, and Pinkeyes and Up-to-dates at £6 a ton.

Onions were unchanged at £6/15/ to £7 a ton. A parcel of 2000 bags is due from Victoria to-day.

The arrivals of maize from the northern rivers totalled about 4000 bags. Prime dry yellow grain was to be had at 4/3 a bushel. White maize realised from 4/ to 4/1.

Competition at the fire wood auction was keen, and good quality wood commanded full rates, but inferior samples were cheaper. The highest price secured was 18/ a ton. In all 28 truckloads were offered.

RAILWAY MARKET.

LUCERNE SELLS WELL.

Yesterday's market was well supplied with produce, but the demand was poor. A large crop of passes was the result, and the figures of actual sales were low. The exception to this rule was furnished by lucerne; for the chaff brought 6/8, and the hay—privately—6/6 per cwt. The quality was very choice. Wheaten chaff was almost too plentiful—the inferior grade was next to unsaleable—and 4/11 was the top price. Oaten chaff was relatively strong, and realised 4/7.

Produce placed in position for sale totalled 102 truckloads, and consisted of:—Hay, straw, and chaff 93, grain 6, potatoes 3.

HOMEBUSH STOCK MARKET.

SHEEP.

STILL HIGHER RATES.

A light supply was forward for yesterday's sales, considering the nearness of the holidays and the large influx of visitors to the metropolis. Out of 9900 sheep (including lambs) listed from 38 consignors 9254 head were penned. The consignments included one draft of 1130 and seven ranging from 400 to 700, the balance being in small lots, chiefly 100 to 200 head. The sheep comprised all descriptions in both merino and crossbred. There was a preponderance of merinos, with a fair proportion of crossbreds. The merinos ranged from odd pens of inferior wethers and ewes to occasional pens of extra prime, the bulk being good to prime, with wethers well in evidence and a moderate showing of ewes. The crossbreds were mainly prime, with a sprinkling of extra prime wethers and odd pens of extra prime ewes; plain sorts were sparingly in evidence. The bulk of the pennings carried good early-shorn skins, odd pens being burry.

Buyers were in large attendance, but operations were practically confined to the usual Glebe Island, suburban, and country trade. In addition thereto, orders were in the market for the rivers and Fiji. As the supply was evidently below trade requirements the market opened to keen competition at about the high closing rates of Thursday last, biddings being very brisk from the suburban and country operators, some of whom were securing supplies to carry them over the holidays, the difficulty of railing stock on Good Friday eve or on the holiday being thus obviated. As sales progressed values speedily rose, and the rates generally were 1/ to 1/6 per head above last Thursday's rulings, all descriptions being in strong demand.

Included in the principal sales was a draft of 987 merino wethers from J. W. Donaldson that sold to 26/8, averaging 24/6; from C. C. Dangar (Quirindi) to 24/8, from executors W. E. Stevenson (Warialda) to 24/, L. Guest (Baan Baa) to 25/6, Kennedy Bros. (Come-by-Chance) to 23/7, Reid Bros (Woolbrook) to 23/, and W. M. Bell (Quirindi) to 23/4. A line of merino ewes from E. K. Rutledge (Nevertire) sold to 24/4, from C. E. Campbell (Nevertire) to 21/2, and F. Smith, sen. (Currabubula) to 20/11. Among the crossbreds was a line of wethers from S. Smith (Nevertire) to 21/6, from M. J. Marriott (Wallendbeen) to 31/3, L. Guest to 28/3, H. Dunn (Brewarrina) to 27/3, Barton Bros. (Wellington) to 25/3, and hoggets from E. K. Rutledge to 27/1. A line from J. F. Jackson (Albury) sold to 26/ for wethers and 25/3 for ewes.

Quotations: Prime short-wool merino w and h 23/ to 24/6, extra prime 26/ to 27/; good short-wool merino w and h 18/ to 20/; medium short-wool merino w 14/ to 16/6, inferior from 11/4; prime short-wool merino e 19/ to 21/; extra prime short-wool merino e 22/ to 24/4; good short-wool merino e 16/ to 17/6; medium short-wool merino e 12/6 to 14/, prime woolly merino w 25/ to 27/; extra prime to 29/1; prime woolly merino e 21/ to 22/; good woolly merino e 18/ to 19/6; prime short-wool xbd w and h 25/ to 27/; extra prime short-wool xbd w and h 29/ to 31/6 per head; good short-wool xbd w and h 20/ to 22/6; medium short-wool xbd w and h 15/ to 17/; prime short-wool xbd e 21/ to 23/; extra prime 24/ to 25/, good 17/ to 19/, medium 14/ to 15/6.

A small supply of lambs was penned, only about 600 being forward. The few lots penned were sold in the tour round with the sheep. Occasional pens were prime and extra prime, the balance being fair to useful trade sorts. There was an exceptional demand for the odd pens of choice quality, while others were about on a par with last Thursday's extreme rates. A line from Kennedy Bros. (Come-by-Chance) sold to 27/2, and from C. E. Campbell to 21/9.

Quotations: Prime woolly lambs and suckers 17/6 to 19/, extra prime 22/ to 24/6, odd pens to 27/2; prime short-wool lambs 15/6 to 17/, extra prime 18/ to 19/; good woolly lambs and suckers 14/6 to 16/; medium and light lambs and suckers 11/6 to 13/.

CATTLE.

LIGHT SUPPLY—MATERIAL RISE.

With only 1879 cattle listed for yesterday's sales, and 1818 head yarded, from 88 consignors, the supply was evidently below requirements. The consignments were mainly from the northern districts, with a very fair showing from the south, west, and local sources. The yardings comprised all qualities, and included only a small proportion of prime medium-weight bullocks, odd yards of extra prime heavy bullocks, and a sprinkling of prime handy-weight bullocks and steers. Medium and plain sorts were considerably in evidence. The cows and heifers comprised a small proportion of prime and occasional yards of extra prime; medium, rough, and inferior largely preponderating. Although a few show beasts were included in the yardings, general average quality was much below the usual standard.

Buyers were in full attendance, including the Sydney Meat Preserving Company, Ltd., exporters, and operators from such distant centres as Goulburn, Yass, and other southern townships. With such additional buying power, and a lighter as well as a poorer supply than usual, it was evident the quantity forward was below trade requirements, especially of the better qualities. The market opened to animated competition at a rise of about 20/ per head on all good, useful qualities. As sales progressed this exceptional tone was further improved upon for prime bullocks and steers. In odd cases prime heavy bullocks did not show such a pronounced rise, while on the other hand occasional yards of prime handy-weight steers realised extreme values, being 30/ to 35/ per head higher. Altogether the rates touched the highest point reached for a long while past; prime bullocks and steers were generally 20/ to 25/, prime cows and heifers 15/ to 20/, and medium descriptions 10/ to 15/ per head above last Thursday's rulings.

Included in the principal sales was a line of 27 bullocks from G. Williams (Tyreel) to £16, avg £14/18/4, a line of 29 from the A.A. Company (Warrah) to £14/11/, avg £14; a line of 19 steers from G. L. Dowe (Gunnedah) to £14; a draft of 45 bullocks from H. E. A. and V. White (Scone) to £13/16/, avg £13/7/2. Among the smaller notable lines were odd beasts from Bibbenluke Estate (Nimitybelle), at £17/15/, for a bullock and £12/19/ for a cow; 5 bullocks from J. Donnelly (Tenterfield) to £15/13/, avg £14/13/5; Martindale White Bros. (Bolivia), 5 bullocks at £15/5/, avg £15/1/; 10 bullocks, J. M. L. Macdonald (Quirindi), at £14/7/; and A. M. White (Bolivia), 3 cows to £11/17/6, avg £11/6/6.

Quotations: Yards of prime heavy bullocks, £15 to £16, odd choice beasts to £17/15/; yards of prime medium-weight bullocks, £13/10/ to £14/10/; yards of prime handy-weight bullocks and steers, £11/10/ to £13; odd yards to £14; yards of good bullocks and steers, £10 to £10/15/; yards of medium and light bullocks and steers, £7/10/ to £8/10/; inferior light bullocks and steers, £5 to £6/10/; yards of prime cows and heifers, £9/10/ to £10/10/; yards of extra prime, £11 to £11/10/, odd beasts to £12/13/; yards of good cows and heifers, £7/10/ to £8/10/; yards of medium and light cows and heifers, £5/10/ to £6/10/; inferior, £3 to £4/15/. Best beef, 35/ to 36/, in places higher; prime heavy beef, 31/ to 33/; good beef, 27/ to 28/ per 100lb.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

STATE TIMBER YARDS.

The secretary of the Electrical Trades Union, Mr. D. E. Black, has received from the assistant director-general of public works, Mr. Percy Allan, a communication stating that the committee had fully considered the question of making some allowance with regard to the starting time of employees at the State Timber Yards at Uhr's Point, and he had decided to arrange as follows:—

"In view of the special train timed to reach Rhodes at 7.10 a.m., it will only be under exceptional circumstances in future that the men will reach the works after the usual starting time, viz., 7.30, and therefore on the rare occasions when the special train referred to is late, an allowance of eight minutes will be made for the men signing on, no deduction being made from their time. But when men arrive later than eight minutes a quarter of an hour will be deducted. The men living around the locality will not, however, be permitted to start until the arrival of men by the special train; This will allow of all employees starting work together. These conditions do not apply to men travelling in the ordinary trains who consequently are late in starting work, and are not entitled to special consideration as above set out."

A.M.A. CONFERENCE.

A conference of the Amalgamated Miners' Association sat at the Trades Hall last week under the presidency of Mr. C. S. Fern, M.L.A. It was decided, on account of insufficient funds to meet claims for accident and sickness, to abolish the benefit section and ask the Government to introduce an amendment of the Workmen's Compensation Act including all miners and mine employees within the State. Mr. Fern stated that legislation of the kind had already been passed in Queensland and Western Australia. A resolution was carried in favour of preparing for a Federal award. It was decided to ask the Minister for Mines to appoint another inspector, who would understand metalliferous mining in every practical form. The contract system was condemned and a resolution was carried in favour of asking the Government to amend the Mines Inspection Act by making it an offence to employ contractors in mines or to give contracts. The conference also favoured the abolition of the night shift in mines.

MAIL SORTERS.

Sorters engaged at Sydney General Post-office do not relish having to work later in the day than the majority of clerks are called upon to do in Sydney.

They feel they are severely handicapped in a social direction, through being called upon to sort letters for the late mail trains. If business people posted earlier, the sorting staff were augmented, or mail trains despatched earlier, they contend their grievances would be met.

Their views were placed before the Postmaster-General (Mr. Wynne) on Saturday.

Mr. Wynne said he would ask the superintendent of mails, Mr. Christie, to inquire into the matter and forward him a report.

UNIONS AT VARIANCE.

At a meeting of the council of the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Service Association, held on Friday night, a notice of motion by the Electrical Trades Union, to the effect that "it is inimical to the interests of the electrical employees that they should belong to the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Service Association," was considered. After some discussion the following motion was unanimously passed,—"That the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Service Association deprecates the action of the Electrical Trades Union giving publicity to statements detrimental to a union, which for more than a quarter of a century has fought assiduously for the betterment of working class conditions."

METALLIFEROUS MINERS.

Mr. A. R. J. Watt, barrister, chairman of the Metalliferous Mining Wages Board, has gazetted the following:—

That the miners, platmen, spawlers, truckers, and labourers working in the open cut at the Bismuth mine of the Block 14 Torrington (Bismuth) No Liability Company, are entitled under the award published in the Gazette of January 21, 1914, to have 20 minutes crib time included as part of their eight hours of work, and that eight hours shall constitute a shift for such men.

PRESSERS AND UNDERPRESSERS.

The Clothing Trades Group (No. 5) Board published in October last has been varied by Mr. J. Carlos, barrister (chairman), making the wages for pressers and under-pressers £3 8s, instead of £2 5s per week.

BARRING NON-UNIONISTS.

PERTH, Monday.

The building trades' unions of Perth enforced their decision not to work with non-unionists on Thursday by introducing a working card system. In two instances temporary stoppages occurred, but no serious trouble has so far been reported.

MINING.

LONDON QUIET BUT STEADY.

LOCAL MARKET SOLID IN TIN.

COPPER, GOLD, AND SILVER QUIET.

Malayan tin propositions completely dominated the market yesterday morning, with the result that copper, gold, and silver stocks were comparatively neglected.

The "middle quotations of the London Stock Exchange, whilst indicating that values were generally steady, were featureless. Not much importance was attached to this fact, as the week-end quotations are generally without vigour. Under these circumstances, the fact that values either showed a small improvement, or held steady, was regarded as indicating a steady tone.

The following stocks hardened in the London Stock Exchange to the extent of the amounts mentioned:—B.H. Proprietary, B.H. Block 10 and Sons of Gwalia 3d each, B.H. Norths 6d, and Mount Elliotts 7½d; whilst British Broken Hills (old) were unchanged at 41/6, and Mount Morgans 61/3.

The official announcement in London that the Great Cobar Copper is closing down for reasons mentioned in a cable message published in the "Sydney Morning Herald," knocked the London quotation back 1/. Hampden-Cloncurry were also a fraction easier in the home market.

The above information was not calculated to concentrate attention on either Barriers or copper stocks, especially as local operators were absorbed in the rush for Malayan tin scrip. With them (operators) it was a case of "Eclipse first—all the rest nowhere."

Malaya Tin Corporation opened with a sale on one month's terms at £14/2/6, and, although this was an advance of £1/2/6 on Saturday's closing sale for ordinary delivery, one operator remarked: "That's a sign that the market is about to crack." But he was a bad prophet, for the price suddenly rose to £15 for ordinary delivery, with buyers unsupplied at the price at the noon call.

A buoyant market also ruled for Australia-Malay, which moved up 2/6 to 87/6, whilst Katoo Deebook also changed hands freely on the up-grade, and thereby recovered some of the ground lost on Saturday. The announcement that the output of the Tongkah Compound for the week was 27 tons 9 cwt of tin oxide—an excellent return—strengthened the stock materially, and buyers had to pay advanced rates to close transactions.

Equally solid was the demand for Tongkah Harbour shares, when it became known that the output for the week was 26 tons, whilst the record for the month stood at 107 tons 7 cwt of tin oxide. In the meantime, the Ardlethan group of tin stocks was comparatively neglected.

True sales at steady rates were booked in Wild Cherry (paid) and Southern Cross (paid), but the demand for Carpathias and White Crystal was very listless, indeed. "Far hills look greenest," remarked a Wild Cherry holder, as he saw Malayans moving up. "Neither a prophet nor a mine has any honour in his or its own country."

The business done in the other sections of the market was small and unimportant, and does not call for much analysis. It is only necessary to say that in the copper section, the transactions in Hampdens and Mount Lyells were on solid lines, whilst the same can be said of the sales booked in Broken Hill Souths (con.) and Broken Hill Norths. As to gold stocks, they were out in the cold.

The pace was too fast to last all day long, especially in Eastern tin propositions, hence it was no wonder it eased off materially during the afternoon, and was followed by a slight easing of prices, possibly because a few people "took their profits." But the reaction was very slight, whilst the projected first "float" of the Malaya Tin Corporation was freely discussed. In respect to this project—the Ratrut Basin Tin Dredging Company—the Malaya Tin Corporation will receive 40,000 fully paid shares, which it will undertake to withhold from distribution or issue for a period of two years. It is considered that this policy will materially strengthen the market price of the contributing shares, of which 42,000 will be offered only to holders of Malaya Tin Corporation shares, in the proportion of five for each Corporation share now held.

It is stated that in each subsequent subfloat the Corporation will take a block of fully paid shares, and in all probability the same policy of locking up this paid scrip will be followed. Should these floats become profit-producers, the increasing shareholding of the corporation will become important in yielding dividend revenue. The latter corporation does not contemplate working properties on its own account, hence its dividend reserves will be distributed amongst its shareholders. As the periods of escrow terminate—that is, when the paid shares held by the corporation become released—they will be distributed amongst the shareholders according to their holding of corporation shares.

Solid business was done in Kampong Kamunting at 14/9 and 14/10½, whilst Larut Tin were unobtainable except at advanced rates. The other sections of the market were very quiet.

MINING NOTES.

The No. 1 plant of the Turon River Tin Dredging Co., in a run of 99 hours, recovered 20oz. In a run of 269 hours the dredge of the Buckland River Gold Dredging Co. won 37oz of gold.

Reporting on the past week's operations, the manager of the Cope's Creek Dredging Co. states: "All work running along smoothly. Boxes were run down on Thursday for two and a half tons for 10 days. Stripping further ground in old dredged tailings."

A telegram from the manager of the Commodore Gold Mining Co. (W.A.), states: "Deposited bullion value £1644, obtained from 800 tons crushed for month of March." The last fortnightly report states:—"No. 2 Level (east reef): South drive advanced 24ft, total 178ft: holing through to main mullock pass, values low. North Drive: At 17ft winze started and sunk 10ft, reef not broken. No. 3 Level (100ft north): Rise put up from back of stop up 22ft to meet winze from No. 2 level. No. 4 Level: South drive advanced 12ft, total 85ft; values low. At 73ft crosscut east put out 9ft, values 10/ per ton, borehole in face 6ft, no values."

Our Hobart correspondent telegraphs:—"Messrs. Cundy and Fawcett, the Victorian mining experts appointed to investigate and report on the Tasmanian mine on behalf of the State, have reached Beaconsfield, and will begin their inquiries at once."

The directors of the Broken Hill Proprietary Block 14 Co. have declared a dividend of 1/ on all shares, and 10 per cent. half-yearly interest on preference shares, payable on May 13. The transfer books close on April 22. Last week the company despatched 250 tons carbonates, assaying 24.1 per cent. lead, and 14.8 silver; also 1000 tons sulphides.

The manager of the Tyrconnell gold mine wires that for the fortnight ended Saturday last, 150 tons were put through, for a return of 141oz 10dwts.

BARRIER MINES.

BROKEN HILL, Monday.

The Burke's Cave Prospecting Syndicate has granted a six months option over its property of 80 acres to a Melbourne syndicate. The price is £5000 cash, and a fifth interest in a company of 100,000 £1 shares.

TONGKAH HARBOUR TIN.

MONTH'S OUTPUT, 107 TONS 7CWT.

A telegram received at the Stock Exchange yesterday stated that the output of the Tongkah Harbour Tin-dredging Company for the past week was 26 tons. The record for the month was 107 tons 7cwt won from 227,800 cubic yards of material. This gives an average of 1.057lb of tin oxide per cubic yard, and although this has been surpassed by previous records, the result is an eminently satisfactory one, and completely disproves the statement freely circulated some time ago by an operator "caught short," that Tongkahs had "Done their dash."

TONGKAH COMPOUND.

The fortnightly output of tin oxide by the Tongkah Compound Tin-dredging Company was 27 tons 9cwt from 34,619 cubic yards of material. This fine yield was obtained despite the fact that the dredge was shut down for three days for an overhaul. The tin contents recovered was at the rate of 1.776lb per cubic yard of material handled.

WEST AUSTRALIAN MINES.

KALGOORLIE, Saturday.

On March 31 the manager of the Golden Horseshoe cabled to London: "No. 3 shaft 1884ft level, west crosscut at 10ft cut; No. 2 lode, width and value not yet determined." To-day the manager reported: "Lode has been penetrated, and proved 7ft wide, assaying 15dwt ton."

HAWKINS' HILL MINING.

BATHURST, Saturday.

The Reward mine at Hill End brought some splendid stone to the surface during the end of last week. It was mined from a winze being sunk on the Frenchman's Reef. The winze has shown good stone all the way down. This speaks well for the mine, as it goes to prove that the best gold is deeper down, being similar to the Frenchman's Reef and other mines in the company's property, which were worked very successfully at the 440ft level.

At the Amalgamated Hill End mine, stoping on the mica reef is still in operation, and some 300ft of driving on the "Star of Peace" is being carried out with the machines. It is said the contractors drove 80 odd feet last week. When this developing work is done, it is expected the company will start to sink the deep shaft. Peisley and party, who are tributing on the above company's mine, cleaned up a crushing of 14 tons, from which they will have a return of at least 23oz. This is considered payable. Cross and party (another party of tributers), are also going to crush about 13 tons, which they consider payable. Work at Foster's Tunnel is being carried out by the Amalgamated Company. Driving on the Amalgamated Reef is in progress.

The Golden Mile has also made a start again. The recent rain has given water to Baxter and party on the Turon River, and they have again made a start with their sluicing plants.

TASMANIAN GOLD MINE.

LAUNCESTON, Saturday.

A meeting of shareholders in the Tasmanian Gold-mining Company, convened by the local advisory board, was held on Friday night to obtain an expression of opinion as to the closing down of the mine. A motion moved by the chairman, Mr. A. Simson, "That this meeting is in favour of the directors looking out for another suitable property in Tasmania," was negatived by a large majority. A motion was then carried, almost unanimously, "That the local advisory board cable to the London board that no steps be taken towards closing down the mine, and that all work be carried on as usual until the reports by two experts appointed by the Government have been received and considered by the shareholders on the Tasmania register, and a decision arrived at, not later than May 16."

Superintendent Heathcote said it would be impossible to keep the mine open after May 16, as the coal supply would be exhausted, and the contract had expired. It would not pay to make a fresh contract.

A motion was also carried protesting against the purchase of any other property.

TIN-DREDGING REPORTS.

Bourke's Hill Tin (Emmaville), N.S.W., April 3.—No. 1 plant, finished blowing in wash; treating hard ground at present with slightly lower values, but improving as ground becomes softer, will resume sluicing to-day. No. 2 plant, blowing in wash, full average prospects.

Melbourne Cope's Creek Tin-sluicing (Tingha), April 3.—No. 1 plant sluicing overburden during week; started blowing in wash to-day. No. 2 plant blowing in wash; prospects fair.

BROKEN HILL MILL RETURNS.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

The April meeting of the Wollongong Turf Club takes place this afternoon, and visitors from the metropolis will be accommodated with special trains starting from the Central Railway Station at 10.55 (horses and passengers) and 11.27 a.m. (passengers only). The track is reported to be excellent going, and a pleasant outing seems assured.

[illegible] Carwyne has been scratched for the Wollongong Mile to be run to-day.

At a meeting of the board of management of the Associated Racing Clubs held yesterday, the leading officials were instructed, with a view of encouraging jockeys who at present only hold permits, to formulate a scale somewhat on the lines of that in force by the A.J.C., making allowances in weight on a sliding scale according to the number of wins. It is intended that the rule will come into operation in the immediate future. The following pony clubs were registered:—Coolah, Cargo, Mudgee, and Wyralian. On the recommendation of the starter, the nomination of Asphodel will be refused for one month for being unmanageable at the post.

A six-event programme is out for the race meeting to be held at Kembla Grange on the 23rd inst, the prize-money for which aggregates £200. Entries close with the secretary, Mr. A. H. Hart, at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, the 14th inst.

Mr. John McDonald's yearlings, bred at his famous Mungie Bundie stud, arrived at Randwick on Sunday, looking well after their long journey from the north-west. It is generally allowed by yearling fanciers that a better lot never came from Mr. McDonald's stud. A beautiful chestnut colt, by Mountain King from Marguerite, by Lochiel, is the living image of his famous sire, though, perhaps, he is of a trifle stronger build behind the saddle than the old horse. In the next box to him is a magnificent colt by Positano from Mountain King's sister, Bonnie Crest. He is a true Positano in colour, white markings, and style, and is a strapping big fellow, up to any weight, as is a beautifully-turned black colt by Mountain King from Steel Trust, while a brother to Mountain Knight throws unmistakably to the Trenton type, and a strapping sister to Mountain Echo is one of the best fillies among the yearlings this season. Mr. McDonald also has two splendid fillies by Mountain King from Belle of Britain (an imported mare, by Sundridge), and Sherwood (a half sister to the celebrated Abercorn). Mr. G. M. Currie, of New Zealand, has brought across a splendid draft of nine yearlings, five of whom are by King Rufus (imp.), two by Harrow, one by Marble Arch (imp.), and one by Flavus (imp.). These yearlings are well worth close attention, for they are beautifully bred, all well grown, and without blemish. One colt in particular, by Harrow from Grandeur, is a beautifully-set animal, and looks every inch a racehorse.

The new trotting track at the Royal Agricultural Society's Show Ground is in exceptionally fine order for the exhibition this week. It has been oiled, and the surface is almost perfect.

The A.J.C. stipendiary stewards yesterday completed the inquiry into the cause of the interference to which Taunter was subjected when taking part in the Autumn Handicap at the meeting of the Hawkesbury Race Club on Saturday last. The rider of Taunter was unable to identify the horse or the rider that caused the trouble. The evidence pointed to a certain rider's responsibility, but the stewards gave him the benefit of the doubt, and warned him to be more careful in future.

Jewelstone broke down while taking part in the Autumn Handicap at the Hawkesbury Race Club's meeting on Saturday, and the son of Jeweller was, yesterday, relieved of all A.J.C. Autumn engagements.

The inquiry by the A.J.C. stipendiary stewards into the running of Wallalo in the Highweight Handicap at the Hawkesbury meeting on Saturday, was opened yesterday, but, at the request of the rider of the horse, was adjourned until 10 a.m. to-day.

Narromine Turf Club (June 3-4), and Inglegar Race Club (April [illegible]) race meetings have been granted registration by the A.J.C.

The four minor events on the card for City Tattersall's Club autumn meeting on the 25th inst attracted the satisfactory total of 157 entries, distributed as under:—Hurdle Race, 34; Novice Handicap, 25; Youthful Stakes, 51; and Club Welter, 47. The entrants include a good percentage of well-performed horses.

RANDWICK NOTES.

A few gallops were executed at Randwick yesterday morning. Radnor ran half a mile on the tan track in 52½s, finishing well. Lochano sprinted a few furlongs after cantering, and Simplis covered a circle at three-parts pace, moving freely. Grail got over half a mile in 52½sec. St. Vano finished up steady work with a sharp sprint, and Lilyvell ran half a mile in 51½sec.

Wallalo was out cantering, but moved very sore. Evidently, he jarred a joint, or, perhaps, his loin muscles, in his race on Saturday. P. Nolan sent Hallmark (Woodburn) and Briarberry (Shepherd) over half a dozen hurdles at a fair pace. Demand, with E. [illegible] up, put in some improving practice over the battens, as did The Vet, with Robertson in the saddle. The Miser, ridden by [illegible], jumped three big fences in fine style.

N.S.W. RUGBY UNION MEETING.

The fortieth annual meeting of the New South Wales Rugby Union was held at the union rooms last night. Mr. Jas. R. Henderson presided, and in moving the adoption of the report said that the securing of the ground at Orange was an example of the determined spirit that pervaded the union, and the same support will be found in the metropolis if it becomes necessary.

Mr. Davoren spoke of the manner in which the grounds were allotted; that instead of being used as recreation reserves, the grounds were now put up to the highest bidder. Why do not the professional bodies build their own grounds out of the immense sums collected? The municipalities and trusts should devote their holdings to the cause of the man out for sport, not profit.

Mr. Jas. M'Mahon, hon. treasurer, referred to the fact that the union only had a limited revenue. The international tours were still carried out, and teams had been sent to America and New Zealand; and the annual games with Queensland were still carried on.

Messrs. E. S. Marks (metropolitan), S. Beddie (Bathurst), L. Callaghan (Inverell), H. R. Baird (Newcastle), T. P. White (Crookwell) also spoke, and the motion was declared carried.

The following office-bearers were then elected:—Patron, his Excellency the State Governor; president, J. J. Calvert; vice-presidents, Messrs. R. A. Arnold, W. M. Arnold, J. R. Henderson, J. F. M'Manamey, J. Davoren, W. A. Gordon, C. E. Morgan; hon. treasurer, Jas. M'Mahon; auditor, Jas. Taylor, F.C.P.A.

In electing Mr. J. J. Calvert as president, mention was made of his 40 years' association with the office. He has been president since the union's formation, and it was decided to convey the union's thanks for his continued interest in the game.

LAST YEAR'S PROGRESS.

LINKING THE SCHOOL WITH THE UNIVERSITY.

The annual report of the Public Instruction Department was tabled in the State Parliament last night.

HISTORIC INTEREST.

Commenting on the University Amendment Act, the Minister points out that the first leaving certificate examination was held on November 24, and the successful students take up their University studies at the beginning of the first term of this year. "This is a matter of historic interest," says Mr. Carmichael, "since it marks the definite linking up of the Public schools system with the University." Referring to the Bursary Endowment Board, the Minister reports that 13 non-State schools were inspected and registered, the registered schools now numbering 50.

THE UNIVERSITY SENATE.

Speaking of the reformed composition of the University Senate, Mr. Carmichael states that "the presence of representatives of Parliament, and of the department upon the senate has brought the University into closer touch with the public life of the State, and it is a matter for congratulation that the Education Department and the University are now associated with manifest advantage to education."

Considerable space is devoted in the report to comment upon the new scheme of medical inspection. With a few exceptions, all school pupils in the State will now be subject to medical inspection, for it is estimated that approximately out of 310,000 children attending all schools, 300,000 will be subject to medical inspection.

THE YEAR'S PROGRESS.

During 1913 high schools, 45 primary schools, 9 continuation schools, and 219 subsidised schools were opened; while 112 primary schools were closed. On December 31, 3285 schools, including 3505 departments, were in operation, an increase of 42 schools and 42 departments on the corresponding figures for 1912.

In connection with school attendance it is remarked that for some years prior to 1910 school enrolment if not actually retrogressive was stationary. The statistics for 1911, however, showed an increase of nearly 5000. This increase was almost doubled during 1912, and during 1913 the same progress was maintained, the average quarterly enrolment exceeding that of 1912 by 9536. The gross enrolment at all day schools during the year was 308,575, excluding pupils who were enrolled at more than one school; the net enrolment was 139,410 boys and 126,825 girls; total, 265,995.

It is pointed out, however, that the epidemics of infectious diseases and the inclement weather reduced the average attendance at primary schools very considerably, the percentage during March quarter being 82.5, while that of June quarter was only 77.5. Excluding 432 students in training, the number of teachers of all ranks and classes was 6300.

The amount paid in teachers' salaries for the year was £1,104,705 an increase of £59,758 over the amount expended during 1912. The principal increase was in connection with the salaries of high school teachers.

MARRIED TEACHERS' ALLOWANCE.

The Minister states that it is proposed during 1914 to reintroduce the married teachers' allowance where the salaries of married teachers are less than the minimum wage laid down by Mr. Justice Heydon. Mr. Carmichael points out that the minimum salary of £110 is given only during a period of two years' probation, at the end of which every teacher is given an opportunity to gain a classification. Upon gaining a classification the salary of teachers in charge of schools is increased to £156. It is claimed that if the £110 minimum were raised, many teachers would be content to remain in their positions without striving to increase their qualifications, while the reward for gaining a classification at the present time is sufficiently high to offer a strong incentive.

Speaking of married unclassified teachers, it is stated that if a teacher remains in the service for three or four years without gaining a classification, "it is obvious that he is not the type of man required, and it would be of mutual advantage to himself and to education that he should terminate his connection. Raising the minimum salary would accentuate the evil of the unclassified teacher, which already furnishes a difficult problem."

NEW SCHOOLS.

Never before in the history of the department was such activity shown in connection with the erection of new schools, and the remodelling of the old buildings as was done in 1913. During 1912 £287,522 was spent upon school sites and buildings; during 1913 £331,662 was expended upon primary schools, and £15,520 upon high schools, making a total expenditure of £347,183. In spite of the large expenditure during the year, much remains to be done. The starving of the building vote in previous years has borne its inevitable fruit, and large sums of money will be required before many of the existing schools can be remodelled in accordance with hygienic conditions. Excluding cost of technical education, the amount expended under the Public Instruction Act during 1913 was £1,665,509.

CO-ORDINATED SYSTEMS.

"I desire, in conclusion," said Mr. Carmichael, "to express my warm appreciation of the continued efforts of teachers of all ranks in the cause of education, and I look upon the growing interest shown by the public as one of the happiest of auguries for the continued development of a national education policy. Public education is now co-ordinated from the infant school to the University. Our primary schools are also definitely linked by means of junior technical schools and trades schools with higher technical education, and there remains now only the institution of agricultural or farm schools to complete one of the best co-ordinated systems of education in the world."

BOYCOTTED CHAFF.

QUESTIONS IN PARLIAMENT.

The boycott of Coolamon chaff was referred to in the Legislative Assembly last night.

Mr. Chaffey asked the Acting Premier whether he was aware of the fact that some so-called "black" chaff had been sold at the Sydney goods sheds that day in the ordinary way, and that the carters had afterwards declined to handle it? Would the Minister see that the law was carried out?

Mr. M'Girr wished to know if the Minister for Labour and Industry would compel a conference between the A.W.U. and the Farmers and Settlers' Association with reference to the dispute.

This last question brought another from Mr. Abbott, who asked whether it had not been decided by the Judge of the Arbitration Court that there were not sufficient grounds to compel a conference.

Mr. Estell said he knew nothing of any refusal on the part of the carriers to handle chaff in Sydney. As to the question of keeping the law, he could only say, as the Acting Premier had said the other evening, that he was prepared to carry out the law. Regarding the compulsory conference suggested by Mr. M'Girr, there was power to hold a special conference before a strike, but not after it occurred.

IRONWORKERS' STRIKE.

MARYBOROUGH (Q.), Monday.

The mechanics employed by Walkers, Ltd., proceeded to work as usual this morning. At the ordinary starting time, 7.30 o'clock, however, the gates at the foundry were closed. The majority of the men sat down at the entrances and waited developments, while the officials of the various unions conferred. Eventually, it was decided that a deputation, consisting of representatives of the Boilermakers' Union, Moulders' Union, and Amalgamated Society of Engineers, should wait upon the management and express their views. Mr. A. Harrap, secretary of Walkers, Ltd., acted on behalf of the firm. About 9.30 o'clock the deputation returned to the men. There was general eagerness to hear the result, but beyond the statement that a full meeting would be held at the Oddfellows' Hall at 2.30 o'clock, when the proceedings at the conference would be submitted, no announcement was made. The men quietly dispersed, most of them returning to their homes.

"BARBAROUS LIVES."

A CAUSE OF STRIKES.

AUCKLAND, Monday.

Referring to the recent strike Bishop Averill said people said hard things about strikers at the time, but when the toilers saw men occupying positions of ease, and living absolutely barbarous lives, he could not be surprised if the toilers felt constrained to get a further share of the good things of life. The responsibility did not lie with the workers, but with the classes above them.

RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS.

NEWCASTLE'S NEEDS.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS PROMISED.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

Mr. John Harper, Chief Commissioner for Railways, and Mr. J. Fraser, Assistant Commissioner, with other officers of the department, visited Newcastle to-day, and were waited upon by various deputations, who placed before the Commissioners their wants as regards railway matters.

Mr. J. C. Reid, Mayor of Newcastle, with other aldermen of the City Council, referred principally to the accommodation at the Newcastle railway station. The Chief Commissioner told them that a scheme was now in course of preparation, and he hoped it would be accomplished before very long. It would give provision which was absolutely necessary for the increasing demands upon the service. He referred to the Customs-house, the site of which is to be utilised as portion of the new station. When the plans were ready he would send them with a representative to the Council.

Mr. Harper also promised that an early morning Toronto train would be provided next summer.

Mr. H. C. Langwill and members of the Chamber of Commerce, were informed that additional roads for coal trains were under consideration. It was proposed to establish capstans at the cranes as soon as the wharfs were widened. Six new electric cranes would be erected in the basin with a standard capstan for each of them. There was only space for one more additional crane in the basin. That crane was under order, and had been cabled for.

A plan had been prepared for the goods sheds, and he hoped that before long there would be most up-to-date appliances there.

In reply to a question by Mr. Langwill, referring to the additional roads from the coal compounds to the cranes, Mr. Harper stated that Mr. Johnson had inquired into that matter. Associated with it was a scheme of the Public Works Department, estimated at a cost of £100,000. He was able the other day to approve of the plans as far as some of the roads were concerned.

Mr. J. O'Mara, president of the Newcastle Jockey Club, and Mr. H. J. Cannington, president of the Newcastle Agricultural Society, with other representatives, asked that a siding be constructed at Broadmeadow. Mr. Harper said the estimated cost of the erection of the siding would be about £1000. If they wrote informing him that they were prepared to pay half, he would consider the question of paying the other half. They would have to wait six months, as the department had no money now.

The Hamilton Council asked for the construction of a subway instead of a high-level bridge at Broadmeadow, and had their request granted. They also wanted improvements made at Hamilton railway station, but were informed that they had all the accommodation there that was necessary. There would, Mr. Harper said, be a new station at Broadmeadow.

The Mayor of Waratah was informed that under the new plans Waratah would be given new station arrangements and much increased accommodation, as well as additional goods roads and shunting facilities.

CASUALTIES.

VERDICT OF SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide was recorded by the Acting City Coroner (Mr. Gates) yesterday in the case of Ellen Brown, aged 65, who died at Sydney Hospital on April 2, from poison. Deceased was found in the shelter shed at Centennial Park. A bottle of poison was found near her.

MAN'S ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

An inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of John Hobson, at St. Vincent's Hospital on April 1, as the result of injuries to the head, was held by the Acting City Coroner (Mr. Gates) yesterday.

After hearing evidence, a verdict of accidental death from the effects of injuries received through falling was recorded.

ACCIDENT AT A THEATRE.

A painter, Francis Bucknell, 30, residing at Dawson-street, Naremburn, whilst painting the roof of the Adelphi Theatre on Saturday, fell a distance of about 40 feet. The Civil Ambulance was summoned and took him to Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted suffering from internal injuries.

FELL DOWN A PIT.

Keslo Kenway, 27, a labourer, living at Warwick-street, Strathfield, whilst working on a coal elevator at the Mortlake Gas Works on Saturday, fell down a pit, a distance of about 50ft. The Civil Ambulance was summoned, and took him to the Western Suburbs Cottage Hospital, with a severe compound fracture of the right thigh.

PORTER INJURED.

Harold Edward Boots, 27, single, employed as a porter at the Sydenham Railway Station, and residing at Gardner-road, Marrickville, was on Friday night knocked down by the 8.29 o'clock Sydney to Bankstown train. He sustained a fractured right arm and injuries to the head and concussion. The Newtown Ambulance Brigade conveyed the injured man to the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital.

NEW ZEALAND FATALITIES.

AUCKLAND, Monday.

Several fatalities occurred during the week-end. An old lady, Anne Davis, was burned to death in her bedroom, the curtains apparently catching fire. The remainder of the house was not damaged. A City Council employee, Henry Jumining, was struck by the shaft of a waggon and killed. A fisherman, Charles Bush, was drowned in the Thames River owing to a dingy capsizing.

FETTLER KILLED.

QUIRINDI, Monday.

This morning, about 2 o'clock, the Brisbane mail going north ran over a fettler named Patterson, who was riding home on a tricycle. The man was killed instantly, and the tricycle was smashed to splinters.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

NARROMINE, Monday.

The seven-year-old son of Mr. F. Pearce, of Backwater, was on horseback taking a drink to his father when the horse fell and rolled over on its rider, breaking the little chap's right leg at the thigh. The accident was not discovered till about two hours after it occurred.

A GANGER KILLED.

GOSFORD, Monday.

Ganger Costello, in charge of the Woy Woy length of line, was run over by the Brisbane express on Friday, between Gosford and Woy Woy. The driver felt the engine bump, and on arrival at Gosford an examination was made. He found the remnants of a man's shirt under the gear carriage, and pieces of flesh and bone on several of the cars. The Woy Woy police were communicated with, and the remains of a body were found on the line, mutilated beyond recognition. Subsequently they were identified as the remains of ganger Costello by the boots worn. The deceased, it is supposed, took a tricycle and went along the line some distance to cut grass for his cows, and was struck by the engine while crossing the line. He has left a widow and family.

HOWLED DOWN.

MINISTER REFUSED HEARING.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Saturday.

Mr. Fisher, Minister for Customs, attempted to address his constituents to-night at the Town Hall. The hall was packed early, and hundreds were shut out. The audience, however, prevented the Minister getting a start for over an hour. The organ played in an effort to divert the attention of the people. The police were reinforced, and there were frequent ejections. A crowd several hundred strong broke in when the doors were opened for an ejection, and took possession of the meeting. About two hours after the start Mr. Fisher managed to say a few words, but was only heard by the press and those sitting in the front seats. The meeting broke up in disorder. The whole was an exaggerated repetition of the meeting of March 13, when the Minister was unable to secure a hearing.

ROADS CONGRESS.

Australia calls for the solution of the road problem, and the members of the Institute of Local Government Engineers intend to specially attempt it at their annual Easter conference, which has been made a national roads congress. The Lord Mayor will welcome delegates and visitors at 10.30 a.m. on Tuesday, and the State Governor will open the proceedings at 11 a.m. The congress will sit until the 9th.

The Governor-General has advised that he intends forwarding a special message. Engineers are coming from all States, and papers on the various phases of the problem—administrative as well as construction—are to be read and debated.

We have received from "a lady who admires him" the sum of £1 for Willie Beccos, the little hero.

"LABOUR MUDDLE."

AN INHERITANCE OF DEBT.

Mr. Kelly, Minister for Home Affairs, replied to the remarks of Mr. Fisher made at the recent Town Hall meeting, when addressing a meeting at St. Matthias' School Hall, Paddington, last night. Dr. Lamrock presided.

Mr. Kelly said that the nine months of the present Government were quite long enough to refute for all time the brilliant misrepresentation with which Labour speakers at the last election had charged the Liberals with designs on the old-age pension and a desire to reduce wages. It was ridiculous that at the meeting held by Mr. Fisher in the Town Hall, when Mr. Holman was present, it should have been stated that the Liberal administration had attempted to influence the actions of the Governor-General. Labour was the very party that had evicted the Governor-General from Sydney. Mr. Fisher was angry because the Government sought, by a double dissolution, a true expression of the people's will.

Mr. Kelly referred to the Labour leader's statement with regard to the Teasdale Smith contract. The Engineer-in-Chief (Mr. Dean) made a recommendation on which, Mr. Kelly claimed, everyone of his hearers would have acted exactly as he did. The contractor guaranteed to complete the work in three months, and his price was less that that for which the Government could do it. Yet Mr. Fisher had uttered an insinuation against him (Mr. Kelly) while in possession of all the papers.

"Now," continued Mr. Kelly, "I challenged Mr. Fisher to state exactly what he meant by his insinuations and he has not said anything definite."

"Mr. Fisher talked about leaving us a surplus of two millions sterling. It is just like your wife coming home with the money she took out shopping. It is fine until the bills come home. (Laughter.) That is how we were placed. The bills have been coming in ever since. If we had not cut down the useless expenditure that benefits no one, you would have had as much extra taxation for the Commonwealth as you have had for the State." (Applause.)

Dealing with the work of the Parliament, Mr. Kelly pointed out how the Labour Opposition had blocked the business of the Commonwealth. In spite of the gigantic muddle which the Liberal Government inherited, it was now making far more progress on the transcontinental line than Mr. King O'Malley had ever dreamed of.

Mr. Kelly concluded with a review of the constructive policy of the Government in connection with the uniform gauges, defence, and other national works. He was accorded a vote of thanks.

FIRES.

SHOP DESTROYED.

WOODSTOCK, Monday.

Gilmore's shop and dwelling were burnt to the ground on Saturday.

OUTBREAK AT SCONE.

SCONE, Monday.

A large house and contents, occupied by Mr. T. M'Namara, were destroyed by fire early on Saturday. The damage was about £1000, and was only partly covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is not known.

COTTAGE BURNED AT HILLGROVE.

HILLGROVE, Monday.

A cottage, the property of Robert Austin, was gutted by fire on Saturday night during the absence of the family. There was no insurance.

OUTBREAK AT CULCAIRN.

CULCAIRN, Monday.

A fire early on Sunday morning destroyed the bachelor quarters of Mr. Lelivre, manager of Mate and Co.'s store here, and Mr. M'Donald, representative of Bell and Co. The loss is estimated at over £60. The cause of the outbreak is not known. There was no insurance.

A STABLE DESTROYED.

GILGANDRA, Monday.

A fire gutted the stables at Skelton's Hotel near the railway early this morning, and destroyed about two tons of chaff, a quantity of harness, personal effects of the lessee, Walker, and a quantity of harness and other goods belonging to people staying at the hotel. When the fire was discovered, vehicles and horses were removed to safety. Spontaneous combustion from wet chaff is supposed to be the cause. A cottage adjoining was saved by the bucket brigade. The fire brigade was not present owing to the absence of harness, and it was too far to pull the manual engine. The building was insured, but the contents were not. The damage is estimated at £250.

ALLEGED ROBBERY.

SYDNEY MAN ARRESTED IN VICTORIA

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Acting on a description furnished by the Sydney police by telegraph, Detective P. Jones met the Sydney express on its arrival at Spencer-street on Friday, and arrested a young man named Carl Skinner on a charge of having in his possession a dress suit, several other suits, and a diamond ring, alleged to have been stolen from a boarding-house in Crown-street, Surry Hills. Skinner was brought before the City Court on Friday.

Detective Jones said Skinner stated at Spencer-street station that the property in the two bags he was carrying was his own. He and his luggage were taken to the watchhouse, however, and there some of the alleged stolen articles were found in the bags. Skinner then admitted that he had been staying at the boarding-house, and that the articles had been stolen. He said that two rings had been pawned in Sydney. All the articles had been found.

Skinner was remanded, pending the arrival of a warrant and escort from Sydney.

WONGAN HILLS TRAGEDY.

CHARGE OF MURDER.

PERTH, Monday.

At Wongan Hills the inquest was concluded on Jas. Murtha, railway ganger, who was shot dead in a house on March 14. The evidence showed that David Norman, a young man, had been for a time employed by Murtha's wife, who kept a boarding-house. A quarrel arose between Murtha and Norman, both of whom had been drinking. According to Mrs. Murtha, her husband threatened to strike her. Norman intervened, and tried to frighten Murtha with a revolver, which he had borrowed, he said, to protect her from another man, and the revolver went off accidentally. Witnesses contradicted Mrs. Murtha's statement about another man, and she denied that her husband was jealous or had any cause to be jealous of Norman.

Norman after arrest made the following remarks to the constables: "We were sitting down outside the kitchen door, and did not hear him coming." When asked what they were doing, he replied: "I don't know. It will do no good, and may do her a lot of harm. Murtha came out in a raging temper, and went for me. He was too big. There were only the three of us. She is all right, but if she gives in I will go up. That bloke should not have given me the revolver in the state I was in."

The jury returned a verdict that the shot was wilfully fired by Norman, who was committed for trial for murder.

THE ARMY.

FULL STRENGTH OF SERVICE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Since compulsory military service was adopted, July 1 has become the official birthday of all Australian boys, and on this basis arrangements have been made for all "quota" of trainees to take a step forward in their military duties on that particular day.

According to the recommendations of Lord Kitchener, the strength of the Australian army was laid down as about 80,000 fighting men, and calculations have now shown that this total is not likely to be exceeded to any marked extent. When the fullest development of the system has been arrived at there will be constantly available 88,524 trained soldiers, of whom 7110 will be associated with the skilled services, such as Engineers, Army Medical Corps, and Army Service Corps; while 1345 will be attached to the fortress units, apart from 16,000 recruits annually in training for all arms. The actual fighting force of the army will consist of 80,060, or just 60 above Lord Kitchener's estimate.

The Commonwealth army, when fully constituted, will be made up of the following units:—Light Horse, 10,300; Field Artillery, 6760; Infantry, 63,000; Engineers, 3126; Army Service Corps, 1440; Army Medical Corps, 2544; fortress troops, 1345. Total, Commonwealth, 88,524. For this force and the 16,000 recruits coming forward annually, the number of officers required will be 4500.

NEWCASTLE.

ILLEGAL BETTING.

TWO FINES OF £20.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

At the police court, before Mr. M'Kell, S.M., to-day, Charles Sneddon, 29, a miner, and Thomas Jones, 34, horse-driver, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal betting on April 4.

Constable Singleton, in giving evidence, said that each of the accused laid the double with witness on Saturday. In reply to defendants' solicitor, he said that other men in the 'bus in which they were travelling asked them if they would lay the odds, and they said that they would.

The magistrate fined each of the accused £20, or three months' imprisonment.

ALLEGED INTENT TO MURDER.

William Wriedt, 26, chief officer of the Peruvian barque Cavour, was, at the police court this morning, charged with shooting at Antonio Acquila, with intent to murder him, on April 5, at North Stockton. The case was remanded till the 15th.

TO-DAY BEGINS A SHORT BUSINESS WEEK, BUT IT WILL BE A VERY BUSY ONE IF VALUES HAVE ATTRACTIONS. NO DAY SHOULD BE TOO STORMY—NO DAY SHOULD BE TOO COLD FOR YOU TO COME THIS WEEK TO MARK FOY'S, LIMITED.

COSTUME SECTION.

IT WOULD BE STRANGE INDEED IF WE DID NOT HAVE A STORY TO TELL ABOUT GREAT ASSORTMENTS IN THIS POPULAR DEPARTMENT—EVEN MORE STRANGE IF WE DID NOT HAVE SPECIAL VALUE TO TELL OF. . . . OUR SUPERIOR FACILITIES FOR BUYING ENABLE US TO OFFER AT ALL TIMES, EVEN AT THE BEGINNING OF A SEASON, VALUES OF MORE THAN ORDINARY INTEREST.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—To the LADIES who intend VISITING THE RACES, and have not yet secured their Frocks, Foy's have a glorious range of FRENCH and ENGLISH MODELS to choose from—and the prices are most reasonable. We have a SPECIAL DISPLAY of ENGLISH MODEL FROCKS only just opened, and they are the very latest styles, in CREPE DE CHINES and SATINS. Price, 49/11.

Other prices, 59/6 to £10/10/.

LADIES' RACE COATS.—Our collection was never more complete with the latest range of styles than at present. We have them in Crushed Velvets, Satins, Tussore, Silks, Glace, etc.—and every colour imaginable. Also all sizes, both large and small. Come and have a glance through this collection. Prices from

LADIES' TAILOR-MADE COATS and SKIRTS for the RACES.—You know, Ladies, it may be wet for the Races (in fact, it probably will), and there is nothing so smart and useful on a wet day as a Coat and Skirt—if you haven't one—Foy's can fix you up "AT ONCE," for we stock all sizes in the newest shapes. Prices from 39/11 to 90/6.

LADIES' SHOWERPROOFS, LADIES' WATERPROOFS for RACE WEAR and HOLIDAY WEAR.—Foy's make a Speciality of LADIES' SHOWERPROOFS and WATERPROOFS. Here are a few of our Prices:—

LADIES' GERMAN CRAVENETTE COATS, showerproof, 9/11.

Prices, 33/6 and 39/11.

LADIES' SAMPLE COATS AND SKIRTS. Foy's have opened another parcel this morning, and it is even better value than the previous parcels. Ladies, we are not exaggerating in the slightest when we tell you that these are the cheapest costumes we have ever offered, and that our customers are buying them two and three at a time. Ladies, come and have a look—you won't regret it—all one price, 29/11. Some are honestly worth three guineas.

A SPECIAL SHOWING of Maids' Coats and Skirts, in Serges, Tweeds, and Cloths. This is also a sample collection, and there are some really beautiful, smart, Silk-lined Coats and Skirts to be had at 29/11 each. Colours: Saxe, Grey, Brown, Tan, Navy, Greens, etc.

ANYONE requiring a Full Length Navy or Tweed Serviceable WINTER COAT, that looks smart and neat, is well cut, and cosy and warm, come along to Foy's at once, for we have a special table of these Coats that we are offering at 9/11. Absolutely Wonderful Value. Other Prices, 13/11 to 39/11.

FURTHER SMART STYLES in Ladies' Sealette and Caracul Coats. There is a very big inquiry for these coats, and you will find Foy's styles are the very latest, and their values the very best, and their prices the very lowest. Prices ranging from 39/11 to 69/6 to 92/6.

SPECIAL TABLE OF LADIES' BLACK SATIN and BLACK and COLOURED MOIRETTE UNDERSKIRTS, in about twelve of the very newest designs. Ladies, this is a "job" collection, and if you require an Underskirt for the "winter," now is the time to purchase, because these are really less in price than they cost to produce. Price, 6/11.

LADIES' WALKING SKIRTS, in the newest high-waisted fan-shaped pleats at back, a really smart up-to-date skirt, in plain Serges, Striped Serges, Check Tweeds, and Fancy Tweeds, at prices ranging from 9/11 to 19/11.

JUST OPENED THIS MORNING, A VERY PRETTY SHOT TWO-TONE EFFECT IN LADIES' WOOLLEN SPORTS COATS, AT 9/11.

LADIES! We would like you to see these before they are all sold. We have them in all the best colours. If you can't come in and see them, write for one, stating colour required. Don't forget the price—9/11.
